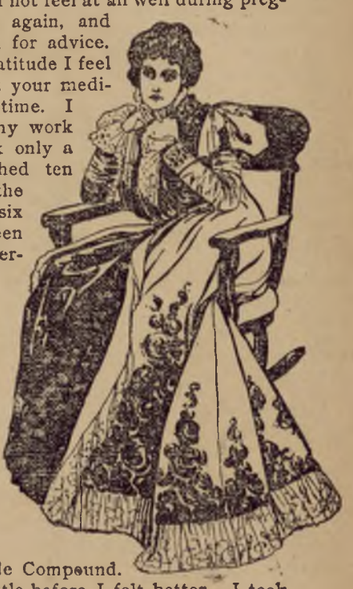
MOTHERHOOD is woman's natural destiny.
Many women are denied the happiness of children through some derangement of the generative organs.
Actual barrenness is rare.
Among the many triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the overcoming of cases of supposed barrenness. This great medicine is so well calculated to regulate every function of the generative organs that its efficiency is vouched for by multitudes of women.

SORROWS OF STERILITY

MRS. ED. WOLFORD, of Lone Tree, Iowa, writes:
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I had one child which lived only six hours. The doctor said it did not have the proper nourishment while I was carrying it. I did not feel at all well during pregnancy. In time I conceived again, and thought I would write to you for advice. Words cannot express the gratitude I feel towards you for the help that your medicine was to me during this time. I felt like a new person; did my work up to the last, and was sick only a short time. My baby weighed ten pounds. He is a fine boy, the joy of our home. He is now six weeks old and weighs sixteen pounds. Your medicine is certainly a boon in pregnancy."



MRS. FLORA COOPER, of Doyle, S. Dak., writes:
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Ever since my last child I suffered with inflammation of the womb, pains in back, left side, abdomen and groins. My head ached all the time. I could not walk across the floor without suffering intense pain. I kept getting worse, until two years ago I wrote to you for advice, and began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had not finished the first bottle before I felt better. I took four bottles, and have been strong and perfectly healthy ever since, and now have two of the nicest little girls."

FILIPINO TOWN IS BOMBARDED

Americans Capture a Cannon Used By Insurgents.

WARSHIPS PLAYED HAVOC

Rebels Made Desperate Resistance But Were Finally Routed--Marines Land Under Heavy Fire.

A special from Manila says: The United States cruiser Charleston, the monitor Monterey and the gunboats Concord and Zafiro, with marines and blue jackets from the cruiser Baltimore, left Cavite September 18th and proceeded to Subig bay to destroy an insurgent cannon there.

Owing to the bad weather the operation was postponed until Saturday, when the warships for three hours bombarded the town of Olangapo and the intrenchments where the gun was situated.

Men from the Charleston, Concord and Zafiro were then landed under a heavy insurgent fire, proceeding to the cannon, which was utterly destroyed by gun cotton and then returning to the warship. The Americans had one man wounded during the engagement.

While waiting in Subig bay for better weather, the Americans descried Filipino re enforcements moving toward Olangapo. At 6:40 a. m. Saturday the Monterey began the advance upon the town, which was about three miles east of the monitor's anchorage. The Charleston, Concord and Zafiro followed.

At 7:25 the Monterey opened fire with her second artillery and main batteries, the Charleston and Concord joining immediately. At 7:38 the insurgents' cannon answered, the first shot passing close to the Monterey's smokestack. The gun was fired twice only.

The American bombarding then became general. At 9:30 the Monterey advanced to a range of 600 yards, using her main battery. Two hundred and fifty men were landed about 800 yards east of the cannon at 11 o'clock under a severe Mauser fire.

The men from the Charleston were the first to reach the beach, but the Concord's men were the first to the gun, which they reached at 11:10. The cannon was found to be a sixteen-centimeter Krupp gun, presumably obtained from the Spaniards.

Meanwhile the warships continued to shell the shelving beach on the east and west to silence the insurgent fire upon the sailors from the trenches skirting the beach.

Gunner Olsen exploded fifty pounds of guncotton, in three discharges, in the cannon, which had suffered from the fire of the warships. The Americans then returned to the boats, the firing inland being kept up to protect the embarkation. The Concord's men were the last to leave the shore and the warships were reached at 12:50 p. m.

Cadet Brinser, with the Concord's launch, armed with a gatling, did excellent work on the left of the landing party. Captain Myers, of the marines, captured a muzzle-loading field piece. Lieutenant McDonald was in command of the landing party and the movement was splendidly executed and controlled.

The number of Filipinos there could not be ascertained and no dead were seen.

The Monterey fired for four hours—twenty-one shots from her ten-inch guns and seventeen from her twelve-inch guns.

The town, which was riddled with shells, took fire at several points.

Oil Well Overflowed.

While making preparations to "shoot" the Rayl oil well, near Wellsville, O., Salurday afternoon, the well overflowed and the oil ignited from the fire under the boiler, causing a terrible explosion. Two men were killed outright and three others injured, two of them it is thought, fatally.

BRITONS IN CONFERENCE.

Cabinet Meeting Held But Action Taken Is Unknown.

A London dispatch says: A cabinet council was held Friday. A large crowd assembled about Downing street early in the day. The cabinet ministers were loudly cheered, the secretary of the colonies, Mr. Chamberlain, receiving the lion's share of the applause.

The meeting began at 12:30 o'clock and ended at 2:40 p. m. The ministers were cheered as they came out of the foreign office. Nothing transpired regarding the action taken, though the general impression spread that a vigorous line had been adopted.

G. A. R. MEN DISPLEASED

They Were Turned Down By Parade Committee.

ROOSEVELT HAS A SAY

Committee Ignores Request of New York's Governor In Regard to Assigning the Veterans.

A new York dispatch says: Major General Roe, who will command the national guard of New York state in the Dewey land parade, received a telegram from Governor Roosevelt, Friday, directing him to give the Grand Army of the Republic the choice of any place in the parade.

Immediately on receiving the telegram General Roe had a conference with Mayor VanWyck, and then Chairman Guggenheimer, of the plan and scope committee, was notified of the governor's dispatch. After pointing out that his committee alone had the right to assign places in the line of march, Mr. Guggenheimer said of the governor's action:

"It is peculiarly Rooseveltian. It is a most impudent, unjustified and unwarranted interference in a matter that is without his province. I do not believe, however, that our committee will take any notice of it."

At a meeting of the committee, Friday morning, General Roe made the following statement:

"In order that there may be no misunderstanding, I wish to make this statement in reference to the declination of the Grand Army of the Republic to take part in the Admiral Dewey land parade:

"On my representation, at my instigation and on my resolution, I was authorized by this committee to extend an invitation to the Grand Army of the Republic of Greater New York to take part in the parade by having a certain number of men selected from each post, forming a battallion or regiment, according to the number. I put myself in communication with the state commander as soon as possible. At the request of a prominent Grand Army man I wrote and asked General O. O. Howard to take command of this body, being assured that this was agreeable to the state commander. At an interview between the state commander, several members of the Grand Army and myself, I understood that the selection of General Howard was agreeable. At this interview, after some discussion, I informed them that the Grand Army would be assigned a position in the lead of the unarmed organizations.

"At a later interview between the commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, the state commander, Colonel Goulden, and myself, practically a demand was made that the Grand Army should have the right of the line or head of the column, Colonel Goulden stating that at a meeting held the day before it was the sentiment of the Grand Army of the Republic that if they could not have the lead they would not parade. I called their attention to the fact that it was not a Grand Army affair, that it was a city affair, and that that position was not their proper one, and said:

" 'Positively and absolutely the Grand Army cannot have the head of the column,' whereupon they retired. At another interview the commander-in-chief, with the state commander present, stated that he thought General Howard should not command the Grand Army. I informed him that he was asked at the request of several Grand Army men, but I would write and ask General Howard to withdraw, whereupon the commander-in-chief said:

" 'That is a simple matter and can be easily arranged—'

"Then he asked if I would allow a picked body of 300 Grand Army men and himself to have the head of the column. I answered:

" 'I positively and absolutely will not authorize any portion of the Grand Army to be at the head of the column.'

"Subsequently I received the letter of declination. I have taken the position from the beginning that the day was emphatically a navy day, that Admiral Dewey and the sailors on the Olympia should be in the lead with nothing whatever to detract. I have taken this stand relative to the Grand Army as I am thoroughly convinced that I am right. I assume all responsibility. I do not ask the committee to approve my action, but abide by what I have done. I have the honor to be a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, George Washington Post."

The committee agreed unanimously upon the motion of Mr. Guggenheimer to approve the action taken by General Roe. No mention was made of the dispatch of Governor Roosevelt.

Tidman, is busily engaged in preparing to start up the plant, which has been idle for the past four months. Operations will probably be resumed Monday. This plant, which manufactures sanitary piping, gives employment to about 150 men.

BLOODY TRAGEDY ON A STAGE

Leading Man In a Farce Comedy Play Shot Down.

ACTRESS USED A PISTOL

Unexpected Denoument Occurred In Chattanooga Theater.

At the opera house in Chattanooga, Tenn., Friday night Julia Morrison, the leading lady of the farce comedy, "Mr. Plaster of Paris," shot and instantly killed Frank Lieden, the leading man and stage manager of the same company.

A large and fashionable audience had gathered, and the orchestra had just concluded the opening overture, when three shots rang out on the air. Two came together, then a pause, and the third. No one stirred in the audience until one of the actors came before the curtain and announced that an accident had occurred to the leading man, and quietly dismissed the audience.

Meantime physicians and officers had been summoned and a scene of terrible confusion was presented. The woman and her husband, Mr. James, were immediately arrested.

The victim lived only five miuntes and never uttered a word after the first shot.

The tragedy grew out of a succession of bitter quarrels, the last of which took place at the afternoon rehearsal, at which time Miss Morrison—or Mrs. James—slapped Lieden's face. He made a motion to retaliate, but was hurried away by one of the stage hands.

Friday night, when the call for the first act came, Miss Morrison was nowhere to be found. Leiden sent the stage manager to her room, but she refused to appear. Then her maid called to her, and she came out of her dressing room with the revolver in her hand, walked deliberately up to Leiden, who was standing in the make-up of Mr. Plaster, and fired twice.

The first shot took effect in the neck. At the second he fell, and then as he lay bleeding and dying, she fired the third shot, which struck him just below the eye. She surrendered quietly to the officers, the dead man was removed to the undertaker's, and a fearful tragedy supplied the place of farce comedy.

Woman Makes a Statement.

The woman made a statement to the officers, in which she claims to have been insulted and misrepresented by Lieden. She alleges that he began to persecute and insult her when the company started out and when he found that her husband, who had no part in the cast, was to travel with her, he tried to have her deposed.

She told a consistent story, every word of which was corroborated by her husband. The latter was not at the theatre when the tragedy took place.

Miss Morrison is a woman of some refinement and says her home was in New Orleans. She wept bitterly when interviewed at the city jail, but she refused to testify at the coroner's inquest.

GEORGE KERLIN CONVICTED.

The Slayer of Pearl Knott Gets a Life Sentence.

The trial of George Kerlin at Fayetteville, Ga., ended Thursday morning, with a verdict of guilty with recommendation to life imprisonment.

The case was a highly sensational one from beginning to end, owing to the prominence of the parties connected.

The testimony for the state was overwhelmingly strong.

Kerlin was positively identified as the party who carried Pearl Knott off on the night of the 13th of April, by two witnessess who had a conversation with him while Miss Knott was getting into his buggy. They testified Kerlin told them Miss Knott was going to marry his son, Lewis Kerlin. She changed dresses for this purpose at her sister's house. Kerlin was seen on several occasions going to and coming from the river, where the body was found.

The jury rendered a verdict at 10 o'clock Friday morning of guilty with recommendation. The people seemed satisfied with the verdict.

ALL IS NOW READY FOR HERO DEWEY

Committee of Arrangements Has Completed Its Work.

THE TICKETS RUN SHORT

About Eighty Thousand Applications Are Outstanding.

A New York special says: All the general arrangements for the reception of Admiral Dewey are now complete and only a few details are left to be settled. The majority of these cannot be attended to until the admiral has arrived and his wishes have been consulted.

All the sub-committees have about finished their work and have presented their reports to the general committee.

The committee on distribution of tickets was at work all day in the mayor's office until late at night. They apportioned nearly 20,000 tickets, all there were at their disposal. There were applications for more than 100,000. Their work did not include the distribution of tickets to the municipal assembly and the school children's stands. These tickets will be at the disposal of the municipal legislators and the president of the board of education.

The committee on stands is yet to decide exactly what will be the capacity of the new stands. If the committee stands for all the expenditures it has authorized, it will have spent more than $45,000 in excess of the first appropriation made to it of $30,000 and $4,000 more than it has in sight even if the municipal assembly votes to give it the additional $25,000 that is to be asked for at the next meeting of the aldermen and council.

For the seventy odd thousand expended, the committee has furnished about 20,000 seats to the ticket committee, 4,000 on the city hall stands, 6,000 for the school children, 10,000 for the municipal assembly and 25,000 for the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic, a total of about 40,500 seats for about $73,000.

Concerning the committee of seven that is to attend Admiral Dewey during his stay in New York, Mr. Foster said he had received a reply in writing from Chauncey M. Depew and in person from Richard Croker and William McAdoo. Mr. Croker said the committee could make any use of him they desired and that he was ready to do anything in his power to help along the success of the celebration. With the exception of Levi P. Morton and W. C. Whitney all the members of the committee have accepted.

MRS. HUGHES NOT CONVICTED.

For Third Time a Jury Fails to Reach Agreement.

Another mistrial has resulted in the Mattie A. Hughes murder case at Greenville, S. C.

The jury retired Friday night shortly after 6 o'clock and at 10 o'clock announced that it would be impossible to agree. They were sent back to their room with instructions to deliberate further.

At 8 o'clock Saturday morning they asked that they be discharged, having reached no verdict.

The jury stood eight for acquittal, three for manslaughter and one for conviction.

The defendant will be tried again at the coming spring term of court. She is charged with the murder of her husband, George W. Hughes, on November 18th, 1898.

NOTED ASTROLOGER DEAD.

He Predicted His own Death and That of His Wife and Son.

Dr. Luke D. Broughton, president of the Astrological Society of America, died in New York Saturday. His death, he predicted, would occur on September 22d.

Dr. Broughton has made many successful predictions. On his advice his eldest son did not marry, as his father had predicted the exact time of his death in 1885. Mrs. Broughton also died as predicted in 1891. He wrote many many pamphlets and one book on astrology.

THE CHRONICLE.

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana Ala., as second class matter.

OUR officials make a very creditable showing so far as shown by the State examiner's report. A few errors of judgment appear to be their only sins.

ANOTHER candidate for Governor is Hon. John W. Tomlinson. There will probably be others. When they are all in we will pick out our favorite. That will likely be some time off.

THE State seeks to make an example of the Shelby Iron Co., while Aldrich is let off with a $7,000 raise and a total of just one-third of his own estimate of the value of his stock. Why the wherefore of the thusly?

THE Anniston Republic complains that the Governor of Alabama has too much appointing power. We agree in that complaint, especially when that power rests with an unscrupulous politician who uses it to further his own ends.

SPOT cotton was selling in our town yesterday at 6¼ cents. This is 2 cents above the market a year ago. The indications are that the present crop will bring 7 cents to the producer, and that the crop will be 20 per cent short. This will give a net yield of 20 per cent over the returns of last year, or, in other words, the farmer will be 20 per cent richer from this crop than from the last. We hope the signs will not fail.

WE asked Hon. Jno. B. Knox the other day if he would enter the race for Senator in the event there was a free-for-all race. He replied: "I am for Morgan, and I do not think the way to help elect a man is to run against him. I will not be a candidate so long as Morgan stands for re-election." This is the truthfulness, the fidelity that more than once has made a man the recipient of a falling mantle.

THE announcement of Ex-Gov. W. C. Oates as a candidate for United States Senator adds some interest to the situation. There is little or no difference between him and Senator Morgan on public questions, and it is not thought that the candidacy of Oates will seriously affect that of Morgan. Oates will naturally draw his strength from the wire-grass section, where Johnston is perhaps strongest.

THE great bugaboo of Mr. Aldrich about a conspiracy against his life has been exploded. He refused to appear before the Dallas County grand jury because he knew he could not prove his charges against the good people of Selma. His conspiracy was hatched up in the minds of himself and his henchmen for political effect, and when his hand was called he very promptly ran away. It will be unfortunate if he leads some officer into trouble on his account.

IT occurs to us that some of our newspapers and public men ought to learn the difference between imperialism and expansion before they proceed with a discussion of the question. Senator Morgan is far from favoring imperialism, and yet a good many second-rate newspapers and third-rate politicians are classing him as an imperialist. The trouble with them is that they are looking for an excuse to oppose him, and are unfair enough to misquote him for their purposes.

IN his speech here Superintendent Abercrombie declared for an educated citizenship as the result of a better public school system to be brought about by improvements in all departments and ultimate compulsory education. His position was well taken at all points, and his audience agreed with him. An educated citizenship is the only hope of a perpetuation of free institutions and constitutional liberty. It may be unpopular now, but the voter of the future will be educated: it is inevitable.

FROM an article in the Louisville Courier Journal we find it said of Senator Morgan: "He towers above every other Senator from the cotton States. There is more statesmanship in his dreams than in some of the delegations from the South. He is as industrious as was Beck and as is Allison. I do not believe there is another man in public life who knows as much of what is contained in American state papers as John T. Morgan. Mentally, morally and physically there never was a more intrepid or a more determined man than he. While Hoar was reading Chaucer, while Turpie was reading Plato, while Minnesota Davis was reading Victor Hugo, while "Old Roman" Thurman was reading Montaigne, while Dave Hill was reading the memoirs of Thurlow Weed, while Vest was reading Dickens, Morgan was reading the messages of the Presidents of the United States, the treaties ratified by the United States Senate from the foundation of the Government down, and the adjudications of the United States Supreme Court on constitutional questions. Though not devoid of imagination—indeed, he has plenty of that faculty—he is eminently practical. Though 75 years old there is a good deal of work in John T. Morgan yet." His ability, coupled with his honesty of purpose, makes him preeminently the man to represent Alabama in the United States Senate for so long as he lives; not because he is entitled to it, but because the State and the South need him.

A PUNCTURED CANARD.

Aldrich, Deans and Dryer Refused to Testify.

RAN AWAY FROM GRAND JURY.

Declined to Furnish Proof of So-Called Conspiracy.

The following article appeared in the Age-Herald of Tuesday, coming from Selma:

Readers of the Age-Herald will remember that some months ago there appeared in these columns an excerpt from the testimony in the contested election case of W. F. Aldrich vs. Gaston A Robbins for a seat in the Fifty-sixth Congress in which E. H. Dryer gave as hearsay evidence that a plot had been organized in Selma prior to the election to kill the contestant, W. F. Aldrich, the alleged assassin having been located in the building occupied by Pettus & Pettus as law offices.

Acting on this testimony and in order to either prove the falseness of the accusation or ferret out the would-be assassins the grand jury of the circuit court of this county, through the solicitor, subpenaed E. H. Dryer, W. F. Aldrich and G. B. Deans to appear on September 18 and give testimony in the matter.

Neither appeared and before the adjournment of the grand jury Saturday the judge was asked for an issuance of the rule nisi against the sheriffs of Talladega and Shelby County who had failed to make return of service of the process. However, after the adjournment of the grand jury a return from the sheriff of Shelby County did come. He indorsed that "parties could not be found." Yet it is a known fact that about September 12 G. B. Deans came down to Montevallo from Calera on the train and took a carriage over to Aldrich, where he spent the night in consultation with W. F. Aldrich, and again came to Montevallo and took the train the next morning, returning to Calera, being seen by hundreds of citizens.

Again, according to a notice in the Age-Herald on the morning of September 18, W. F. Aldrich and G. B. Deans were in Birmingham on their way out of the State, seemingly fleeing from the process issued out of the grand jury of Dallas County, which they themselves had invited by casting a stigma on this county in an election contest that would forever stand as a record against the fair name and fame of this county.

The purpose of the grand jury was to find out if there had been any conspiracy to do harm to a citizen of the State and, if the testimony given before the commissioner in the contested election case was anything but a political canard for political purposes, to punish the offenders to the full extent of the law.

Mr. Dryer failed to appear, but sent a doctor's certificate as to the illness of his wife. A strong effort will be made to have the full penalty of the law put upon the sheriffs who failed to make returns, and at the next meeting of the grand jury an effort will again be made to compel Aldrich and Deans to appear and prove themselves either inventors of campaign canards or secure the indictments of would-be conspirators who lie in wait to remove objectionable political candidates.

A representative of this paper called on Sheriff Walthall Tuesday and asked him about these subpoenas. He said that they were received in his office, and by his instructions were sent out by Deputy Norris to precinct deputies. At the time Mr. Norris informed him that Mr. Deans would be in town the next day. Later he found the two papers on his desk, and he sent them back a second time to deputies for service; that they were returned indorsed "not found," and were then returned to Dallas County. Neither Captain Walthall nor Deputy Norris could remember to what deputies the papers had been sent, but the former thought he sent one to the deputy in Beat 7.

Mr. Deans has been in Columbiana since the date of issuing the subpoenas, which was the 26th of August. They were received back in Selma on the 23d instant, after the grand jury had adjourned. We learn that immediately after the issuance of these subpoenas a lawyer in Birmingham wrote to a party in Selma to find out what was wanted of these parties, showing that they were aware of the existence of the papers.

DEWEY will now be bored to death by the hero worshippers for a few weeks, and will probably be glad when the noise is all over.

THE report of the State examiner will be a surprise to some Populists who have been taught to believe that all Democrats are thieves.

COOSA RIVER CONVENTION.

Interest Aroused that will Bring Good Results.

GADSDEN, Sept. 27.—The Coosa River Convention convened here yesterday. Every city and county along the great waterway from Rome to Selma was ably and enthusiastically represented. It was a representative gathering, and boded good for the improvement of the Coosa River. It showed that the people are thoroughly aroused and determined that the advantages and resources of the celebrated Coosa valley and the mountainous country around should become known and recognized by Congress. The address of welcome was delivered by Hon. John L. Burnett, the Seventh district Congressman, in his happiest mood. The response was by Hon. J. W. Fitzpatrick, of Wetumpka. Col. D. B. Hamilton, of Rome, was elected president and the convention got down to business.

Senator John T. Morgan, by far the ablest man Alabama ever produced, and who has a world-wide reputation, was presented to the convention and made one of the ablest speeches ever listened to by a Gadsden audience. He spoke for two hours upon the advantages that would accrue to this section by the opening of the Coosa River to Mobile. The speech contained a vast amount of valuable information. He described the great stores of wealth that lie buried in the hills and mountains along the banks of the Coosa. His speech was attentively listened to and produced great enthusiasm. It was an education in itself upon the subject.

In the afternoon speeches were made by Congressmen Maddox, of Rome; Robbins, of Selma, Brewer, of Lowndes, all speaking of the great benefit to be derived from the opening of the Coosa. Hon. John W. Tomlinson made a speech, as did W. H. Denson and D. B. Hamilton. All were enthusiastically received.

The convention concluded its work today with a steamboat excursion down to the Government locks. Six Congressman, Bankhead, Stallings, Maddox, Robbins, Brewer and Burnett, made speeches and pledged their votes and earnest support to obtaining an appropriation for opening the Coosa from Gadsden to Mobile. Over 200 delegates attended.

A plan of work was contemplated and the following central committee was appointed: W. P. Lay, Gadsden, chairman; J. W. Burke, Mobile; Cabot Lull, Wetumpka; J. B. Gaston, Montgomery; G. B. Randolph, Anniston; F. H. Lathrop, Riverside; Eben Hilyer, Rome. Subcommittees were appointed on mines, forestry, agriculture, and manufactures, to tabulate statistics of the products of the Coosa valley and present them, through the Congressmen, to the Congressional Committee on Rivers and Harbors. The convention was most harmonious throughout and the work will be prosecuted with vigor.

How to Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At druggists fifty cents or one dollar.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, if you send your address to Dr Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention that you read this generous offer in THE CHRONICLE.

The press dispatches state that the price of flour will be advanced after October 1. Our farmer friends who had the courage and foresight to plant a larger crop of wheat than usual this year can now lean back and take it easy.

Those whose orders for coal were not sent in by early summer will probably have to content themselves with some other article for fuel and get along the best they can until the first of January, as all coal mines in this district are taxed to the utmost.

The Densler Mercantile Co. appreciate the farmers and their trade; they are in direct sympathy with them because of the low price of cotton. As a result they have toned down prices on eatables and carved competition to the bone. What more could atone?

Had it not been for the quick response of our citizens on last Friday afternoon the residence of Dr. J. H. Williams on Main street would no doubt have been a mass of ruins today, a victim of fire. As it was only a small portion of the kitchen roof was destroyed, and an outlay of a few dollars will be sufficient to repair this damage.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Shelby County Officials Make Good Showing.

REPORT OF THE STATE EXAMINER

On All the Officers except Tax Collectors Smith and Robinson.

By the courtesy of State Examiner Purifoy we publish his reports on the county officers of Shelby County so far as he has reported. He has not yet filed his report on the present and preceding tax collectors, there being some errors which he is wating to have cleared up. The reports cover two terms of each office.

H. W. NELSON, SHERIFF.

To Hon. Joseph F. Johnston, Governor:

I have examined the books and accounts of H. W. Nelson, sheriff of Shelby County from September 1, 1892, to September 1, 1896, checking his feed and removal bills with his own books and the criminal records of his county. In his feed bills I found a few small errors against the State and about an equal sum against the sheriff. All bills collected by him from the State treasury for removing prisoners from other counties for trial in his own county I found were correct. Among these, however, were bills for removing Maggie Weems from Calhoun County and Ed Cole from Jefferson County, aggregating $26.25, cases against whom were pending in the courts of justices of the peace and who were discharged on preliminary hearing. Section 5205 (4256) of the Code requires that "the magistrate must examine the complainant and such witnesses as he may propose on oath, take their depositions in writing, and cause them to be subscribed to by the persons making them." Section 5206 (4257) provides that the depositions must set forth the facts stated by the complainant and his witnesses tending to establish the commission of the offense and the guilt of the defendant. Section 5207 (4258) provides that "if the magistrate is reasonably satisfied from such depositions that the offense complained of has been committed, and there is reasonable ground that the defendant is guilty thereof, he must issue a warrant of arrest." Had these provisions of law been complied with it is reasonable to conclude that the State would have been saved the unnecessary expense of these removals with the consequent cost of feeding the prisoners while in jail. Three defendants for whom the State paid the expense of removing were convicted and sentenced to hard labor for the county. The removal fees were not included among the costs for which they were sentenced. The clerk of the court states on oath that the presiding judge in each of these cases instructed him not to include the removal bills in the costs for which the defendant was sentenced; that his only legal remedy consisted in issuing execution against the convict, which he did and the executions were returned "no property found."

Respectfully submitted.

E. F. VEST, SHERIFF.

To Hon. Joseph F. Johnston, Governor:

I have examined the books and accounts of E. F. Vest, deceased, sheriff of Shelby County from September 1, 1896, to May 31, 1899. He has kept a jail register as required by section 3740 (act of February 28, 1889), also books in which he copied his accounts for feeding prisoners as required by law. He seems to have had a fee book in his office as required by section 1264 of the Code. The fees charged and collected by him, other than those collected for feeding prisoners, were not entered in said fee book as required by section 1365 (3677), which provides that "no clerk, register or sheriff shall demand or receive a fee for any service, by him performed, not justified by a charge entered in his fee book." This failure was also noted in the work of his predecessor, Mr. Nelson.

Mr. Vest's feed and removal bills having been checked with the court records were found correct, except in the cases of three prisoners for whom he collected fees for feeding, a day or two for each, after their discharge as shown by the court records. Inquiry, however, developed the fact that occasionally final judgment was not rendered on the date shown by the docket, the prisoner being held sometimes for a day or two after such date before final judgement was given. With this doubt before me I have not charged Mr. Vest with the sums collected for feeding in such cases.

Respectfully submitted.

PROBATE JUDGES.

To Hon. Joseph F. Johnston, Governor:

I have examined the books and accounts of John S. Leeper, who was judge of probate of Shelby County from November, 1892, to the winter of 1895, the time of his death. All monies that came into his hands from the issuing of license and the redemption of lands sold for taxes and bid in by the State were promptly remitted to the State treasurer.

I also examined the books and accounts of his successor, Hon. D. R. McMillan, who filled Judge Leeper's unexpired term. He too had collected the proper amount for all license issued by him, as well for all lands redeemed, and all such funds have been promptly remitted to the State treasurer.

I also examined the books and accounts of Hon. A. P. Longshore, who succeeded Judge McMillan, and respectfully report that he has collected and promptly remitted all funds which it was his legal duty to collect.

Respectfully submitted.

JNO. W. PURIFOY,
Examiner of Public Accounts.

JNO. P. PEARSON, CLERK.

To Hon. Joseph F. Johnston, Governor:

I have examined the books and accounts of John P. Pearson, clerk of the circuit court of Shelby County, with reference to his collection and payment of funds into the State treasury, and respectfully report that all such funds as it is his legal duty to collect and remit have been collected and forwarded to the State treasurer. In the case of Hal Putnam, convicted and judgment confessed for the fine and costs in his case, he had collected a removal fee of $11 20, which by oversight had not been paid over to Sheriff Vest. When called to his attention he promptly remitted this sum to the treasurer. Mr. Pearson stated that the reason this fee was overlooked it was collected during his serious illness and after his recovery nothing had occurred to call his attention to it. Mr. Pearson is a new clerk, having entered upon the discharge of his duties less than a year ago. He asked many questions with reference to his duties, displaying a commendable desire to know what his legal duties are.

Respectfully submitted.

JNO. W. PURIFOY,

There does not appear any report on the accounts of the former clerk. This will probably be filed later.

Shelby Iron Company's Taxes.

In the tax case of the Shelby Iron Co., appealed from the commissioners court, the jury sustained a raise of $100,000 on pig iron on hand October 1, 1893. The tax commissioner had asked for a raise of $193,000 on property valuation, and was sustained by the commissioners court. The jury found the assessment correct, except as to the pig iron on hand. Under the law a good part of this is exempt for twelve months, but must be claimed specifically. This was not done, and hence the finding of the jury. The entire assessment of the company now stands at $308,000.

Four hundred and fifteen bales of cotton have been shipped from this place since the first of September. It looks very much like we will carry off the palm from current reports of adjoining towns.

Jim Lockride and sister, Miss Alice, have just paid Mrs. Wm. Gwin a visit.

A tally-ho party in two sections was quite a feature of pleasure to our young people Friday eve, given in honor of three well known young ladies. The bevy consisted of Misses Nannie Horne, Minnie Kidd, Baba, Ella Thomas, Lillie Nivens, Blossom Densler, Susie Self, Meta Bolin, Laura Weldon, Olive Densler, Pernie Pope and Rosa Graham, accompanied by Messrs. DeRamus, Will Pope, John Pennington, Jesse Edwards, Pat McGowen, Nat Nivens, Wales and Sam Wallace. Light refreshments were partaken at the terminus of the trip, and the homeward journey taken up while the feminine voices in sweet refrain was ushered out upon the desert air. The tourists returned home just as Saturday morning was blossoming into existence, when Misses Horne and Thomas were voted "comediennes," and Messrs. Pope and Pennington comedians for this autumnal occasion.

Our school is now complete, with Professor Herndon as principal and Misses Minnie Kidd and Ella Thomas as assistants. The number of matriculates up to date is 45 and increasing daily.

Rev. T. M. Thomas returned Monday after a short visit to Col. Smith and family.

Several of our citizens are attending court this week.

Mrs. W. W. Price, after spending the summer with the family of E. Williamson, left Sunday afternoon for her home in Mexico.

Wont someone please try to reorganize the literary society, as 'twould be a source of much pleasure and profit to spend the long winter nights in discussing questions wise and otherwise pertaining to the higher elements of educated life.

FRIEND O' MINE.

"The COLUMBIANA CHRONICLE, one of the best and prettiest weekly papers in the State," is the opinion of the Anniston Daily Hot Blast's local editor. Columbiana is itself a pretty place, and as a natural sequence all enterprises established here must in some measure assimilate a portion of her virtues. They frequently verge into a state of loveliness and are a joy seven times a week the year round.

If you eat without appetite you need Prickly Ash Bitters. It promptly removes impurities that clog and impede the action of the digestive organs, creates good appetite and digestion, strength of body and activity of brain. For sale by Drs. Williams Bros.

Despite the fact that no fire engines, hooks and ladders, reel and hose have ever been introduced into this city Columbiana has the best equipped organization for the prevention of cruelty to dwellings by fire of any town its size in the State. Every citizen, white and black, man, woman and child capable of carrying a bucket of water is a charter member and extreme weather has no deterrent effect upon the performance of their duty when it is required. They ask no pay for services rendered and are thankful if assistance can be given.

Take a dose of Prickly Ash Bitters at night when you go to bed and you will feel bright and vigorous the next morning. It will insure you a copious and healthy passage of the bowels, improved appetite and digestion and increased energy of body and brain. It beats stimulating drinks because its reviving influence is natural, hence permanent. Sold by Drs. Williams Bros.

A stranger on entering the portals of our city these cloudless autumnal days would no doubt imagine he had been dumped off into the desert of Sahara or some other adjacent township, judging by the clouds of dust which meets his eyes and fills them, if the happy song of the picaninny and the hum of industry on all sides did not awake him to the realization that Columbiana had been reached. But then all commercial centres are handicapped by some trust or monopoly, and Columbiana is one of them, as the elements are contrary at times.

If you wish to accomplish much in this world you must go to the bottom of things, and if you wish to enjoy continued good health you must take Simmons Liver Regulator, the remedy for biliousness, constipation, sick headache, indigestion and all liver and stomach diseases. J. W. ABERCROMBIE

Attends Teachers Institute and Makes an Address.

Superintendent of Education Abercrombie spoke at the courthouse in this city on last Friday evening. It was a masterly effort and merited the careful attention which the truly representative and intelligent audience gave. The address was free from all political taint, either implied or expressed by any of his utterances, and was directed principally to the teachers, being directly on the line of education and the necessity for better equipment for service by those whose duty it is to preside over the instruction of the young. His speech consumed something over an hour, and while the teachers received the full weight of his remarks there was food for reflection for all who were present and heard him.

He believes in universal and compulsory education, but thinks that the status of the school system should be improved before this is attempted in Alabama. When the State can afford to make appropriations commensurate with the needs of the people he considers it a moral and divine obligation devolving upon the lawmakers to see that the interests of her citizens are not neglected.

He thinks the new law governing the examination of teachers is a great step forward and that it will mark an epoch in the history of Alabama when she decided to throw off the shackles of ignorance and make advancement to that position among other States of the nation to which her natural resources justly entitle her. His comparison of the present system with that under the old regime, when certificates were given to all who applied, elicited much laughter.

He believes in local self-government and thinks that when a community desires to tax itself that the advantages of education might be improved that there is no reason why they should be denied this privilege. He says that it is his purpose to introduce in the next legislature a bill looking to this very thing.

Superintendent Abercrombie is a most fluent and excellent speaker, and his chastity of thought and purity of speech is sufficient evidence of a mind fully developed and thoroughly consecrated to the work in which it is engaged. Alabama needs more such men, and more such speeches as the one delivered here. If Superintendent Abercrombie could visit every hamlet and village in the State his hope for Alabama would not long remain a mere ideal wished for, but a condition realized.

A cordial welcome awaits him if he decides to visit this place again.

MONTEVALLO SCHOOL.

Prospects for Large Opening—Other Notes.

From the Birmingham News.

MONTEVALLO, Sept. 27.—The prospects for the opening of the Girls' Industrial School were never better. More applications are being received than the town is able to accommodate. President Peterson is already perplexed as to how to take care of them all. The president's new home, authorized by the board of trustees, is in course of erection. The grounds are being beautified and the sanitary arrangements looked after. The hospital is now complete. It presents a homelike appearance nestling among the trees of the campus. Hitherto there has been but little need of a hospital, but as the unexpected sometimes happens this is just the place for emergencies.

E. S. Lyman is having the old Lyman hall repaired and remodeled for dwelling purposes.

Clover Hay for Sheep.

Well-cured clover hay is the best possible rough feed for sheep. Great care must be exercised in curing it. One ton of brigh, green, clover hay is worth two or three of poorly cured and dusty.

Club Root of Turnips.

A good deal of difficulty is experienced in some parts of the country with club root of turnips. Investigations at the New Jersey station indicate that the most efficient method of prevention is to use unslaked lime or gas lime on the land to be sown to turnips. It was shown that the fungus of club root could remain active in the soil for at least two years, and that manure is a means of carrying infection to the soil. Cabbage grown on "clubby" land was seriously infected with the disease. It was also found that a number of plants allied to the turnip were liable to be infected with club root. Of these charlock, or wild mustard, and white mustard were the most susceptible to the fungus.

Germs in Butter.

That milk can readily convey the germs of disease that have gotten into it is now generally recognized as well as scientifically demonstrated. More than one instance of the spread of typhoid fever has been traced to milk from a dairy or peddler in whose family the disease existed. In some of these cases, the manner in which the germ got into the milk has been quite clearly traced. It is now evident that if the cream of such milk be made into butter, the butter may also carry the typhoid bacilli. Bolley and Field at the North Dakota station have shown that these germs may remain in active virulent condition for at least ten days. They also say, "We are inclined to think that under many conditions butter could be dangerously infected by typhoid for a much longer period, especially butter containing a large percentage of buttermilk." The possibility of danger on this score is often exaggerated, but it is well to know the fact.

Suggestions for Poultry Keepers.

Those who keep their poultry confined in small yards and have not much space to grow grass or other green food for them, can utilize small spots by setting out a few cabbage stumps or turnips if they have such. They will quickly sprout and throw out leaves that hens and chickens will eat greedily if they are allowed to go to them, or if the leaves are picked off and put in the yards. A bed of lettuce makes a good amount of feed for them, and there is nothing which they like much better. We suppose rape would also make a good green food easily grown.

Another suggestion we saw a few years ago, which we thought a good one, was to make gratings of laths nailed on strips of joists, and after sowing oats in the yard cover it up with those gratings. This keeps the fowl from scratching up the seed, the oats soon sprout, and as they come up above the gratings the hens will pick off the leaves, and yet they cannot graze it down enough to kill it off. The one who suggested this claimed that the oats would continue to grow for weeks in an effort to get large enough to make a head. Possibly a wire netting with mesh that the hens could not put their feet through would do equally well. The grating should be three or four inches from the ground, and the seed oats put in deep enough not to pull up when they try to pick it up. Certainly the hens and chickens need green food and they soon clear out the grass in small yards. --The Cultivator.

Kindness in the Dairy.

After living for nearly half a century upon dairy farms, one may perhaps be excused from the charge of being egotistical, if certain conclusions are arrived at with a good deal of confidence.

Along this line we have learned that the exercise of kindness in the management of the dairy cow should be made one of the rules without an exception. We say dairy cow in distinction from the family cow, admitting that there may be individual cases in which violence to the animal will result in submission and good behavior. But if such cases exist at all they are certainly very rare.

We speak, as intimated before, from long experience. And we would almost blush to tell how we have used stools, shovels, clubs, and, in fact, any thing available, even to a pitchfork, in our determination to rule the unruly cow. This was in the long ago.

When about twenty-two years of age we went in debt for quite an amount for a dairy farm and so it became necessary for us to study every phaze of the dairy business with the utmost care. About this time we had the good fortune to have two object lessons brought to our attention—one by a neighbor of the violent "rule or ruin" kind, who kept a raw-hide constantly at hand, and whose cows were so terrified by the approach of a man that some of them were quite sure to kick at any one who attempted to pass through the stable behind them; the other by an old dairyman who stabled thirty cows night and morning and who proceeded to milk them with seemingly as little thought of danger from their heels as he would have done had they been fastened to the floor.

He explained to us the secret of it all in a very few words. He never corrected his cows for any thing. He did not even speak to them when sitting down to milk, and if a cow for any reason whatever became habitually disagreeable she was sent to the block and not allowed to disturb the peace of the entire dairy. His counsel has, I am confident, been worth hundreds of dollars to the writer. The kicker is and has been for many years an unknown quantity in our dairy of twenty-four cows.

We do not mean by this that when for any reason milking causes pain our cows stand just as quietly as if all was well, But we do mean to say that they do not know what fear is when their heads are fast in the stanchions. Loose cows do not hook them, for horns with us are out of fashion.

They are not whipped or even scolded when they warn us that "it hurts," but we simply study the cause and its cure and are just as good friends as ever.—E. B. James in Farm, Field and Fireside.

Modern Way of Making Bordeaux Mixture.

For two or three seasons the experiment station of Cornell university has been trying to discover the best method of making bordeaux mixture. In Bulletin 156, this station gives directions which are simple and very efficacious: Into a barrel of water suspend a gunny sack or other porous bag, containing two pounds of copper sulphate (blue vitriol) for every gallon of water in the barrel. If this is suspended near the surface of the water at night it will be in solution by morning and ready for use. Into a watertight box or other open receptacle place some freshly burned caustic lime, the amount to be determined somewhat by the amount of spraying to be done, but from forty to fifty pounds of lime can be slaked at one time. Add sufficient water to thoroughly slake all the lime and keep well stirred so that the water may come in contact with all particles. This thorough stirring is important.

After the lime is all slaked, cover with water and it is then ready for use and may be kept for any length of time desired if it is always kept covered with water. Ferrocynide of potassium may be purchased from the drug store, and comes as a solid. One ounce of this dissolved in one ounce of water will be sufficient for testing many barrels of the bordeaux mixture. When it is desired to begin spraying, there should be provided two empty barrels. Into one barrel dip three gallons of the copper sulphate solution after it has been thoroughly stirred. This will provide the six pounds of copper sulphate in case two pounds were dissolved per gallon of water and will be sufficient for making one barrel or forty-five gallons bordeaux mixture. Dilute the three gallons with ten or more gallons of water.

From the lime box dip from five to ten pounds slaked lime into the empty barrel. Add water and stir thoroughly until the milk of lime is produced, after which dilute with some ten gallons more of water. Pour the milk of lime thus diluted through a sieve into the dilute copper sulphate solution. The quantity of lime to be added to the copper sulphate is to be determined by the ferrocynide of potassium test. After adding a small amount of the milk of lime to the copper sulphate solution, add to the mixture a drop of ferrocynide of potassium. If a brick red color is produced where the drop strikes, it indicates that more lime is needed. Continue adding the milk of lime until no reddish color will be produced when the ferrocynide of potassium is used. A few trials will enable one to judge very accurately as to the amount of lime required. A little surplus lime will do no harm.

If paris green is to be used it should now be added. Take four ounces of paris green and place it in a dish and add water just sufficient to make a paste, stir thoroughly until a homogeneous mixture is formed. Pour this paste into the mixture of lime and copper sulphate and stir vigorously. Pour the lime and copper sulphate mixture into the spray barrel, which should have a capacity of forty-five to fifty gallons, and fill the barrel with water. If there is no agitator in connection with the pump, the mixture should be frequently stirred while being applied.

Agricultural Brevities.

Probably the best fall feed for sheep consists of rape and turnips.

Celery requires a great deal of water and should be irrigated frequently.

Irrigation may easily be overdone, particularly after the field has been under water for several years.

Clover can frequently be grown with some kinds of small grain without lessening the yield of the nurse crop, but this is not always the case.

The plum sphinx, when abundant, may be controlled by spraying with paris green. Hand picking will ordinarily keep these insects in check.

Fall plowing, when the land is not liable to destructive washing, is the best method of conserving the moisture which falls during the fall and winter months.

Never leave empty hives standing out in the hot sun in which you wish to hive swarms. Keep them under a tree or in the cellar, so that they will be cool when wanted. Swarms will readily desert an overheated hive.

Overfed hens often have sour stomachs and a condition similar to dyspepsia. Char a little corn on the cob and give them carbon in this agreeable form as a sweetener, or take a little old dry corn and bake it in an oven until it is somewhat blackened. Feed while warm.

A Wall Street Conundrum.

An old customer walked into his broker's office the other day and after pondering awhile with the tape in one hand and his forehead in the other, he turned to the head clerk and said:

I want to sell 100 shares of American blank stock."

"Yes, sir."

"But wait a minute. It is selling at 77. I have 200 shares. One hundred I bought at 76, the other at 78. Now which should I sell."

"Well, let's see," said the clerk, but as he began figuring he looked up, a gleam of fire in his eye, and it was by an effort that he remarked that the puzzled questioner was an old, old customer.

"Yes, sir," the old man explained. "I asked my wife about it last night and she insisted that I should sell the hundred I bought at 76; I did arithmetic for her for three hours, but she insisted that I should not take a loss when I might just as well have a profit. I thought you might make it simple enough to me to enable me to make it possibly clear to her. But I guess I'd better just do as she says. Sell the hundred I bought at 76, please." —New York Commercial Advertiser.

War and Civil Expenses.

For the first two months of the new fiscal year our government has expended $102,969,090.33, of which $21,066,489.81 has gone for the support of the civil and miscellaneous establishment, and all the rest for military expenses of one kind or another. The army got $34,262,080.06; the navy, $9,688,245.40; military pensions, $26,055,674.80, and interest on the war debt, $9,153,845.38, a total on the military side of the ledger of $79,159,845.64, or at the rate of $474,959,073.84 a year for warlike outgoes, while the total cost of the civil establishment was at the annual rate of $126,398,938.86.

At the present time not quite 80 per cent. of the expenses of carrying on this peaceful country are on account of wars, past, present and anticipated, but the ratio is nearer to 80 per cent. than to any other round figure. Is there any other country, free or despotic, which spends a larger proportion of its income on war? I do not know, because I have not had the opportunity to look up the statistics, but I should be surprised, indeed, to find that any country of high civilization, or pretending to high civilization, spends four times as much on war and warlike preparations as on all its civil expenses put together. It is difficult to comprehend that, with hardly a realization of it by the people, we are becoming the most warlike of nations, so far, at least, as outlay on military matters goes.

Moreover, the taxes are largely taking on a new form. They are coming home to men's business and bosoms more closely than heretofore. The indirect taxes of the tariff, which have, from the beginning of the republic, been the mainstay of the federal government, are so no longer. For the first two months of the new fiscal year the receipts from the tariff were $37,518,151.53, while the receipts from the indirect taxes of the internal revenue were $52,559,613.96.—Buffalo Express.

The assertion comes from Germany that the majority of people are not only right-handed, but also right-sighted. By this is meant that most people see better with the right eye than with the left, and habitually, though unconsciously, employ it more. Some persons, however, make greater use of the left eye than of the right, and accordingly are said to be "left-eyed."

Coaling at Sea.

A method of coaling steamers while at sea has been devised, and apparently possesses such merit as to attract the attention of the government to such an extent as to lead to a practical trial under the direction of Naval Commander Bowles. The device is that the warship or collier may be in tow; the intervening distance—about one hundred yards—is spanned by elevated cables, which convey the coal from the collier to the vessel very rapidly, thus allowing steamers to be coaled at sea while under headway.

Dryest City in the United States.

Albuquerque, N. M., has the record of the greatest number of sunshiny days in the year of any town on the American continent. The records show a period of three years in which there were but two totally cloudy days; in other words, days in which the sun was not visible at some time between the hours of rising and setting. And the signal service announced, in one of its publications, not long ago, that the "Point of least annual rainfall in the United States is at Albuquerque, N. M." This would not be a good recommendation to farmers who expect to raise crops by rainfall, but in a country where all farming depends upon irrigation this is considered the best condition, because the farmer always knows "exactly where he is at," and never has his business interfered with by the clouds. But even more important than that is the fact that it makes the ideal climate for health and pleasure. It has already made this section a national sanitarium for people affected with lung disease. The air is so dry, except during the short rainy season in July and August, that the evaporation is a foot a month, and the natives preserve their fresh meats during the hottest weather in summer by cutting it into strips and hanging it out on the clothes line, where, instead of spoiling, it becomes jerked beef in two or three days, and can be stored away like corn or potatoes. It is this dryness of the air that gives relief to the patients suffering from lung diseases.

Friday for America.

It scarcely behooves Americans to be superstitious about Friday, so far as the feeling would cause them to look on that day of the week as unlucky. Here is the reason why:

Friday, Columbus sailed on his famous voyage of discovery.

Friday, ten weeks later, he discovered America.

Friday, St. Augustine, Fla., the oldest town in the United States, was founded.

Friday, the Mayflower, with the Pilgrims, arrived at Plymouth.

Friday, George Washington was born.

Wireless Telegraphy.

With respect to the future extension of wireless telegraphy over long distances, we may be content to wait until the method shall have been practically developed over the shorter distances to which it is clearly applicable, and for which there is a wide field of usefulness. Without indorsing the extravagant claims of some writers on the subject, we would remind our readers of the wonderful delicacy of the automatic magnetic recording instruments in daily use at the Kew observatory and in Washington, D. C., and elsewhere. Whenever a spot appears on the surface of the sun the instruments at these observatories instantly announce the fact by recording a change in the magnetic equilibrium of the earth. If such a record can be obtained from a disturbing cause nearly 100,000,000 miles away from the earth, is it not reasonable to believe that man, with his magnetism and the increasing control which he is acquiring of these forces, may be able before very long to cause a change in the magnetic equilibrium of the earth at Washington which will be detected by the delicate instruments at the Kew observatory? Should this be actually accomplished, the sending of intelligible communications would be a mere detail well within the capacity of the inventors.—Philadelphia Record.

NOTES OF SCIENCE.

Iced chloroform, says the Medical Times, has been used as an anæsthetic in Prof. Shorbury's clinic in the Julius hospital, at Wurzburg, Bavaria. It was employed in over 14,000 cases with immunity from unpleasant results in all. This preparation of chloroform, it is claimed, is quicker in action, comparatively free from danger and does not induce nausea and depression.

Shipping World describes a deep sea diving boat, the invention of a Tunisian engineer, M. Platti del Pozzo, who is said to have carried out a series of successful trials with it at Cherbourg. The craft is spherical, three metres in diameter, and is fitted with three screws and a species of combined dredge and grapnel, that can be used to pick up cables and other objects. So far the experiments have been carried out at depths varying down to 170 feet. The inventor announces his intention of searching for the hull of the Alabama, which was sunk opposite Cherbourg by the Kearsarge during the American civil war.

A very curious fruit has been discovered growing wild in Batavia, and a sample has been sent to a French professor of botany at Paris. It appears, says the Scientific American, to be a species of bean resembling a cigar both in form and color, though only about an inch in length. But it has a peculiar characteristic which renders it a very unique and interesting object, and this is the exceedingly energetic manner in which it scatters its seeds. If one of these little fruits be thrown into a basin of water, it will rest quietly on the surface for from two to five minutes; then it will explode with violence, hurling most of its contents into the air with a noise and splash like a small torpedo. It is hardly necessary to say that this phenomenon is caused by the pressure of the elastic substance of its interior overcoming the resistance of its hard outer shell. The fruit usually splits open lengthwise. If plucked before maturity and allowed to ripen in a warm spot, it opens gradually from apex to base, making, as it were, a pair of diverging horns starting from the same point. If left to ripen on the plant—since the process is quicker and the internal moisture greater—the opening is sudden and accompanied with a slight noise, though this is much less than that which takes place when it has been placed in the water. In this case the dry but porous tissue of the fruit quickly absorbs the liquid, especially at the grooves caused by the junction of the two valves or outer shells of the fruit. The internal tissue, being very elastic, exerts upon the latter a tension which soon results in the violent bursting already described. The curious property of explosion is given the little plant for the dissemination of its seeds, which would otherwise stand a poor chance of propagating its species.

THE GREAT NAVAL PARADE

NATION SHOWS ADMIRATION FOR THE HERO OF MANILA BAY.

DEMONSTRATION WITNESSED BY OVER A MILLION PEOPLE

Was the Greatest and Most Impressive Event New York City Has Ever Known.

The great naval parade in honor of Admiral Dewey occurred at New York Friday afternoon.

No victorious king or prince, coming home from a successful war, ever received such a magnificent ovation as overwhelmed the hero of Manili Bay as he stood on the bridge of the Olympia at the head of a magnificent fleet of steel thunderers of the deep, followed by a thousand vessels of peace, each tiered and coated with people, and sailed over the waters of the upper bay and up the broad pathway of the sunlit river, whose banks were gay with millions of flags and streamers dancing in the wind.

The weather was ideal, the water was rippled under the fresh wind that held out flags straight and jaunty, and the wharves and piers and rocky heights and grassy knolls were black with frantic, enthusiastic people, who strived weakly to make their shouts heard above the perfect bedlam of tooting whistles that accompanied the admiral ashore and afloat.

As the tomb of General Grant on Riverside driveway was reached, the fleet paid its tribute to the memory of the great warrior with a national salute of twenty-one roaring guns. The fleet then anchored and reviewed the almost endless procession of craft that steamed past, so burdened with humanity that they looked as if they would turn turtle before they got back to their piers. Toward the end the parade became disorganized, and it took hours for the heterogenous flotilla to get by. Darkness at last brought relief to the tired admiral, who had stood on the bridge for six hours bowing his acknowledgments to the stentorian expression of homage.

People who went down the bay were lost in admiration of the display of bunting along the water front.

On East river from the bridge to the battery where the sailing craft lay in droves the spars were covered with such a mass of color as might be compared to a maple grown hillside in the deep autumn. The tall spars of the clippers were conspicuous for their ensigns and signals. Every craft in the harbor was decked out from stem to stern with all the grace and attractiveness known to shippers.

It was exactly 1 o'clock, the hour fixed for the start, when the fleet, with anchors shore-hove, began to move. The ships had swung to the flood tide and were pointing down stream. They faced about as on pivots, and headed for the Hudson, followed by the long line of vessels in civic parade.

When the ships had straightened out for their journey across the upper bay, the spectacle they made will ever be treasured in the memory of those who saw it.

Farragut's Flag Unfurled.

Just as the signal to weigh anchor was given, a pull on the halyards opened the roll and spread the four-starred flag which Farragut flew as he ran the fort in New Orleans. It was the flag which was presented to Admiral Dewey. As it broke upon the breeze, sailors at their stations and the marines on the quarter deck greeted it with the hip, hip, hooray we got from our ancestors. The flag floated proudly all through the pageant.

On the north beam of the Olympia was the escorting ship Sandy Hook, with the mayor and other dignitaries aboard, and in her wake at intervals of 400 yards, stretched out a mile long, were the great towering warships, the armored cruiser New York, the battleships Indiana and Massachusetts, cruiser Brooklyn, second-class battleship Texas, the old wooden Lancaster, the gunboat Marietta and the Chicago, the flagship of the South Atlantic squadron.

Old glory fluttered from each masthead and taffrail. On each quarter of the New York were the black low-lined torpedo boats, three on each side. The rest of the procession trailed out for miles. Slowly and majestically the procession moved.

Admiral Dewey went up on the after bridge as soon as the start was made and remained there throughout the parade, a heroic figure outlined against the skies for the thousands afloat and ashore.

LATEST PICTURE OF ADMIRAL DEWEY.

Remarkable Was the Demonstration.

New York has never witnessed before anything approaching such a wonderful, remarkable demonstration. The Columbian naval parade, the dedication of Grant's tomb and the reception of the North Atlantic squadron last fall, all pale before this gigantic ovation to the sailor, who, in a single morning, destroyed an enemy's fleet without the loss of a man or a ship. It is not beyond the mark to say that three million people viewed the pageant from ashore and that a quarter of a million were afloat.

When New York turned out to the celebration Friday morning a light haze hung over the harbor, but this was soon dissipated by the bright sun which bathed sea and city in its brilliant radiance.

HANNA GIVES ADVICE.

Senator Declares Dewey Does Not Aspire to the Presidency.

The Pittsburg Post publishes the following:

"United States Senator Mark Hanna says this of the possibility of Admiral Dewey for the presidency:

" 'The practice of continually placing the name of Admiral Dewey on the prospective list of presidential candidates is indecent. It is an insult and a great injustice to the hero of Manila bay himself, as he has frequen ly said that nothing in the world would induce him to run for president or any other political office.' "

"SMOKER" FOR JACKIES.

Sailors of the Olympia Entertained At the Waldorf-Astoria.

The sailors of the Olympia had a night of joy in New York Saturday as a fitting end to their day of triumph. Its chief pleasures were a supper, concert and smoker served to them in that order in the Waldorf-Astoria. They were there 250 strong, on shore leave, and free of all restrictions. With them were twenty-five men from each of the other ships at anchor in the river, good fellows all, and selected on that account.

The jackies enjoyed the program immensely. They applauded each act vigorously.

FAKE TELEGRAMS UPSET MARKET

Cotton Exchange In New Orleans Is Hard Hit.

WAS WORK OF SWINDLERS

Fleecy Staple Was Fictitiously Raised Fifty-Four Points.

The wildest panic ever witnessed on the floor of the New Orleans cotton exchange occurred Friday shortly after business opened, and caused, in the midst of intense excitement, the complete suspension of business pending the investigation of what, at the moment, was assumed to be a gigantic conspiracy to swindle the cotton exchanges of the country.

The panic was due to an apparent terrific jump in the price of cotton based on alleged Liverpool advices, and it was estimated that, roughly, $170,000 had been lost on local transactions as a result.

Later in the day the exchange, after receiving legal advice, declared null and void all future transactions of the day. This action, however, promises to be bitterly contested, and a nest of litigation is likely to be the final outcome.

The market at Liverpool opened 3 3 32d lower on spots and 4-46d down on deliveries, as compared with Thursday's values, and continued without material change for some time. Then the wires became hot with tales of rapidly advancing prices. They started uy ½-64 at a time at first and then jumped 1-64, 1¼-64d, 2-64d and 2¼-64d in quick order, until the net advance up to 9:45, local time, showed41-64d. In the meantime New Orleans had opened, under the influence of Liverpool's advance, 21 to 24 points higher than Thursday evening's closing and quickly climbed 30 points additional. Then the explosion came.

With an unaccountable advance of 54 points facing them, operators began to receive wires from Liverpool asking the reason for the heavy gain in prices in the market, and stating that values in the English market still stood about at the opening figures.

These cables, in the face of from 40,000 to 50,000 bales sold and purchased, threw the operators into a frenzy of excitement, and they surged, shouting, yelling and gesticulating about the ring as President Parker rushed to his desk and summoned, without the usual formalities, a meeting of the exchange.

Amid tumultous scenes a motion to suspend business was gasped out by a wildly excited broker and with a tremendous shout it was unanimously carried.

Manager West, of the Western Union Company, as soon as he got wind of the sensational advance, set his wires to work flashing messages of inquiry to New York. Replies came promptly directing that all specials in reference to Liverpool fluctuations be suspended until they could be confirmed by the 4 p. m. report.

In the face of these reports and the advices from Liverpool, President Parker convened the directors early in the afternoon, and it was then concluded to close the future market until Monday, in order to permit the brokers to recover from their shock and enable an investigation to be concluded, fixing the blame for the remarkable blundering or the responsibility for the conspiracy.

Mr. John Gatins, of the Southern exchange, said he thought the operators of this big attempt at swindling must have been buying New Orleans cotton very heavily of late and wanted to get a chance to unload at a big profit.

As yet no clew has been found to the guilty parties.

EXCITEMENT IN SAVANNAH.

Fake Quotations Fool Cotton Men In the Forest City.

Many Savannah, Ga., cotton men suffered by Friday's fraudulent quotations sent out to the cotton exchange in the Forest City as well as elsewhere in the country. Some Savannahians bought as high as 5,000 bales on the upward bound, and thought they had made small fortunes.

TILLMAN PAYS UP.

Senator Gives Check For What He Owes the State.

According to a Columbia dispatch Senator Tillman has paid the amount which the investigating committee found he owed the penitentiary for the brick, oats and other things wrongfully received by him during the term of Superintendent Neal.

The senior senator has sent his check for $109.06 to the attorney general.

The bondsmen of Colonel Neal have made good his shortage to the amount of $2,000. The state will only lose about $2,600 for which the bondsmen are liable.

"An old age pension" means that every wage earner shall by public authority be insured, so that when he reaches an age when he can do no more work he and his wife can lead an existence worthy of human beings, without being compelled to go to the poorhouse. Is this not worth the attention of Americans? Should we not at least begin to think of this and discuss it? asks the New York Journal.

DEWEY VIEWS LAND PARADE

GRAND CLIMAX OF DEMONSTRATIONS IN HONOR OF MANILA HERO.

ENTHUSIASM IS UNBOUNDED

Fifty Thousand Loyal Defenders Were In Line.

Schley Received Ovations Only Second To Those Accorded the Man of the Hour.

The land parade in New York Saturday in honor of Dewey capped the climax. The city, state and nation united in one vast demonstration worthy of the hero of Manila. Fifty thousand men were in line and the air was torn with the shouts of millions. The naval parade of Friday was a magnificent and superb spectacle, but the wonder of modern times was the great land parade which occurred Saturday.

Thousands of brave men of our land and sea forces, militia of fifteen states and the veterans of the civil and Spanish-American wars swelled the procession and gave it the dignity in size that it boasted in sentiment. Walls of people, miles long, stretched down the line of march on either side, a dense, impregnable mass. Fifth avenue from Fifty-ninth street to the Washington arch at Fourth street, where the parade disbanded, was solidly packed with spectators, who overflowed into the buildings and windows and on to the roof lines, sat in embrasures and crowded scaffolding.

Along Broadway where it crossed the avenue the skyscrapers were as crowded at the top as at the bottom, and for blocks down the intersecting streets tenants hung from the windows and fire escapes, and multitudes of them were on the roofs lying flat on their stomachs peering down. For hours they waited patiently and good naturedly to see Dewey, and when they saw him they waited on unconsciously for three hours and a half while the whole procession passed.

The first ceremony of the day was the presentation from the city hall of a gold loving cup to the admiral by Mayor Van Wyck in behalf of the city of New York.

Parade Begins.

Seventeen aerial bombs from the top of the Waldorf-Astoria heralded the approach to the reviewing stand in Madison Square. Jackies of the Olympia marching rank on rank at the head of the column, their appearance being the signal for great cheering.

The commander was on foot, walking in front of his men as army officers do. A squad of sailors dragging a rapid-fire six-pounder brought up the rear of the Olympia battalion.

Then came the hero, the admiral, and the officers of the fleet. All were in open barouches and at their head was the man of the hour. Mayor Van Wyck sat beside Admiral Dewey in the carriage. The front seat was banked with beautiful floral pieces.

The admiral was recognized on the instant and the cheers and hurrahs that had greeted the Olympia's men seemed tame compared with the shout they raised.

The gallant captains of the ships engaged in the destruction of Montejo's fleet, except poor Gridley, who died a month after the battle, followed and also got a rousing welcome.

The three admirals, Howison, Sampson and Philip, as they rode by with their brilliantly accoutred staffs, were easily recognized and got flattering applause, as did many of the popular officers of the north Atlantic squadron.

The governors of the several states, who rode in carriages, though many of them were popular and would have received big demonstrations at any other time, passed almost unnoticed. The crowds would have none of them. They yearned only for the brass buttons and gold lace of military and naval heroes and would have nothing else. Both Major General Miles and Major General Merritt got ovations.

But it was Rear Admiral Schley who divided the honors with the central figure of the day.

He received a demonstration second only to that of Dewey. People all along the line fairly arose at sight of him, shouting their already lacerated throats to the breaking point.

"Hurrah for the hero of Santiago."

"There is the man that smashed Cervera's fleet."

"Hip, hip, hurrah for Schley," and kindred cries came from all parts of the line.

In upper Fifth avenue some enthsiastic lady threw him a handful of roses. They landed fairly in the carriage. The admiral leaned forward, picked them up and lifted them to his lips. Instantly all the ladies in the balcony seemed possessed with the desire to have their flowers similarly honored and he was fairly bombarded. Many of the flowers fell into the street, only to be caught up by eager spectators and carried to the carriage. Before he got to Madison square, Admiral Schley was up to his arms in flowers.

The marines and sailors of the north Atlantic squadron, eight battalions of them, attracted much attention.

Governor Roosevelt, riding a spirited black horse at the head of the national guard of New York and surrounded by brilliantly uniformed officers, received a hearty ovation from one end of the line to the other.

The national guard of all the states made a brilliant showing and were evidently proud of their appearance and of the reception they received.

Before Madison Square was reached Admiral Dewey and the receiving party, in carriages, passed the front of the procession and alighted at the reviewing stand opposite Twenty-sixth street, and took their places in the boxes reserved for them. There for the first time the admiral saw the great arch of victory erected in his honor. Captain Coghlan and Captain Wildes joined him a moment later, the crowds cheering like mad. Here the admiral reviewed the entire parade.

Admiral Schley was very warmly received at the reviewing stand. He smiled constantly and bowed to right and left. He and General Miles both carried bouquets of flowers presented by some enthusiasts on the line of march.

The greatest applause given to any of the military organizations was accorded to the crack Tenth Pennsylvania regiment, which got back from the the Philippines a short time ago. This regiment marched in the regulation khaki uniform which they wore during their service before Manila. The colors, torn to tatters, set the crowd wild with enthusiasm.

Next to the reception to the Tenth Pennsylvania was that to the Georgia troops, who marched by with state and national colors flying to the tune of "Dixie." They were loudly cheered.

About 600 veterans of the civil war were in the parade and about 200 of these were Grand Army men.

There were several thousands of veterans of the Spanish war. Most of them wore their service clothes and were repeatedly cheered.

The unarmed section passed quickly in review and the parade was over. It had taken just three hours and twenty-eight minutes to pass. The first body of the admiral's sailors passed him at 2:12 p. m. The last man in line went by at 5:40 p. m.

Hardly had the ambulances, which brought up the rear, pulled under the arch when squadron "A" galloped into place for the admiral, ready to escort him to his hotel.

Saturday night a smoker given at the Waldorf-Astoria to the sailors of the Olympia concluded New York's wonderful reception of Admiral Dewey and his men.

Admiral Dewey was very tired at the end of the parade. He was driven at once to the residence of Manager Boldt, of the Waldorf-Astoria, escorted by squadron "A," and accompanied by Mayor Van Wyck. He dined with his lieutenants, Brumby and Caldwell.

Admiral Dewey did not attend the "smoker." He was feeling too fatigued to leave his apartments, and retired at 10:15 o'clock

PRESIDENT ISSUES ORDER

Closing All Departments When Dewey Visits the Capital.

The president issued the following executive order Friday:

"It is hereby ordered that the several executive departments, the government printing office and the navy yard and station at Washington, be closed on Tuesday, October 3, to enable the employes to participate in the ceremonies attending the reception of Admiral Dewey, U. S. N., and the presentation of a sword of honor to him as authorized by a joint resolution of congress, approved June 3, 1898. WILLIAM MCKINLEY."

UNION MEN WON.

FIGHTING IN VENEZUELA.

Government Troops and Rebels Engage In Bloody Battles.

The state department has received a dispatch from the United States consul at Puerto Cabello, Venezula, in which he gives a summary of the several encounters between the government and rebel forces in that country.

In one of the collisions in the town of Cordero General Castro was attacked by nearly 5,000 government troops under Fernandez. His force consisted of about 3,000 men. A terrible battle was fought, reports placing the loss of the government at nearly 1,500 killed and wounded.

AGUINALDO ON TOP?

London Paper Believes Rebels Are Getting the Best of It.

The London Times publishes long extracts from a private letter from Manila, whose writer asserts that Aguinaldo is getting the best of it; that the Americans are making no practical progress; that Aguinaldo has regained his influence over the villages and has lately obtained a lot of money with which he is endeavoring to foment disturbances in Manila.

THE * CHRONICLE.

F. W. GUST, Editor and Publisher.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana Ala., as second class matter.

IN ANSWER TO THE GOVERNOR.

Dear Governor—We have read your circular-letter with great interest. You did not address a copy of it to us, but we presume that you will be glad to have the information you seek from this county, and as we have made some inquiries along the very lines you ask about, we take pleasure in giving you the benefit of what we have learned.

We note that you ask four things viz:

First—How do the people stand as to Mr. Bryan for President.

Second—Whom do they favor for Governor.

Third—Whom do they favor for Senator.

Fourth—Whether your administra- is favored or not.

As to the first three of these questions we can not understand what business it is of yours, or why you should want to know; but we are willing to tell you anyway.

Now, we have three classes of people in this section, so that we shall have to answer as to each class. We have Democrats, Populists and negroes.

As to the two latter classes we might make one answer do for all. The Populists are for anything or anybody that is anti-democratic, and the negroes are for—sale. To be more explicit, the Populists will be against Bryan if he is the Democratic nominee, just as they were in 1896. They will be for anybody for Governor who will be crazy enough to accept their nomination, and against the Democratic nominee, just as they were against you when you were the nominee. They would probably be for you for Senator, as the nearest a Populite a man can get to claim to be a Democrat, and because you fixed it so one of their leading politicians could get an office under your appointee. If they elect a representative he will vote for you if he gets a chance, because you prevented the disfranchisement of their negro allies, on whom they depend for election. They like some things about your administration, and some things they don't like. They got mighty mad when your first tax commissioner raised their taxes and cited them to trial, but since you have fixed it so they can escape and some corporations are raised while their friend Aldrich goes free they like it very well.

That is about all we can say for these two classes. As to the Democrats we can inform you more specifically. When we speak of Democrats we speak of about twelve hundred good citizens of the county who believe that the hope of the government lies in the perpetuation of Democratic principles, who recognize no duty except to their party and put no man's interest above it.

These recognize Mr. Bryan as the logical candidate for President. Most of them agree with him in his construction of the Chicago platform; all of them accept it as the law of their party. They differ with him on some questions not yet settled by the party, but they will support him, as all good Demociats will, if he is nominated. They regard him, as they regard every other man, subject to the will of the majority of his party; they deny him, as they deny every other man, the right to dictate its policies or to force it into a position that suits him and not the majority.

To be perfectly candid with you, Governor, these people have no choice for your successor, but they will vote for the nomination of no man whose position is not well known upon one question of local interest—the subserving of all things else to the one great object of perpetuating the rule of the white man in Alabama. They will be for that man whom they know to be honest and capable and who has the good of the State at heart rather than his own promotion. They will not be for a man who is a crank on any one subject, especially when that subject has little to do with Alabama affairs. They will not take very kindly to a man who tries his sails to every breeze and sails not long before any. You will excuse us from naming our choice, but if you are a good guesser you will see who it is we don't want.

As to your third inquiry, we speak for all the Democrats of that class described above. With the possible exception of ten, every man who calls himself a Democrat in Shelby County is for Jno. T. Morgan for the Senate. The reasons are too patent to discuss.

As to your administration the majority of Democrats, after balancing accounts, don't think altogether well of it. They give you credit for the good there is in it, but they think the bad outweighs the good. They like the possibilities of the back tax law, but they don't like the way it has been administered; they don't like the pension law that creates a large tax and gives very little to those who are entitled to it: they don't think much of a supernumary judge, who draws a big salary and does no work; they don't think much of an administration that gives $20 per capita to the pupils of the colleges and $1 per capita to the poor children; they don't think much of a business administration that sends the tax rate up to the constitutional limit, while values are being increased all the time. They don't like the way you have turned down the recommendations of their committee and themselves and appointed a man without recommendation who turned his office over to the worst enemy of the Democratic party in the county. They don't like the way in which you accomplished the defeat of the constitutional convention, and left the negro as the dominant factor in the political affairs of this county. They don't like your action in regard to the Montevallo school, nor your connection with its lands.

Perhaps, dear Governor, this compliance with your request for information will not please you; but it is the best we can give you, and we assure you that it is true from the different standpoints we have mentioned.

In conclusion, since you have told us how you stand on Bryan and what you think of your own administration, will you kindly tell us who you are for for Governor and Senator?

The finances of our county are not in good shape. Since the first of July over $7,000 has been spent by the county, and now the warrants of the county have been hawked about until the commissioners felt obliged to borrow the money for their payment. This was done, and $1,500 was secured this week for that purpose. The county still owes a balance on former borrowed money due on the first of January. Claims against the road fund are being paid out of the general fund, which has about exhausted the latter. The tax rate is above the constitutional limit, and in all probability payment of the excess will be refused, and trouble and expense will accrue. The people do not realize the condition of affairs as yet, but when they go to pay their taxes they will begin to feel it.

The Democratic State executive committee is called to met on the 10th instant, for the purpose of adopting some uniform date for county action. This is well. Uniform qualifications ought to be fixed, and one date for all county primaries. The committee should not attempt to dictate the plan of county nominations, because the counties are sovereign as to their local offices and for representation. This right should not be trifled with in any instance. No man's advantage should be considered by the committee, but on the other hand individual interest should be laid aside.

Cotton still continues to advance in price. Spots are selling here at 7¼ cents, at least 2½ cents higher than the market last year. The indications are that the crop will be under ten million bales, and that the price will be 8 cents in a few days. Yet it is doubtful if it is advisable to hold for a much higher price. The danger point seems to have been reached, and a drop is possible at any time. The farmer will have reaped a handsome advance at 7¼ cents, and the advisability of further holding is doubtful.

The Montgomery Journal don't like the meeting of the State committee at such an early day, and it don't want primaries in Montgomery County. It does want early primaries in some counties, presumably where it will do Johnston good. The Journal is hard to please.

The Age-Herald is boosting Mr. Tomlinson by way of the news columns. It would be more manly to advocate him in its editorial column. Everybody knows that Mr. Tomlinson has a large interest in the Age-Herald, and that his cause is very dear to its heart.

Association of Mine Operators.

W. E. Brinkerhoff, of the Montevallo Coal and Railway Co., at Dogwood, was in the city last week. While here he gave us the outline of a proposed association of mine operators in Alabama. The idea is original with him, and he will attempt to perfect it by getting all the owners in the State to join. The prime object will be for mutual pleasure and interest. The various individual owners and companies are being communicated with by Mr. Brinkerhoff, with a view to early organization. This gentleman has only been in the coal business for a short time, but he is thoroughly convinced of the great future of the coal business in this State, and the consequent good that would come of a frequent social gathering of the owners.

Mr. J. F. Pope, of Wilsonville, desires us to say to his many customers that he has just returned from Atlanta, where he secured a lot of bargains, and he proposes to be equally as liberal to his patrons. A beautiful line of dress goods, silk crepons, serges, etc. Big lot of dress prints in handsome designs at 5c; no cheap bundle goods included at this price. Drop in and examine his goods for yourself and see that he really means what he says.

Card of Thanks.

Please allow me space to return thanks to the good people of Columbiana for their prompt assistance in saving our house from destruction by fire on yesterday. We feel under special obligations to Robert Baker, Clyde Sterret and little Alf McMikel, colored, who were the first to reach the fire and by their heroic work kept the flames in subjection till other help arrived.

A DESERTED WIFE.

Man's Duplicity Brings a Family Woe.

BACK TO HER FATHER'S HOUSE.

A Runaway Match Turns Out Badly in the End.

The following story we take from the Birmingham News. The parties concerned are Shelby county people, and for that reason the story will be of interest to our readers:

Mrs. J. R. Moore, a handsome young woman, accompanied by her two children, little girls aged 3 and 5, all neatly attired, left here this morning on the Central of Georgia train for Weldon, Ala., a small settlement near Sterrett Station, where they go to live with the parents of Mrs. Moore.

Mrs. Moore was deserted by her husband, so she states, last Monday evening at Pratt City. They had been living there for some time. There were no tears in the eyes of Mrs. Moore when she told her story to a News reporter this morning, but it was evident that she had grieved herself until tears refused her. She is a pretty woman, devoted to her little daughters, but she had no words of reproach for her husband whom she alleges not only deserted his family for another woman with two children, but also left with money not belonging to him.

Mrs. Moore says that for some time her husband had not been treating her right; that he had not been faithful to the vows he took when they were married and she called his attention to it. She says he left her alone at nights with the children and did other things that faithful husbands do not do. She says that on last Monday he came in the evening and made preparations to go out again at night and she pleaded with him not to go. He said that he had promised some friends to go with them to Birmingham to the theatre, but inasmuch as she did not want him to go he would just step over to the car depot and tell the friends that he was not going. To show his wife that he would not go, said Mrs. Moore, he left the house without a collar and necktie and even had on a dirty shirt.

Mrs. Moore says that was the last time she saw him. She further states that she has been informed that he went away with a Mrs. Bell, who has two children, taking the children with them.

Mr. J. R. Moore was well and favorably known in Pratt City. He was in charge of the lumber yards of the Krebs' Manufacturing Company at Pratt City, and checked off the wagons as they went out and came in, handling, in the course of his work, considerable money. He worked under Mr. James A. Kirk, the general manager at Pratt City for the Company. The news of the alleged desertion of his family created considerable comment in Pratt City. Mrs. Moore, his wife, takes the matter as best she can.

"He had not been treating me right for some time," said Mrs. Moore, while seated in the car bound for her parents' home, "and I called his attention to it. He gave his family very little money and remained out at nights unreasonably. He gave me $5 last Sunday. He drew good money from the Company for whom he was working, and though he had money at all times he gave me little. A few days ago I mentioned to him his attention to another woman, and I told him he should either pay more attention to his own family or take up with the other woman altogether. I guess he has taken the advice. I called at the office of the Krebs' Company yesterday, and Mr. Kirk, the general manager, treated me nicely. He offered me all assistance to get home. I sold out our things and am now going home to my parents who live at Weldon, which is about nine miles in the country from Sterrett.

"I was informed by Mr. Kirk that when Mr. Moore left last Monday evening he had some money belonging to the company, something between $150 and $200. I did not get any of it. The company helped me to get home. I cannot say where Mr. Moore has gone, but he has treated me badly."

Though it was evident that Mrs. Moore was feeling badly, she gave vent to no tears. She is a pretty woman, speaks very intelligently and notwithstanding the alleged cruel treatment she seems to feel kindly disposed towards her husband. The little children stuck close to their mother as she told the pitiful tale.

Mrs. Moore is a daughter of Mr. F. P. Day, of Weldon, in this county. She was married to Moore about five or six years ago, at which time the couple ran away from home on account of the objection of her parents to her marriage. Moore has been doing very well at Pratt City, and had bought him a home there. Moore is a son of Robert Moore, of the Weldon neighhood. Both families are among the best in the county, and are well known.

COTTON IS WORTH MORE.

How the Farmer is Benefited by the Roundlap Bale.

The Atlanta Constitution, which recently published an elaborate report on the Roundlap bale of the American Cotton Company, in discussing the value of the new system of cotton handling, says: It is quite clear that, in order to raise the price which should go to the farmer for his cotton, the commercial expenses in handling it must be reduced.

Under present conditions, the pile of money required to handle the crop, from the gin to the factory platform, has grown out of all proportion, so that its commercial handling consumed the profit which should have gone to the grower. Viewed from this standpoint, therefore, every movement which delivers the farmer's cotton with least expense to the manufacturer must be regarded as of the widest public interest.

The new methods of round baling are on this line, doing away with much of the clumsiness and extravagance of the old system, and substituting one which can make of every cotton gin a compress as well. The claims of the round bale advocates show that we have entered upon an era of invention which means much to the farmer, and much, therefore, to the country.

They Should Know it.

Many women suffer untold agony and misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood. They have been led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for the many ills that beset womankind.

Neuralgia, nervousness, headache, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, rheumatism, a dragging pain or dull ache in the back, weakness or bearing-down sensation, profuse or scanty supply of urine with strong odor, frequent desire to pass it with scalding or burning sensation, sediment in it after standing in bottle or common glass for 24 hours are signs of kidney and bladder trouble.

The above symptoms are often attributed by the patient herself or by her physician to female weakness or womb trouble. Hence, so many fail to obtain relief, because they are treating, not the disease itself, but a reflection of the primary cause, which is kidney trouble.

In fact, women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same remedy.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is the great discovery of the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is easy to get at any drug store for 50 cents or $1.

To prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and book telling all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Kindly mention The Chronicle, and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Columbiana has been on her good behavior for the month past, and as a consequence the marshall is not growing sleek off the crumbs from the recorder's table. He has had no occasion to make an arrest for several weeks and thinks this is getting to be a good enough place for anybody to pitch their tent.

As positive and conclusive proof that THE CHRONICLE is read it is only necessary to remark that veritable cyclone of questions asked and rumpus raised when an unintentional misstatement of facts, strictly local in its character, is given room in these columns. Such occurrences are very infrequent, however.

The post-office at Shelby Springs was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning a little after midnight. Its contents, together with a small stock of goods kept in the building by the postmistress, Mrs. Pond, were destroyed. The blaze was discovered too late to save anything. We have not learned whether any insurance was carried on the building.

The thumb on one of the hands of J. M. Taylor, the miller, of Redlawn, was bitten almost entirely off last Sunday morning by a horse while he was in the act of feeding the animal. The thumb was dressed by physicians in this city a few hours after the occurrence, and it is considered probable that the wounded place will heal very readily.

Eugene Brasher, Ganie Tinney and Alphonso Verchot left Saturday for Birmingham, where they were examined and enlisted in a regiment which will see service in the Philippines. They will be sent to Nebraska, where a stop of some weeks will be made, and from there they go to San Francisco and take passage for the islands across the sea. The enlistment calls for eighteen months service.

A novelty in juries was seen here this week. By mistake a negro was drawn on the special jury in the case of the State v. Lizzie Lagrone, charged with infanticide. He would have been excused by the court. In this case on account of a defect in the indictment the case was nol prossed, but a new indictment has been returned, and the case will come up again.

The regular missionary collection at the Methodist Sunday school last Sunday was diverted into channels for the poor and applied to the needs of Mrs. Sanders, an estimable widow lady of this city. She is a most worthy subject and has been the recipient of many favors from our people, notable among them being the presentation of a house and lot by several generous-hearted citizens.

Some important deals in real estate have been transacted this week. C. C. DuBose has exchanged his house and lot on Main street for the Longshore residence on East College, the latter recently purchased by W. G. Parker. Mr. Parker becomes the owner of the DuBose place, and will reside there, while Mr. DuBose goes to the East College property. The exchange will not be effected till January 1.

A. B. Mitchell, a former citizen of this place and a well-known United States marshall, was arrested in Birmingham last Friday on a charge of assault with murderous intent upon a negro at that place a few weeks since. The negro was stabbed in a cheap restaurant in Birmingham sometime ago by a white man, the assailant making his escape soon after the commital of the deed. Deputy Mitchell was arrested upon suspicion and by the description given out, and turned over to the sheriff of Jefferson County.

An alarm of fire was given in yesterday morning, and this time it was the Smith residence on north Main, recently purchased by Major Pitts, that was found to be in danger of destruction. The fire was on the kitchen roof and was just getting under good headway when discovered. Very little damage was done by the blaze, but a considerable portion of the roof had to be removed to save the dwelling which, owing to the accumulation of trash in the gutters and extreme dryness of the timbers, would have burnt very readily.

The article in last week's paper stating that a meeting was in progress at the Presbyterian church and would continue into this week was published as the result of an announcement made from the Methodist pulpit on the Sunday preceding that services would begin on Thursday evening and that the series of meetings expected to begin at the Methodist church on next Sunday had been postponed through deference to this fact. As no services were held this explanation is published as a matter of news for those who failed to hear the bell and wish to know the why and wherefore of our evident exceeding eagerness to publish news before its incubation.

GRAND JURY REPORT.

After the Law Breakers with a Sharp Stick.

To the Hon. John Pelham, Judge:

We, the grand jury organized at this the fall term, 1899, of the circuit court of Shelby County, beg leave to report as follows:

We have dilligently inquired into all indictable offenses coming into our knowledge, and have returned 67 true bills.

We have examined the fee books of the probate judge and the sheriff's accounts for feeding prisoners, and report that no illegal fees have been charged and that the accounts kept by these officers are accurate and neat.

We find from an examination of the books and papers of the county superintendent of education that he has proper vouchers for all monies expended, and has on hand in cash the amount with which he is chargeable.

We have examined the books of the county treasurer, and report that his accounts and vouchers are correct, all monies expended being properly accounted for and the balance he has on hand in cash. We attach his report hereto.

We have carefully examined the bonds of all county officers and find them in proper form and with sufficient sureties, except the bond of the register in chancery. One of his bondsmen having died since the last term of court we recommend that another be required.

We find the county jail clean, and the prisoners make no complaint of their treatment. We find the jail in good condition.

We have visited the county poor house. It is clean and nicely kept, and a sufficient amount of food provided. We recommend that the county commissioners make provision for the welfare of the sick in the poorhouse, as the ordinary fare can not be used in case of sickness. There are now thirteen persons in the county poorhouse. The building needs some repairs. Several window panes should be put in before winter; the water closet needs repairing; one porch shed is in a dangerous condition, and two doorsteps should be repaired. These matters need immediate attention.

We wish to express our thanks to the judge and also to the solicitor for their kindness and assistance. We also thank our bailiff and the other officers for kindness and dilligence in waiting on the grand jury. Having finished our labors, we ask to be discharged.

Rev. Mr. Bently, of Goodwater, has been elected pastor of the Baptist church for another year and will accept.

Quite a number of our people are attending court this week.

That famous goose case of Creswell was tried again here last week. This is a case where two parties are claiming six geese, and the rights of property are being tried. An appeal has been taken to circuit court, and the cost already has amounted up to $22. Now it will be next spring before another court, and the question arises, Who will the feathers and eggs fall to until then while the geese are in custody? Will your Wilsonville correspondent please answer.

Misses Stella Posey, Meeda Kidd and Jeffie Bell have gone to the Montevallo school; Messrs. Oliver Caldwell, Vinett Smith, Wallace Walthall and Charles Borum have gone to the Military Institute, and Earl Martin is in a business college at Nashville, Tenn. We wish them all much success in their studies. Their presence will be missed by all of Harpersville and their coming back home next summer will be looked forward to with much pleasure. What town in the county, yea, the State, of its size has done as well in the educational line as Harpersville? We now have an eight-months free school, and those people living in adjoining towns who have children to educate and want to prepare them for college would do well to patronize the Harpersville school.

ASSESSOR PITTS COMPLIMENTED.

Further Report of Examiner Purifoy on Shelby Officials.

We are in receipt of the further report of State Examiner Purifoy upon the books and accounts of Shelby County officials. Circuit Clerk Milner is shown to have remitted the State too much money, while Collectors Smith and Robertson both made errors which put them in debt to the State. Assessor Pitts is complimented for his efficiency.

W. R. A. MILNER, CLERK.

To Hon. Joseph F. Johnston, Governor:

I have examined the books and accounts of Hon. W. R. A. Milner, clerk of the circuit court of Shelby County, covering the period from November, 1892, to November, 1898, except for solicitor's fees, his accounts for which were checked from the fall term, 1897, of the circuit court, the date when such fees were required by law to be paid into the State treasury. This account, as shown by the auditor's books from the first payment into the State treasury, December 31, 1887, to June 30, 1891, was in a confused condition, not balancing for any of the years. I have restated it, which statement is shown by Exhibit A hereto attached, charging him with such sums as are legally due by him after deducting his legal commissions and uncollectable balances. In this statement are included two fees, No. 2168, A. J. Lawley, and 2273, J. T. Jones, convicted at the fall term, 1887, and collected but never reported. After crediting him with such payments as he is shown to have made there is a balance due him of $109.50. From June 30, 1891, to the end of his term, November, 1898, his reports and payments balance, and his account for these fees is correct. In the case of No. 2367, Henry Allen, convicted at the spring term, 1895, and for which judgment was confessed, execution was issued and regularly returned "no property." All other funds collected by him were paid into the treasury. I find, however, that in cases where the State has paid for the removal of prisoners from other counties to Shelby for trial and such prisoners were afterwards convicted and sentenced to hard labor for the county, such removal fees were not included in the costs for which the defendant was sentenced. Such cases, with the pro rata sum that would be due in each, is shown by Exhibit B hereto attached and aggregate $47.50. Mr. Milner states on oath that three presiding judges, two in the circuit court and one in the county court, instructed him not to include such fees in the costs for which the defendants were sentenced; that the legal course for him to pursue was to issue executions against the defendants, which he did in all cases. If these fees be charged against him his account with the State will stand as follows:

To removal fees not collected	$47 45
By amount overpaid on solicitors fees	$109 50
To balance due clerk		62 05
Total		109 50 109 50

JOHN H. ROBERTSON, COLLECTOR.

I have examined the books and accounts of John H. Robertson, tax collector for Shelby County, for the years 1896, 1897 and 1898, verifying his abstract books with the books of assessment filed by the assessor, and checking his stub books with his abstract books. I note an error in addition in the assessor's book for 1896 by which the collector is not charged with a sufficient sum on polls assessed by $84. The same error is shown in adding the polls in the collector's abstract book. The checking of the collector's stubs for 1896 shows the collection of several small sums of State and county tax and polls which are not included in the assessment made by the assessor nor in the assessments reported by the collector to the judge of probate, and hence have never been accounted for by the collector. A detailed statement of such taxes is hereto attached, and marked Exhibit A. In Collector Robertson's stub books for 1896 there are at least 125 blank stubs from which receipts have been detached. In the stub books for each of the other two years there are a few such stubs. No other errors for the last two years are noted. His account, as set forth in Exhibit B, hereto attached, shows that he is due the State and county the following sums:

State tax	$10 11
Special tax	90
Poll tax	112 66
County tax	7 71
Total	131 38

A. F. SMITH, COLLECTOR.

I have completed my examination of the books and accounts of A. F. Smith, former tax collector of Shelby County, for the tax years 1892, 1893, 1894 and 1895, and respectfully report that he is due the following sums on account of errors and omissions:

State tax	$274 19
Special State tax	22 26
Poll tax	19 87
County tax	157 24
Total	473 56

These sums are due after deducting commissions and adding interest. Exhibit A, hereto attached, contains a detailed statement giving the names of taxpayers and the sums paid by each, whose names are not shown on the regular assessment book filed by the assessor, nor are they shown among the names of taxpayers reported by the collector to the judge of probate, as having been assessed and collected by him. This information was obtained by checking the stub books of Collector Smith with the two assessments referred to in each year. For the tax year 1894 there appears on the assessment book, filed by the assessor, a supplemental assessment of lands to "Owners Unknown," the taxes on which are not included in the assessor's recapitulation, nor in the report of the collector to the judge of probate, and consequently is not charged to the collector. The records show that Collector Smith received the benefit of this assessment. The taxes due on this assessment are included in the above sums. The poll tax assessed by the collector was not entered by the judge of probate in the assessment book as was the property tax, and hence I had no way of checking this except by making up a list of such from the stubs and comparing the total reported and paid by the collector by the totals so obtained. On this basis it is shown that Collector Smith failed to report the correct sums for 1893 and 1895. The balances in each case are charged above.

JNO. S. PITTS, ASSESSOR.

I respectfully report that I have examined the assessment books prepared by Jno. S. Pitts, tax assessor of Shelby County, for the tax years 1897, 1898 and 1899, and found them neatly and correctly executed, except in a few instances I found inadequate descriptions of real estate. He informed me that these were unavoidable as he had not yet been able to obtain correct descriptions. In these, however, his work is a decided improvement over that of his predecessors, as the number of such descriptions are reduced considerably. His work shows that he is making his county an efficient officer. The county authorities are now having a revised plat book prepared by Mr. Quigley. I investigated his method of preparation, and am convinced that the book thus prepared will enable the assessor to clear up the ownership of many parcels of land heretofore claimed by more than one person and to fix the ownership to other parcels which appeared to have no owners. This is a commendable work and should be done in many other counties in the State. Mr. Pitts has prepared and filed his land book regularly. This is neatly prepared, but as in other counties shows more or less confusion of ownership to some parcels. These, however, are being rapidly reduced under Mr. Pitts's efficient work.

Respectfully submitted.
JNO. W. PURIFOY,
Examiner of Public Accounts.

FOR FARM AND GARDEN.

Plump Wheat Seed Desirable.

Canadian tests show that large plump seed produces six bushels per acre more than small seed and eight bushels more than shrunken seed. Seed grain which had been broken in threshing yielded only one-fifth as much as the large plump seed.

Don't Use Turnips for Ensilage.

A small experimental silo was filled with cut turnips and heavily weighted. The material contained 8.50 per cent. dry matter. The experiment was tried in midwinter, with cold turnips and in a cold room. There was no appreciable rise in temperature, and all went well for about two weeks when the mass gave way and fell in. There was too little dry matter, particularly of a fibrous nature, to hold together the mass. The result was as expected and the moral is, Don't.—Vermont Station Bulletin.

Give Calves Starchy Food Sparingly.

Never put corn, kaffir corn meal or any other grain in the milk for calves. The starch of corn has to be changed to grape sugar before it is digestible. This change only takes place in the presence of an alkali and is done chiefly by the saliva of the mouth. When corn is gulped down with the milk the starch is not acted upon by the acids of the stomach, but remains unchanged until it comes in contact with the alkaline secretions of the intestines. With hogs the stomach is small and the intestines long. This allows starchy matter to be digested in the intestines. The opposite is true with the calf, the stomach being large and the intestines short. Unless the starchy matter is largely digested by the saliva of the mouth, complete digestion will not take place in the intestines and the calf scours.—D. H. Otis in New England Homestead.

When to Feed Bees.

Between the blossoming of the fruit trees and the coming of a good honey supply from any other source there is usually a season when the bees obtain but little honey. They do not store a large amount from fruit blossoms, but it is enough to feed them well and induce them to breed rapidly. If they do not have a surplus when the apples blossom, it will happen at the end of the bloom, they will have a considerable amount of brood and brood comb, and a queen that is in good condition to go right on depositing eggs if she is kept supplied by the other bees with food.

If she is not she stops laying and the stores are used for the brood, often proving insufficient, and resulting in loss of brood by starvation. Certainly it results in the colony ceasing to increase until there is a new source of obtaining honey. It would undoubtedly be profitable to feed at this time, giving a supply of sugar syrup every day until it is found that they are obtaining honey from the fields again.

This should result in a large and strong colony, and possibly in swarming early. It is the old queen which goes out with the swarm, and if she gets well established with combs or foundation which she can quickly fill with brood, she may lead out another swarm from her new hive. Such a swarm would probably be better than a second swarm from the old hive.

Yet it may and often does happen that the colony in the old hive will send out their second swarm in eight or ten days after the first one left. It would be better in most cases to prevent this by cutting out any queen cells left after the swarm has gone, and that may be built there, and to encourage storing of surplus honey instead. The young queen left in the old hive after swarming may be in such haste to go as to result in two small and weak colonies, not as valuable as one strong one, and in a necessity of feeding both, while if kept from swarming, the entire colony may store a good amount of surplus honey, besides their winter supply.

To gain one new colony from the old one is doing well, and often two good ones may be obtained in a good season, but to increase fourfold is likely to result in the loss of one, at least, before winter ends, unless much care is taken and food given.

Stable Accommodations.

It has been unquestionably proven that the barn or stable in which the cows are kept should be built with an eye single to their use alone. The building should be large with an open lot, and thoroughly ventilated. The floors made of dirt, firmly packed down, should be raised about four inches higher than the outside ground. Each stall should be large enough to allow the cow plenty of room beside that of the milker. Shed rooms may be attached for storing the grain and forage, which may be thrown into the feed stalls through openings provided in the walls of the barn leading into the shed rooms. This would be convenient and also allow the feeding to be done quickly and under cover, if the weather was bad. For the best sanitary regulations there should be from 1000 to 1200 feet of cubic space prepared for every cow. Box stalls are better than open ones, as in the latter the cows have less space and it is necessary to tie them. In the open stall a manure gutter should be provided about 20 inches wide and shallow in depth. This should be well cleaned every day, the manure removed to a covered pen outside the building, if it is not convenient to have it at once broadcast on the land. The daily use of a small quantity of land plaster in the gutter and scattered over the stalls will greatly aid in retaining the ammonia, the highest and most valuable percentage of plant food in barn yard manure. At least twice a year whitewash the inside walls of the building, and keep the cobwebs carefully swept down. Close confinement in buildings not well ventilated is as injurious to the cow as it is to a human being. The perfect health of the herd is most important, any change in the appearance of the cow, her flow of milk, appetite, etc., should be immediately noted, by adopting a careful daily observation of the herd, and such remedies applied promptly as will correct the trouble. Long years of experience in the dairy business have proven that September and October are the best months for calving. From a month to six weeks is long enough to allow the cow to remain dry. It is best therefore that the dairy cow calve annually. There are a number of matters along this line of the business which cannot be covered in one article. The details of the dairying industry are quite lengthy and somewhat complicated. It is a business which requires much knowledge of details to secure that success which makes any business attractive to the investor.

The Treatment of Earth Roads.

Drainage is of the utmost importance to an earth road. Water is the greatest foe to all roads and especially so of earth roads, for if these are not dry they have no bottom at all. Thorough drainage must be provided for taking away the water which falls upon the surface and also that which would rise to the top from underlying springs. If the subsoil is of a springy nature it will be necessary to run a line of tile down the centre of the roadbed, or if the expense is no objection two on each side of the roadbed. Some will say a tile drain is of no use because the surface will become so hard that the water cannot find its way down to the drain. It is not such water we wish to remove by tiles, but the bottom water which if not removed would work its way up to the surface by means of the capillary attraction and keep the surface soft and springy so that it will cut up easily into ruts by passing wagons. When these ruts are filled by rains the evil is intensified.

In caring for the surface it is important to see that the ditches are of sufficient depth to carry off all the water that will fall during the heaviest rain storm. The culverts must be in working order so that there will be no ponds beside the road soaking into and through the roadbed, allowing it to cut and spring with every passing load. This is a very important point, as it is impossible to maintain a firm roadbed where water stands in ponds in the ditches during wet weather. The surface should be graded smoothly from the bottom of the ditches to the centre of the road, so that in passing a wide load you can drive into the ditch without danger of upsetting. By this means all rain water will be carried off the surface at once into the ditches.

A road of this kind should be carefully watched through the season. All ruts and holes should be filled immediately, as every passing wagon only makes them deeper, and the old adage, "A stitch in time saves nine," is as true in road building as in anything else. Ruts formed by travel if taken before the road gets baked too hard and dry can be filled by running the disk harrow over them and then rolling with a heavy roller, or better still, by means of a cheap and easily constructed road leveler. It is made by taking a single plank 4 or 5 inches thick and 15 or 17 inches wide. A piece of iron or steel 2 or 3 inches wide is bolted onto the bottom of the front side of the plank, while a couple of long iron braces will strengthen the tongue. This machine will cut the surface better if the tongue is put in at a slight angle so as to draw the cutting edge somewhat in the slant of the road grader. The use of this last named machine is to be highly recommended, especially for earth roads, for by its use the surface can be kept at all times oval and smooth with little labor. Unfortunately such machines are expensive, and where only one or two are owned in a township they are likely to be in use or at the farther end of the township when most needed. The use of the roller should not be neglected; a heavy roller should follow the road grader at all times.—American Agriculturist.

Stable Hints.

Let the horse have some exercise every day, otherwise he will be liable to disease.

Never dust a horse in his stable. The dust fouls the crib and makes him loathe his food.

When cool, dry and willing to eat let him have his oats and stand by while he consumes it.

Let the heels be well brushed out every night. Dirt, if allowed to cake in, causes grease and sore heels.

Look often at the animal's feet and legs. Disease or wounds in those parts, if at all neglected, soon become dangerous.

Use the currycomb lightly; when used roughly it is a source of great pain. To fine skinned horses it should never be applied.

When a horse is washed never leave him till he is rubbed quite dry and bandaged all round. He will probably get a chill if neglected.

When a horse comes in from a journey the first thing is to walk him about till cool, if he is brought in hot. This prevents him taking cold.

The next morning, after your horse has come home tired and wearied, let his legs be well rubbed by the hand. Nothing so soon removes soreness. It also detects thorns or splinters, soothes the animal and enables him to feed comfortably.

The next thing is to groom him quite dry, first with a wisp of straw, and then with a brush. This removes dust, dirt and sweat and allows time for the stomach to recover itself and the appetite to return. It also refreshes the animal. If he has been fasting long, give him a small quantity of hay during grooming.

Plague Of Kangaroos.

Trace a bit of mischief anywhere in the world and an American is as likely as not to be at the bottom of it. Like the plague of kangaroos in Brittany, France. An American who had lived in Australia bought an estate in Brittany and turned some kangaroos loose in his park. They have bred with great rapidity and—

"But the kick of the kangaroo—M'sieu—Mon Dieu! It is terrible!" say the peasants. They are not used to kangaroos.

The result of this and that is that the kangaroos now have to be hunted and exterminated, lest they become a nuisance. French dogs employed to chase them frequently get killed by kicks, and everybody is cursing the American who brought the animals to France.—New York World.

GOOD ROADS NOTES.

Better Roads in the South.

General Roy Stone, Director of Road Inquiry of the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, while in New York City recently, said that more activity is being displayed in road improvement than has been shown for years, not only in the construction of new roads, but in the general agitation for their construction.

"All the road machine manufacturers," he said, "are driven with orders and the office of Road Inquiry is overrun with applications for advice on road legislation and assistance in road construction. There are perhaps forty road conventions slated for this season—mostly in the Northwest—under the auspices of the Interstate Road Improvement Association. Object lesson roads are to be built at a number of agricultural colleges in the West and South. For this purpose machinery is loaned by the manufacturers through the office of Road Inquiry. The use of convict labor on road improvement is spreading rapidly through the Southern States. In one locality, near Charlotte, seventy miles of good stone roads have been built in this manner. I hope to interest the great concerns manufacturing automobiles in the improvement of highways. The misfortunes of the party now making the automobile trip across the country show the necessity for better roads for this class of vehicles."

To Improve Roads in Cuba.

The War Department has in contemplation a general improvement of the roads and highways in Cuba.

It is probable that with the inauguration of a system of road improvement, the present free distribution of rations to the natives in Cuba will be discontinued, and they will be put to work on the improvements. In several of the departments roads are already in existence, but they have become almost impassable because of neglect and lack of use. Within the past six months several improvement companies have started the cultivation of farms in Cuba, but they have been greatly handicapped by the bad condition of the roads, and the work has been carried on at a great disadvantage.

The proposition to put the Cubans to work on improvements in the island meets with the approval of the War Department officials. It is expected that reports from General Brooke will be received within a short time, and then a general plan for the repair of roads will be outlined under the direction of Assitant Secretary Meiklejohn and submitted to the President for his approval.

Use of Shells.

In many of the Eastern and Southern States road stones do not exist; neither is it possible to secure good coarse gravel. No such material can be secured except at such an expense for freight as to practically preclude its use for road building. Oyster shells can be secured cheaply in most of these States, and when applied directly upon sand or sandy soil eight or ten inches in thickness they form excellent roads for pleasure driving and light traffic. Shells wear much more rapidly than broken stone or gravel of good quality, and consequently roads made of them require more constant attention to keep them in order. In most cases they should have an entirely new surface every three or four years. When properly maintained they possess many of the qualities found in good stone or gravel roads, and so far as beauty is concerned they cannot be surpassed.

Gravel For the Surface.

Although it is impracticable, and in many cases impossible, for communities to build good stone roads, a surface of gravel may frequently be used to advantage, giving far better results than could be obtained by the use of earth alone. Where beds of good gravel are available this is the simplest, cheapest and most effective method of improving country roads.

The Anti-Rut Agitation.

Good roads are a necessity in the making of prosperous farmers.

There might be a hint to many farmers who desire to preserve the roads on which they ride to and fro in the sign seen on trees in various parts of Long Island. The sign reads: "Protect the road; don't drive in one track."

The interest in good roads has greatly increased, and no community worth living and working in can afford to do without this "important agent in advancing civilization." The "good roads" question should be take up by farmers' organizations.

From whatever side we may view the question from an economic standpoint, and no matter what the present condition of the agricultural classes, we cannot deny the fact that good roads are one of the highest essentials in the line of progress, and in the better developmeut of our agricultural resources.

Good roads raise the value of farm lands and farm products and tend to beautify the country through which they pass; they facilitate rural mail delivery and are a potent aid to education, religion and sociability. Charles Sumner once said, "The road and the schoolmaster are the two most important agents in advancing civilization."

In every locality where splendid roads are found we see the people living along their right of way becoming more prosperous, the communities thickening in population, while in sections of the country where bad roads are the rule, farming is at a standstill, there is no demand for land, the population sparse and gradually decreasing.

League member No. 105,393 suggests that if the L. A. W. could secure the co-operation of the wheelwrights and carriagemakers, wide tires might become popular. He says, "If we can introduce them to alter the style of tires from narrow, as at present to the wide ones which we hope for, we should thereby accomplish a great deal for the cause."

SCIENTIFIC NOTES.

London capitalists are interested in the proposal to lay a cable from Vancouver, B. C., to Skagway, Alaska, to connect with the telegraph line to Dawson City, which is expected to be completed soon. This will put the money-makers in touch with the gold fields, and incidentally the cause of civilization and humanity will be greatly aided, when the suffering in these dreary districts can to a degree be reduced by this connection with the civilized world.

A remarkable case of salvage is that of the steamship Milwaukee, which last autumn went ashore at Port Errol, near Peterhead. Finding it impossible to float her, as a large part of her fore end was inextricably jammed, she was cut in two with belts of dynamite cartridges, no less than 320 pounds of dynamite being used. The after part, extending from just below the forward end of the navigating bridge, was towed to the Tyne and moored in that river until a new bow end was built, launched and made ready to connect to it. It is remarkable that this half of the vessel was towed with the bulkhead end foremost and that the tug-boats were assisted by the ship's own engines. The repairers were so successful in their attempt to dry-dock that the two pieces were in correct relative positions, and but little subsequent adjustment was found necessary. A stranger would never suppose he was not looking at the original bow, and would find it impossible to point out where junction was effected. In point of fact, the Milwaukee is now as perfect and as strong as ever she was.

Formidable Ironclads of Early Days.

Napoleon designed a floating fortress in 1789 1,500 feet long—a flat ship with three turrets, much like the Monitor—with which he desired to invade England. In 1610 England built her first line-of-battle-ship, the Royal Prince, which was an improvement over everything before attempted. It was said "she was doubly built," and the "godliest ship that was builded in England." The first frigate was built also in England, of thirty-two guns, "and was so light and swift of sailing that in a short time she had, ere the Dutch war ended, taken as much money from privateers as would have laden her."

Coreans and the "Devil Cars."

The Coreans have not taken kindly to the electric car. It is to them a machination of the devil, fraught with the most horrible consequences to the population and country through which it passes. The new road from Seoul to Chemulpo was opened a month ago, and the affair was intended to impress the Coreans with the advantages of the trolley to their kingdom. The natives swarmed to see the trial trip of the "devil cars"—wagons propelled by a force that was not human and not understandable. They were skeptical and afraid. The long drouth prevailing in the Seoul district needed an explanation.

All that was needed to stir the natives to a fanitical outburst against the foreign devils' innovation was an accident, and, unfortunately, that occurred. A Corean child strayed on the track of the incoming car. Its little body was mangled horribly.

The Japanese motormen and the officials of the American firm which constructed the lines had to fly for their lives. Attempts to run further cars were hopeless, as the authorities refusing to supply guards, the motormen declined to board the cars. The first assault of the mob culminated in a riot; twenty of the ringleaders were arrested and executed, their severed heads being exhibited in the public places as a warning to evildoers in general, but particularly with a view to influencing the insurgents, who are now rapidly nearing Seoul, and who gained considerable accession through the "devil car" riots.—Collier's Weekly.

England's Good Example.

Whatever we may think of the policy of Great Britain in general, nobody can help admiring the vigor with which she has always fulfilled the duty of protecting her citizens abroad. Generations of Americans have looked with envy upon that example. More than fifty years ago American citizens in Mexico declared themselves British subjects to secure good treatment from the Mexican officials, and the same device has often been adopted in other countries. It would be an excellent thing if the present administration's admiration for things English would lead it to imitate this feature of English policy to such an extent that Americans anywhere in the world would be held in as much respect as is accorded to Britons or people of any other nationality.—San Francisco Examiner.

His Titled Guests.

There were eight of us going to stop at the same town and the same hotel in a Kansas hamlet, and we talked things over before we left the train. Each one registered himself as a professor, judge or general, and when the last name was down we stood waiting to hear any observation from the landlord. He was a quiet-spoken, humble-looking man, and he should have been duly impressed with the array of names. He wasn't, though. He read them over in a careless way and then looked up to say:

"All right, professors, judges and generals; I'll do the best I can for you, and I guess most of the folks will turn out to your circus tomorrow if the weather is pleasant."—The Columbian.

Pope Leo is Healthy.

Describing the habits of Leo XIII., the Domenica del Corriere of Milan says that he is so desirous of being considered still robust that, though he always makes use of a thick stick while walking, he no sooner observes some stranger approaching than he swings his stick from hand to hand, scarcely using it. He has excellent sight, can read without glasses, and is quite delighted when he has shown that he can support all the fatigue of religious functions. He is rather careless of his health during his restless nights, and when seized with a poetical inspiration rises from bed, and, without waking his faithful attendant, Pio Centra, who sleeps in the anteroom, goes to his desk and writes down a Latin distich by the light of the night lamp, and will sometimes linger to compose more verses.

VOL. XIV. COLUMBIANA, SHELBY COUNTY, ALABAMA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1899. NO. 43.

ADDRESS BY GOV. JOHNSTON

Reviews His Own Administration and the Cavils of His Enemies.

OPPONENTS CAN READ BETWEEN THE LINES

And Get Ready for a Fight, for the Governor is Inviting Them to Battle--His Own Position Defined.

October 7, 1899.

To the People of Alabama:

Every public official who recognizes that government is organized by the people for their own benefit and protection should be ready at any time to give an account of how he is discharging the trust committed to him. Those who have been honest and faithful have nothing to fear, and those who have been unfaithful should feel the sourge of the people on their backs.

UNFAITHFUL AND INCOMPETENT OFFICIALS.

When I came into office I determined so far as lay in my power that no dishonest or unfaithful official should betray the people and escape punishment. The first case that came to my attention was Collector Lott, of Mobile, who was found short by Examiner Reeves and made good that default, but his bond had been reported insufficient by the Grand Jury. My persistant and unyielding attempts to secure a good bond brought attacks upon my head and charges that I was attempting to persecute and drive out of office an honest and faithful official to make room for some henchman of my own. I gave no heed to these attacks and in less than eight months had shown that this man was a defaulter for nearly $40,000; he was driven from office and indicted for the crime. This man had repeatedly been a defaulter and the State had suffered the loss of thousands of dollars from his acts, but his crimes had been overlooked or condoned and he had escaped punishment until doubtless he thought it was an outrage to attack him. The sheriff of another county was reported to me for gross neglect of duty and he was promptly impeached and driven from office.

The doings of the Commissioners Court of Jefferson County were examined, their incompetence or unfaithfulness shown and the Court abolished in spite of the most extraordinary efforts of their partizans and the beneficiaries of their wrong doings. At my instance legislation was procured that enabled me to institute a rigid examination of the books and accounts of all officials handling the peoples money. By my explicit direction every official subjected to examination was given a full and fair opportunity to see the errors and deficits found, and to make any explanation he might desire; no favoritism has been shown, no default has been concealed, and no wrong doing condoned. Thousands of errors have been disclosed and thousands of dollars have been paid into the State and County Treasuries. Many of these errors were honest but none the less should the money have been paid in where it belonged. It is a most notable fact that since April, 1897, when these examinations commenced, few errors are found in the accounts of any official. Today the County officials in Alabama are commendably prompt, accurate and faithful in responding to every duty.

A few men are yet found who denounce these examinations as an outrage upon the officials, and intended for political effect. The day has passed in Alabama when an official can claim to be superior to those who created him, and to deny to his creators the right to examine his accounts just the same as every private individual and corporations examine the accounts of its employes; the day has passed when defaulting Probate Judges and other officials can for years defraud the people and escape with impunity. There is not an honest official in the State who objects to an examination of his books and no rogue will escape as long as I am Governor. One paper declared that the publication of the sworn reports of these examiners was brutal, and yet published them. The more agreeable way doubtless would be to keep the people in ignorance.

REFORM IN ASSESSMENTS.

Another reform instituted at my instance is the Tax Commission Law. The object and purpose of this law was to have an official to go over the assessments made by the Assessor and where that official has negligently, ignorantly and corruptly permitted tax payers to escape, or to assess their property at greatly less than its value, to correct the same, and compel every citizen and corporation to bear his or its fair share of the public burden. The operation of this law is best shown in Jefferson County where under quite a conservative administration the taxable values were increased over the assessment this year over $5,000,000 and the consequence was that the capable and honest Board of Revenue has not only called in for payment $25,000 of County bonds, but reduced the general tax rate of the County nearly one-third. In other words some five or six hundred tax payers who were escaping their just share of taxation have been pursuaded to do something like their duty and the burden has been lifted from the shoulders of those who were making fair returns.

It has been charged that this law reflects upon the Tax Assessors. The people are not disturbed about any reflection that honestly saves them money and in the case cited the Assessor, in violation of his duty and fore-warned of the fact, permitted corporations to under value their property to the extent in one case of $1,000,000, and in many others of hundreds of thousands of dollars as shown by the vauations of the Board of Revenue and the agreement of the Corporations themselves. If assessors make such errors as that instead of allowing them to pass for fear of reflecting on them or wounding their tender sensabilities, they should have their conduct of their offices exposed and held up to the judgment of the people.

REDUCTION OF TAXATION.

It has been my hope and ambition during my term as Governor to be able to largely reduce the rate of taxation and lighten the burdens on the shoulders of the people; for this purpose, as well as to equalize taxation, the Tax Commission Law was designed: how well it has operated is shown by the fact that the raises on property for the year ending September 30, 1898, by the Tax Commissioners, aggregated over eight million dollars; partial returns made within the past thirty days show that the raises for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1899, already exceed last years and will probably reach ten million dollars. The tax on nearly twenty millions of property so brought in will go into the State and County Treasuries to increase our surplus, build roads and maintain schools. Another year of like work ought to enable us to reduce our State tax rate at least one third without any threat to the Treasury. If we could secure a fair assessment of our property there would be no trouble at the next session of the General Assembly in reducing the State Tax rate about one-half and at the same time have our State to set the splendid example of compelling every citizen to carry his fair share of the public burdens.

The tax rate has been raised for two purposes only ,one to educate our children, and the other to care for the maimed heroes who fought our battles and immortalized our State by their deeds of valor.

SCHOOLS.

Reforms have been instituted in our educational system from the University down, fitness being made the standard of availability, and all these high institutions are doing now better work than at any time in many years.

Appropriations for the Common Schools have been increased one hundred thousand dollars out of the General Fund, and nearly a quarter million by special tax. We are trying to infranchise the intellect and make a citizenship that will be the pride of our State. These things would have been impossible had not other reforms and economics been put in operation.

The census of the school children was overhauled and in one County the number reduced in one day from 19, 567 to 13, 736.

The standard of qualification for teachers has been greatly elevated and on the lines recommended by me in my inaugural message to the General Assembly, and the department of education is making gratifying progress under the stimulus of large appropriations and more progressive laws.

The management of the public school lands (16th sections) has simply been disgraceful. The books of the Department fails to show the disposition of thousands upon thousands of acres; notes given for the purchase of land aggregating some $50,000 and running from 1850 to 1890 appear, so far as the records show, to have never been collected. In many cases notes were sent out for collection and no further notice given them, and thousands of acres of land have been lost by permitting squatters to enter upon them and hold them until the State was barred from bringing suit. Under an act passed at the last session I have been having all these matters overhauled and we have already recovered back scome 4,000 thousand acres of land that was being claimed without any right, and have recovered some $2,-000 on compromises where the whole could not be recovered. I hope yet to save more to the children of the State.

SAVINGS IN THE CONVICT DEPARTMENT.

When I came into office the Convict Department owed about $30,000. Supplies purchased for the convicts had to be bought on credit. Reforms were instituted and expenses reduced so that in a little over two years the deficit of $30,000 was paid, $67,450 covered into the General Fund to aid in paying the expenses of the State Government and there is now a cash balance on hand of about $43,000, and we hold manufactured goods worth $14,000. The total net saving is thus shown to have been nearly $155,000 in this time. Never but once before, and that some years ago, has any money been paid into the general fund from this Department. There is no reason why the convicts should not be brought to aid in educating the children of the State whilst being punished for their crimes.

THE DEFICIT PAID.

Before I was inaugurated a joint committee of the two Houses of the General Assembly was appointed to examine the financial condition of the State and report thereon. It made the examination and on the 25th of November, 1896, reported that the deficit on January 1, 1897, would amount to $568,065.84. Within a little over two years this deficit has been entirely extinguished and the State pays cash on every claim. To accomplish these results every possible leak has been stopped, every unnecessary expense has been cut off and the most rigid economy enforced.

The small expenses have been carefully examined and reduced where possible. The insurance on the Capitol has been cut down $660 in three years and the same amount of insurance carried. The cost of fuel has been reduced nearly one-half.

OTHER ECONOMIES.

A certified report from the State Treasurer dated October 2, 1899, shows these facts:

COST OF TRANSMITTING SCHOOL FUNDS UNDER SEC. 3611 OF THE CODE.

Year ending Sept. 30, 1894	$ 960.42
Year ending Sept. 30, 1895	1128.93
Year ending Sept. 30, 1896	1091.71	—$3160.71
Year ending Sept. 30, 1897	741.85
Year ending Sept. 30, 1898	548.35
Year ending Sept. 30, 1899	278.77	—1568.97
The saving in the three years of my administration has been		$1621.74

And the cost finally brought down from $1,000 per annum to less than $300 per annum.

Cost of transmitting money to New York to pay interest on our bonds:

Year ending Sept. 1894	$846.20
Year ending Sept. 1895	749.92
Year ending Sept. 1896	800.00	—$2306.12
Year ending Sept. 1897	205.00
Year ending Sept. 1898	50.00
Year ending Sept. 1899	00.00	—$255.00
This shows a saving during my term of		$2141.12

And that the annual cost has gradually been reduced from about $800 a year to nothing.

Cost of transmission temporary loans:

Year ending September 30, 1894	$505.29
Year ending September 30, 1895	1374.35
Year ending September 30, 1896	1228.47
Year ending September 30, 1897	0000.00
Year ending September 30, 1898	0000.00
Year ending September 30, 1899	0000.00

This shows that this cost has been reduced from an average annual expense of over $1,000 to nothing during my entire term.

The difference in expense in these three items alone during the three years I have bee in office as compared with the three preceding years agregate $6870.97 more than two-thirds of the entire salary received by me.

CONTINGENT FUND.

The amount expended from the contingent fund for the three fical years preceding my inauguration $19,322.60

During my term for three years the aggregate is a net difference of 8,074.47

Total $11,248.13

Other expense have been reduced and every effort made to save the money of the people.

Net cash balance in the Treasury:

September 30, 1894	$43,623.00
September 30, 1895	18,366.67
September 30, 1896	56,319.40
September 30, 1897	40,980.21
September 30, 1898	75,243.25
September 30, 1899	171,015.55

During nearly every year except the last two, the last quarter of the public school money was not paid and remained a charge against the cash averaging about $75,000.

CONFIDENCE ESTABLISHED.

The laws are enforced. Mob law has almost ceased; in but one single instance has the jail been robbed of prisoners, and not a dollar has been lost from the default of a public official during my term except in the Lott case. More furnaces and factories and mills are in operation and course of erection in the State than ever before; money is coming into develop our mineral and timber resources in larger volume than at any previous time in our history and confidence has been established, not only in our splendid resources, but in the justice of our laws, their impartial enforcement and the security to life and property.

Convicts are humanely treated, their health zealously guarded and an Industrial School for wayward children is about to be established.

RESENTMENT INCURRED.

Every leak that has been stopped has caused a sudden thirst to some chronic sucker.

Every abuse has had a parasite to howl when it died, and every man who has been restrained from pulling nubbins through the cracks of the public crib has damned the administration.

There can be little surprise that politicians and place hunters who were in the business for revenue only, were bitterly opposed to methods that denied their access to the treasury or immunity for their defaults and negligences. If campaign funds could not be recruited from the peoples money, or unfaithful or incompetent officials saved from exposure and restitution, or friends provided with fat places, living by politics is no more desirable than by other employment. Newspapers unable to dictate appointments and policies and legislation are justly offended at the idea of a Governor conducting the administration merely in the interest of the people; such a theory could not be tolerated by those who had long been unlawful beneficiaries of wastful expenditure. If the peoples money could not be used to secure favors and endorsements the Governor must be denounced and villified to such an extent that no successor would dare pursue like methods.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Whilst the office seekers and spoilsmen were disgruntled at my conduct of the office an accute issue arose over the question of holding a Constitutional Convention. In my message to the General Assembly in 1898, I suggested that the wiser course to secure any reforms needed was by amendment on the line of one recently secured for Birmingham. This would have enabled every elector to pass directly on the question submitted, but the General Assembly saw fit to pass an act submitting to the electors the free and untrammelled right to declare whether they desired a convention to be held or not. Whilst not believing this to be the best plan I signed the bill because I was not willing to set up my judgment, like Grover Cleveland, against the majority of my party in each House, nor did I wish to deprive the people of their right to declare whether they desired a convention to be held or not.

This was followed by the calling of a State convention of the Democratic Party, the Democrats of the State give little heed to the call, not one-fifth taking part in the primaries, and when the Convention met instead of representing the great body of the loyal democracy of the State it was largely composed of men who had bolted the party in 1896 or had refused their approval of its platform.

This Convention deliberately, and in violation of the spirit of the Statue took away so far as it could, the right of any Democrat to vote against the Constitutional Convention and commanded them to vote for it whether they favored it or not on pain of being denounced as bolters and traitors. Knowing that the General Assembly never contemplated any such course as this, I took counsel of its members and upon the advice of a majority of Democrats in each House, I assembled the Legislature in Special Session.

This infuriated the leaders of the Convention movement; they called on the press and our Senators and Congressmen and other adherants to gather at the Capitol to denounce me for daring to assemble the peoples representatives to reconsider an act they had passed, and to over-awe and intimidate members of the General Assembly. It was boldly asserted by supposedly wise and venerable men that the Legislature had no power to repeal an act it had passed: it was declared that this particular act like the laws of the Medes and Persians altered not. The members were urged to adjourn immediately upon assembling to pay no attention to any message from the Governors or the wishes of their constitutents Those who favored repeal were denounced as unfaithful to their party; madness seemed to reign; the very men whose age and experience should have taught them wisdom and moderation were most extreme and bitter; but the people, always when aroused more powerful than all the politicians, had their way and the Act died; it fell upon many reviving blossoms, and they withered. To show the desperation of the leaders the fight was not given up when the appeal act passed the two houses; they appealed to the presiding officers of the two houses to refuse to sign the bill, and thus attempted to defeat by fraud, the wishes of a majority of the representatives in each house. The fact that such a course would have invited perjury seemed not to have been seriously considered.

After the act was repealed I urged the General Assembly to submit proper amendments, some on the line the opposition leaders had professed the greatest desire to secure, but the conventionists, almost without exception, voted against every amendment and the necessary two-thirds vote could not be secured. Those who had professed the most burning desire to disfranchise the negro voted against every proposition looking in that direction.

It was proclaimed that the issue next year should be fought on this line; a canvass of the State was to be made by our Senior Senator and all who dared oppose the Convention then or had favored repeal were to be consigned to a tomb that would know no resurrection. Do we find now our venerable Senators who hurried from Washington to instruct us in our duties, vexing the air with clamerous demand for a Constitutional Convention? Do we find a single leader now or newspaper demanding the issue to be fought on that line? Not one. It has been suddenly discovered by our federal representatives that they should not touch upon State issues; great National and International questions are reserved for them; they can discuss Constitutions for Cuba and Hawaii and the Philippines, but not for Alabama.

The fact that nearly one-third of the delegates nominated to the Constitutional Convention were the attorneys and employees of the great corporations of the State, and that nearly one-half of these nominees were men who repudiated the Chicago Platform, opened the eyes of the people to the character of the instrument that might be thrust upon them. That issue has disappeared, but a single voice is raised in lament. The politicians fear the people, the patriots trust them.

Even the most reckless villifier of them all is now silent in this question.

All this demonstrates beyond any reasonable doubt that the surffrage question was a mere pretext to cover and disguise more dangerous schemes.

Far be it from me to charge that every man who advocated a convention or every newspaper was influenced by improper motives; many were doubtless sincere and patriotic and my personal friends; but the inside leaders, the little coterie who occupied the holy of holies and were casting lots whilst the people were being prepared for crucifixion, and expecting to part the raiments of democracy and divide the bloody spoil, cared nothing for the suffrage question, and were ready to barter places and emoluments in midnight caucus for votes.

The heaviest artillery of their displeasure was turned upon me because I dared to stand for the rights of the people against the politicians and the press. Day after day I was denounced as a traitor, a schemer, a man without brains or patriotism, weak, timid and ambitious. After their overthrow the tune changed and the people were warned that I was a boss bold and sagacious, an ambitious leader and a shrewd tactician, and that extraordinary efforts would be required to defeat my purposes. There is no doubt about its requiring great efforts to defeat my purposes for they are that the people shall control their own affairs, select their own officials and free themselves from the domination of all the rings and cliques that have been fattening upon them until they are swollen with pride and insolence.

The white men of Alabama have not for ten years been so thoroughly united and when that is the case there are no serious dangers to be apprehended.

OFFICIAL CRITICISM.

No man recognizes more fully than I the right of every citizen to criticize public officials. The doctrine that any man can reach such lofty official heights in a republic that his neighbors and constituents may not comment freely upon his public acts in intoleable.

I exercise and shall continue to exercise that right myself. When in 1893 Cleveland assembled Congress in extra session and recommended the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman Act, I was the first man in Alabama, and possibly the first in the Union, to denounce the Act and charge him with betraying his party and platform and people. It was then said that it was rank rebellion and treason to denounce the leader, to question the act of the Commander in Chief and other absurd things were multiplied to save from merited scorn and contempt on an official who had deliberately violated a pledge upon which he was elected to office. Those who were fiercest in denouncing me for this presumptious sin against a creature clothed with official robes, in less than three years deserted their party, denounced and abused and villified its great national leader and spit upon its platform.

Abuse only degrades its author, makes no converts and is worthy of the contempt of every honest and courageous man. Fidelity is no answer to malice and the noblest and most patriotic effort is not exempt from the attacks of the slanderer.

Washington and Jefferson were pursued and villified by the political tricksters of their day and even the immortal Jackson had political fice barking at his heels, and so it has been in all times that those who stood up courageously for the people have been assailed by those seeking unlawful gains and unmerited rewards.

What charges are now brought against me? Does any responsible man assert that I have unlawfully diverted or wasted a single dollar of the peoples money or been unfaithful to a single pledge? Not one.

The abuse almost invariable comes from some man who has been fenced out from the public treasury, or compelled to disgourge public money, or when has failed to get some office for himself or some friend or relative. When you hear one of them complaining ask what office was refused him or his kin or friend? How much his taxes were raised or what amount he had to surrender up?'

Fidelity to the people is to be made a crime, and one who keeps in touch with the people and responds to their wishes and interests is denounced as a demagogue; the aristocratic plan is to keep the people in ignorance, settle policies and candidates at some "Hotel Conference" and let such favors only drip out to the masses as are not desired by the select few.

NICARAUGA CANAL.

Our people are vitally interested in the construction of the Nicaragua Canal.

It would open up to our iron and coal and timber and agricultural products markets that would greatly enhance their values and give employment to thousands of men; both national parties have time and again, declared for the construction of this great work, and enough oratory has been expended upon it in the Senate and House to have cut a canal from ocean to ocean if directed against the obstructions separating them; yet to day we are exactly where we were fifteen or twenty years ago. Every one seems to be for building the canal just before election and then the usual bills are introduced, debated over, and over again until the Sessions are about to expire and some worthless compromise adopted. The people are naturally getting very tired of men floating into office on the canal and then allowing it to be locked and dammed.

What we want is results, not talk. It seems that the orators should be able to do their part of the work in fifteen or twenty years.

The jaw bones of debate should be converted into picks and spades. We want a canal no, or we c, no wha.

We were informed years ago as to the route and what it would cost, and the last performance of Congress was to appoint another Commission to make another report. After all the talk and printed reports, not a shovel full of dirt has been excavated under any bill enacted by Congress. If all the speeches on this subject, printed at the expense of the people were laid sixty feet wide, they would cover the isthmus from ocean to ocean.

IMPERALISM.

Washington in his farewell address warned us to avoid entangling alliances with foreigh nations and the Monroe Doctrine was established as the supplement to his wise advice. Our country a few years ago was on the eve of war with Great Britan because of some small difference in regard to the Boundary lines of the British territory in Venezuela. Our government resented their intermeddling with affairs on the American continent.

Now under this administration we are embarking on a sea of conquest that can only end in disaster.

The spirit of our Constitution and the very theory of Republican Government is repugnant to this policy.

We commenced the war with Spain because we denied the right of that country to hold an unwilling people in subjection. A respectable minority of the people of Cuba were satisfied with their conditions, but Congress declared it was to be a war of deliverance and that the people of Cuba were and of right should be free and independent. In the prosecution of this war we sent a fleet to Manilla to destroy the Spanish fleet in that territory. After destroying the fleet we sought the aid of the Insurgents who were in arms and had their assistance in hemming up the Spanish army in Manilla. We compelled Spain at the point of the bayonett to receive twenty millions of dollars for her title to the Philippines. The fact that she never had any title because it did not rest on the consent of the Governed, and because the inhabitants were then in open notorious, hostile and adverse possession made no difference. We bought that fraudulent title from a highway robber who was not in possession of the goods under duress, and are now killing the rightful owners for not submitting to it.

The United States would have an infinitely better right to sell Hawaii without consulting the inhabitants, to Liberia or China.

The Filipinos are now resisting and fighting for exactly what our Revolutionary fathers fought in 1776—the right to govern themselves. The defenders of this vicious policy that utterly disregards the great doctrine of liberty attempt to defend it upon two grounds: one that they want to elevate and Christianize the Filipinos and the other is that we shall make money by the transaction.

The beauties of the civilizing and christianizing process ought to be apparent to the Philipinos. They are first to submit to a fraudlent sale and then to an armed invasion, the complete overthrow of their liberties and subjection to a commanding general and his subordinates who cannot speak their language, and whose manners and customs are contrary to their inclination. Resisting they are to be shot into the kingdom of heaven. A civilization that is introduced with a sword, and a religion backed by powder and shot is not liable to be eagerly adopted by a people worth saving.

But it is said that the acquisition of this territory is going to widen our markets, enlarge our commerce and put money in our purses. The death of our soldiers, the enormous expense of the war, and the increased taxes to be laid upon our people is to be compensated by extending our markets. We are to kill those people in order to compel them to trade with us. It is said that the South will get a part of the swag; that a greater demand will spring up for our cotton goods, and the people of the South—a liberty loving people who have always stood for prinieple against spoils—are invited to approve because they will get a share of the spoils in increased price for our cotton. I suppose the idea is that every Filipino and every American killed will need a shroud ,and that will make a demand for cotton. We are to shoot the natives, burn their villages and destroy their crops in order to stimulate a demand for cotton goods. We are to barter our convictions for money. We are to justify war upon an inoffensive people, who never did us any harm, in order to trade with them. Instead of commercial agents we send armed brigades to introduce our wares. Alabama can in one year raise all the cotton that the Philippines would consume in twenty years. Instead of appreciating the value of our cotton annexation would probably result in the cultivation of cotton there, as in India, and raising up a competition instead of a consumer.

I suppose it has already cost 100 millions. The profit in all the trade we will do in one hundred years would not pay the interest on this sum, and the end is not yet. We probably don't hold twenty square miles of territory around Manila; the island of Luuzon alone is nearly as large as Alabama and when we succeed in subjugating that island there are nearly 1,400 others. To maintain our control and furnish security to life and property will require a standing army of 50,-000 men. It will require a vast increase in our navy for we must be prepared to defend these possessions; all this means more taxes, more labor and sweat and self-denial to our own people, and the beginning of the Pretorian Guard to overthrow our own liberties.

We need no territory for an overflowing population. The Philippines are more densely inhabited now than our own country. Our resources are not developed. Here in Alabama we have great seams of coal and iron and forests of timber, and thousands upon thousands of acres of agricultural lands that have not known the hand of man. Every dollar taken from the United States to the Philippines to develop their resources is a dollar deverted from Alabama or some other state. Let us, like charity, begin at home.

War has never been declared against the Fillipinos by Congress: the Constitution has not been obeyed: were we to notify them tomorrow that the United States intended to be their friends and aid them in organizing for themselves a government suited to their conditions, not another gun would be fired.

If our representatives must vote these millions of dollars away—if this money must be taken away from our people would it not be infinitely wiser and better to spend a few millions opening the Tennessee and Coosa and the Warrior rivers to navigation? What a blessing would come from a million a year for our public schools or building roads in Alabama rather than in killing and subjugating some millions of half-naked people 8,000 miles distant.

If our representatives would pay less attention to foreign affairs and more to our domestic. If they would direct their artillery and small arms at the tariff and the trusts instead of the Filipinos. If they would pay more attention to cutting down useless expenditures and putting a check upon the ever-increasing pension list, the people would rise up and call them blessed.

CHICAGO PLATFORM.

It is a source of great satisfaction to me that from the day the Chicago Platform was adopted and its magnificent standard bearer nominated, to this good day I have never had occasion to doubt that the principles of the party were never more clearly enunciated nor more splendidly represented. There is not a plank to the platform that does not give protection to the people, and not a policy proclaimed that if carried out would not bring blessings to our country. I am proud to feel that I had an humble part in leading the fight in Alabama that blossomed and fruited at Chicago and that our delegation there represented two-thirds of the democracy of Alabama.

Nothing has occurred since that platform was adopted to show that a single word or declaration should be changed. Every thing tends to emphasize the truth of its declarations. The Republican Party has been driven from its cover of international bimetallism and must make the next fight under the yellow banner of gold monometallism. No artful dodger who wormed his devious way into the presidential chair must stand by his masters and make the fight stripped of all false garments. American bimetallism founded upon the free and unlimited coinage of both metals at the ratio of 16 to 1 is to make a single handed fight against the gold standard. The prosperity that was promised has not reached the men who raise cotton and corn.

The balance of trade has been in our favor and the influx of money has been sufficient to give us better prices for some articles, but the supply of gold is shown now to be more clearly insufficient to maintain the general level of values than ever before.

No advance has been made in the value of land and but little in the value of any of its products.

Here and there the supply of money has been sufficient to make prosperous spots, like partial showers when a general rain is needed.

The issues are made up. The people were never more thoroughly loyal to one man than they are now to the ablest, the most patriotic and faithful American now living.

The hosts of democracy will not surrender their banner into the hands of any man who will consent, against his judgment, to approve legislation they demand, but it will be placed in the hands of a man who will lead them ably and courageously in their struggles, and not only sign, but help them secure the legislation needed. They want no apologist, they have their leader, for ordnained and predestinated to strike the shackles from labor and kindle the light of hope once more in the eyes of the great producing classes.

Thousands of good citizens who do not agree with Mr. Bryan on the money issue will support him cheerfully because he stands conspiciously the enemy of Trusts and Imperialism. None have deserted his standard.

The Democrats of Alabama will again lead the vanguard in 1900, and their flag will have the immortal name of Bryan inscribed upon it. His name will not lead all the rest for no other name will be known or heard when the great council of the party assembles next year. No man questions his integrity, or ability or patriotism. Malice stands dumb before him, and the false witness will need no contradiction.

JOSEPH F. JOHNSTON.

The extraordinary and unprecedented electro-motive force of 1,000,000 volts has been obtained by Professor J. Trowbridge in his latest transformation apparatus, consisting of 100 condensers. Under this stress the initial resistance of the air is greatly diminished. The extreme length of the spark in air is shorter, however, than it should be according to theory with lower voltages, being only 6 1-2 feet instead of 10, as a consequence of leakage through the powerful brush discharges that proceeds from the terminals to the floor and walls of the room. In spite of all precautions, part of the discharge is always thus shunted through the surrounding air. The initial resistance of highly rarefied gases is similarly reduced, and in Crookes tube that resists the passage of an 8-inch spark is brilliantly lighted by a difference of potential of 3,000,000 volts. Such a tube is made to give a photograph of the bones of the hand by a discharge of a millionth of a second.

The most delicate surgical operation ever performed, and which has so far proved successful, was accomplished by Dr. Harman and other physicians, recently, at Harman, W. Va. Jay Lutz, a mine boss in the Harman mines, was almost killed by falling slate, his skull in the back of his head being badly crushed. All hope of his recovery was abandoned, but Dr. Harman concluded to resort to the last means to save the man's life, and accordingly had a calf got in from the pasture field a young heifer, and the brains of the animal were removed and substituted for those which were badly lacerated in Lutz's head. The transfer of the delicate membes was tedious, but was, it is believed, so successfully done that Lutz will recover. After the heifer's brains were removed she was turned loose in the pasture field. The beast stands in one place all the time unless started by some one, and it is necessary to start her jaws to moving when she is fed, and to stop them when she completes her meal.

Fingers are valued at a high price in Australia. A Melbourne boy of eight had his fingers crushed in a gate at a level crossing, and one had to be amputated. An action on his behalf was brought against the State Railway Department. The jury awarded the full amount claimed, $5000.

J. F. POPE,

WILSONVILLE, ALA.

THE CHRONICLE.

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana Ala., as second class matter.

THE figures given out by the Governor are correct, only he does not give all of them. He only publishes the credit side of his account.

THE Governor says there has been no advance in the value of land. We thought there had, judging from the reports of his back tax commissioners.

IN 1896, under Governor Oates, it cost $1,961,912.88 to run the State government. In 1898, under Johnston, it cost $2,212,888.82—an increase of nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

THE Governor says that he was the first man in Alabama, and possibly in the union, to denounce Grover Cleveland. We are glad to hear it; we didn't know that. We thought there were others.

THE Governor says he has hoped to reduce the tax rate, and that he hopes to do so by his back tax law. Still he fails to say that while the values are being raised the rate still goes up.

WHEN Joe Johnston gets to the Senate the Nicarauga Canal will be built at once. Instead of talking about it he will take a pick and shovel and go down there and build it. So he says in his messgae to the people.

THE Governor takes credit for the increased appropriations to public schools. He forgets the time he said to Plowman and Reynolds: "I want that bill (the $600,000 appropriation to common schools) defeated in the senate."

THE Governor fails to tell the people that the tax assessors have the same powers and duties under the law as to assessments as have the tax commissioners, and that if they had brought the assessors up to their duty the back tax law would be unnecessary.

THE Governor says that only those who have been disappointed or made to pay up are against him. Granted that this is true, he forgets to say that only those whom he has appointed to office are for him. It is easy to figure out which way the majority lean.

IN adopting a uniform date for primaries and leaving the method to the county committees the State committee did well. There will now be no chance for candidates to run from one to another of the counties to interfere with the management of the primaries.

THE Governor says "the prosperity that was promised has not reached the men who raise cotton and corn." Well, cotton is bringing nearly 3 cents more than this time last year, but then there is not a good crop. We are sorry that the Lord has not come to the Governor's relief in this matter.

THE Governor forgot to tell the people that the expense of his State examiners amounts to more than $5,000 per year, and that while the examinations of two years covered seven years of administrations it only netted to the State a bit over $9,600. When the second examination starts it will cost more than it returns.

THE Governor fails to say in his message to the people that the tax valuations in Alabama in 1891 were nineteen millions in excess of last year; and he also forgot to say that the total expenses of the State for the year ending September 30, 1898, were $250,000 more than for the last year of his predecessor's administration.

THE Governor in his message to the people takes to himself the credit of opening all the mills and mines and furnaces in the State. He evidently wrote his message before cotton went up. He ought now to revise it and take credit for the 2½ cent increase in the price of cotton. Of course the Lord is to blame for the short crop, where it is short; if there are any good crops anywhere they should be credited to Johnston's business administration.

THE Governor indirectly calls Morgan a windbag. Well, let's see. Since Morgan's election to the Senate he has secured by individual effort $10,000,000 for public improvements in Alabama. This amount is 40 per cent of the total amount of State taxes on property valuations paid by all the people of Alabama in that time. It is an average of $450,000 for each year of his service. Has Governor Johnston, by any act of his, added that much to the public improvement of his State, or saved the half of it to the taxpayers? On the contrary the increase of public expenditures in one year of his administration is more than half that sum.

THE Governor speaks of campaign funds being recruited from the people's money, and claims that he has put a stop to it. Yet in this county Mr. Aldrich is allowed to pay taxes on $35,000, when his own statement shows his capital stock of $100,000 to be worth par. This is a saving of $850 in a year, which amount helps out wonderfully in buying a seat in Congress. We challenge the Governor to explain why this is allowed, while other corporations, none of whose officers engage in politics, are drawn up to the bar.

A LESSON IN COTTON.

One day last week a farmer presented a check at the bank here for $75, and said that it was the proceeds of two bales of cotton. Last year the same gentleman presented a check for $66, the proceeds of three bales. He got $9 more this year for two bales than for three bales last year. Besides this he saved about $5 on picking and $2.50 on ginning, bagging and ties. So that he is at least $16 better off this year with his two bales than last year with three. This proportion will be seen in nearly all the crops in this community. Then it will be seen that the farmers will realize a benefit of 20 per cent on the present crop, although it is from 25 to 33 per cent short. Certainly this is a lesson which will be heeded by the farmers. The shortage this year will likely destroy all the surplus, and a proportionately small crop next season will send the price to 10 cents, below which there is little profit in its production. Will each farmer take this lesson to himself, plant for a small crop of cotton, a big crop of eatables, and put himself on a plane of independence?

WE note that every member of the State committee from this Congressional district voted with the majority. In doing so they represented the wishes of the Democrats. So far as the Democrats are concerned Morgan will carry every county in this district, and will get eleven votes certain, with a possibility of three more from Shelby and Chilton.

WILL KEEP MORGAN IN SENATE.

Editor Clark Says the Alabamian Will be Reelected.

[Washington Post.]

Mr. Percy Clark, editor and publisher of the Selma (Ala.) Telegram, is a guest at the Hotel Johnston. He resides at the home of Senators Morgan and Pettus and has an intimate personal friendship with them. When his attention was called to recent interviews published by two Alabamians in the Post, he said:

"It is not a fact that can be demonstrated by any man conversant with public sentiment in Alabama that any large number of people are opposed to expansion. While the public mind in the State may, in a measure, be said to be in a formative state, yet following the traditions of the Democratic party on territorial acquisition and, coupled with a successful war, guided by the wisdom and statesmanship of two as able statesmen as their two Senators, the Democrats of Alabama will never consent to any plank in a platform which calls for a surrender of the results and achievements of our army and navy. If no other index was evident the enthusiasm that permeates all walks of life as to Dewey and Wheeler is a fair one.

The Democrats of Alabama desire the nomination of Mr. Bryan, and upon a platform embodying the cardinal principles of the Chicago platform, but any allusion or phrasing inserted to catch the doubtful voter which tends to haul down the flag from over our new possessions, will fail to arouse the old-time enthusiasm and will breed lukewarmness and indifference.

"It is true that some features of Gov. Johnston's administration gave promise of desirable results for the public good. When he departed from the broad path of a conscientious public servant, which policy many indorsed, and, casting a covetous eye prematurely on a seat in the Senate, embarked on a policy Jacobinic, using his office and the appointing power to seduce men from the well-defined wish of the majority of the white people of Alabama from a constitutional convention he opened the box of Pandora for his party. When they have done with him he will have had about all the trouble he needs. What he lacks in statesmanship he is fully compensated for in slickness; but the Democrats will be able to unhorse him and destroy his wooden-horse programme for bringing back into the party a lot of Dolly Varden-hyphenated-proletariat, calling themselves Republicans when facing one way and Populists when looking the other way.

"Gov. Johnston is on a still hunt for the Senate, but the announcement of the candidacy of Gen. W. C. Oates will force him into the open where Senator Morgan's friends can meet and defeat him. The probable candidacy of Capt. Bankhead and one or two others will simplify the work of those Alabamians who, proud of the international reputation of the greatest Alabamian, will be found at the polls critically examining the claims of those who will in August next seek to represent them in the next legislature. When Senator Morgan was last elected the people saved the politicians many hours of travail by the selection of Morgan men for the legislature, so the Senatorial caucus was perfunctory. In my knowledge more than one ox cart pulled aged men ten or fifteen miles to the polls to vote for men who would support Senator Morgan, and those men did not regularly attend elections. Elisha Payne, of Winston County, Ala., carried his aged father seventy-odd miles in an ox cart to Birmingham to hear Morgan speak.

"Political gypsies may for a time seem to have the popular eye, but old time religion and old time Democratic principles supplemented with the latter-day battle cry of Alabama Democrats, 'white supremacy,' will keep Senator Morgan, the great American, in the service of all of the people of these United States."

It is Mr. Clark's opinion that Gen. Joe Wheeler will be the nominee of the next Democratic convention for Governor.

STATE COMMITTE MEETS

Uniform Date Fixed for Primaries and Conventions.

THE GOVERNOR SAT DOWN UPON.

Is Not Given an Opportunity to Work the Counties.

The State Democratic executive committee met in Birmingham Tuesday, and fixed the date for holding primaries, county conventions and State conventions, and readopted the qualifications for participants. On the test vote the friends of Governor Johnston were in the minority, they wanting no uniformity of dates in selecting candidates for the legislature. One of his friends threatened to bolt, but the following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That all primaries or mass meetings for the election of delegates to the State convention or members of the general assembly shall be held on Saturday, April 14, 1900; all county conventions for the election of delegates to the State convention or members of the house of representatives, or delegates to the senatorial convention, shall be held on Saturday, April 21. The State convention shall be held in Montgomery on Wednesday, April 25, at 12 o'clock m.

Second. That the different county committees shall call a primary, a beat meeting or mass meeting, at the direction of the different county executive committees, on Saturday, April 14, 1900, provided that those county committees that have already acted in the matter shall not be affected by the resolution, and their action is hereby ratified and confirmed.

Third. Each county committee shall in its discretion call a mass meeting, primary election or beat meetings to elect delegates to a county convention, as may seem best to said committee.

Fourth. The chairman of this committee is hereby directed to call senatorial conventions in all senatorial districts which have no executive committees, said conventions to be held at the same time and place as the State convention, and the representation therein to be the same as in the State convention; provided, that if any counties have already selected delegates to such convention, or have ordered primaries or conventions for selecting such delegates, such action is hereby ratified or confirmed.

Provided, That in the senatorial districts having committees, said committees shall fix the time and place of holding senatorial conventions.

The vote on these was as follows:

Ayes—R. J. Lowe, H. S. D. Mallory, Tennent Lomax, F. L. Pettus, C. S. McDowell, Jr., Hugh D. Merrill, Tipton Mullihs, John Knox, J. Thomas Heflin, Daniel A. Collier, Bernard Harwood, W. I. Bullock, John M. Hampton, Brooks Smith, A. C. Davidson, Robert T. Robinett—16.

Nays—George P. Jones, A. S. Lyons, William D. Dunn, Lawrence W. Locklin, Charles R. Bricken, John N. Stanford, J. Lee Long, F. M. Moseley, W. W. Brandon, R. N. Bell, A. F. Murray, John F. Proctor—13.

The following qualifications for participation in the primaries were adopted:

Resolved, That we hereby cordially invite all conservative voters, irrespective of political association or differences, who can unite with us in the effort for pure and economical and constitutional government, and who will support the nominees and principles of the Democratic party, to participate in the primaries of the party throughout the State.

Resolved further, That all persons so participating in the primaries, conventions or mass meetings of the party hereafter to be held thereby pledge themselves to support the nominees of such primary conventions or mass meetings whether municipal, county, State or federal.

On motion of Mr. Knox the call for Congressional conventions was postponed until the next meeting of the committee.

A COMPRESS COMBINE.

Efforts to Organize a Trust to Fight Improvements.

In view of the attacks upon the Roundlap bale of the American Cotton Company and the cry of "trust" against the manufacturers of the machines for making those bales raised by the owners of compresses and others, the following letter, indicating a "combine" of a different sort, is of peculiar interest. The letter was forwarded to the Atlanta Constitution by Richard Cheatham, editor of the Cotton Planters Journal, of Memphis, Tenn. It is as follows:

"New York, May 3, 1899. Executive Committee of American Cotton Compress Company, 71 Broadway, Sir: It is proposed to consolidate by purchase or otherwise some of the most desirable compresses in the United States, provided such consolidation can be arranged on a conservative basis.

"We are in consultation with all the capital required for the business who are willing to take it up if it can be put upon an attractive basis.

"We desire to call your attention to the fact that in order to meet the competition that has arisen from the round bale system, it will be necessary for the compresses referred to to consolidate under one general management, fully able and capable to reduce expenses by improved methods, more uniform systems of compressing (aided by the adoption of the standard box) to obtain lower rates of insurance and secure lower rates of freight to foreign and domestic points.

"We recognize the advantages both to you and us of utilizing your personal influence in the new business, as well as your plant, but at the same time we feel confident that unless a consolidation can be affected on an obviously economical basis we may not be able in the long run to successfully compete with the round bale systems or with other new compresses which may come into the field.

"If it is your desire to sell your press property at a reasonable price, please be kind enough to answer the list of questions enclosed and also sign the option enclosed.

"The information received will be strictly confidential, and not disclosed to anyone else in the business of compressing cotton, except with your consent.

"As there are over two hundred compresses, and as it will require considerable time and labor to send a committee to examine these properties and books and make all proper arrangements it is therefore necessary that the option shall hold good for six months from the date of your signing.

"Unless we hear from you within two weeks of this date we shall consider that you are not disposed to enter into the proposed consolidation. Awaiting your reply, we are yours truly,

HENRY C. KNUBEL,
For Executive Committee."

They Should Know it.

Many women suffer untold agony and misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood. They have been led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for the many ills that beset womankind.

Neuralgia, nervousness, headache, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, rheumatism, a dragging pain or dull ache in the back, weakness or bearing-down sensation, profuse or scanty supply of urine with strong odor, frequent desire to pass it with scalding or burning sensation, sediment in it after standing in bottle or common glass for 24 hours are signs of kidney and bladder trouble.

The above symptoms are often attributed by the patient herself or by her physician to female weakness or womb trouble. Hence, so many fail to obtain relief, because they are treating, not the disease itself, but a reflection of the primary cause, which is kidney trouble.

In fact, women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same remedy.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is the great discovery of the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is easy to get at any drug store for 50 cents or $1.

To prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and book telling all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Kindly mention THE CHRONICLE, and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

SHE WAS BLIND.

A blindness comes to me now and then. I have it now. It is queer—I can see your eyes but not your nose. I can't read because some of the letters are blurred; dark spots cover them; it is very uncomfortable.

I know all about it; it's DYSPEPSIA. Take one of these; it will cure you in ten minutes.

What is it?

Houses are at a premium in our city and a great many calls are being made by parties wishing to rent, but still no improvements are going on.

The new gin whistle is quite an improvement over the old one. It is loud, clear and strong, and can call the people to a fire as well as to work.

Night sessions of court were held last week that as much of the large docket as possible might be disposed of.

J. A. Cates, who has been conducting a farm near here, has removed to Belle Ellen and will receive THE CHRONICLE through the Lopez postoffice.

G. E. Brasher, of Vandiver, came in last week and renewed his subscription, which had just expired. We always pitch on an extra pine knot when such are around.

"Advertising doesn't pay," is the pitiful and prolonged wail of those business men who stencil their bargains on waste sheets of dirty manila paper and curse the newspapers.

R. E. Cosper, of the firm of Cosper, Glover & Co. at Sterrett, was in our office one day last week. This firm is going to close out its present stock of goods and reorganize, and our job office printed their announcement.

Cool weather is coming at us on schedule time this year, and the man with a chafed nose, lackadaisical appearance and not altogether immaculate handkerchief is conspicuously in evidence.

If you want a first-class watch or clock at greatly reduced prices, or one repaired by the most experienced watchmaker in this section, call on Mr. J. H. South, of Montevallo. You will find him strictly reliable.

Hon. Gaston A Robbins, member of Congress from this district, was in the city last Saturday. He spent several days at Shelby Springs last week. Mr. Robbins feels confident of retaining his seat in Congress this time.

A bright youngster was heard to remark the other day that the prevailing fad among women to adorn their hats with feathers would likely have a cool effect upon poultry the coming winter.

Eugene Brasher returned home today from Ft. Crook, Nebraska, having failed to stand the final examination before entering the army. He passed well enough at the recruiting station in Birmingham, but a defect in his eyes caused his rejection at Ft. Crook.

Cotton is coming to our town a little more frequent now that the price is advancing, but it is a foregone conclusion that the number of bales will not approximate the amount sold here last year nor anywhere near it.

If one must judge by the frequent calls for second-hand school books made upon our people by pupils a considerable number of advances in grades has been made in the public school, or those handling books are not as well supplied as usual.

Judge Pelham and Solicitor Coleman went from this place to St. Clair County. Both have the appearance of being young, but they gave entire satisfaction to all our people in their manner of conducting and deciding cases which came under their supervision.

We have been sending out a considerable number of sample copies of this paper for several weeks past, and only one has so far been returned. Those receiving the paper who are not regular subscribers will not be expected to pay, and we respectfully request that they do not get "huffy" about the matter.

The firm of McCord & South, of Montevallo, has been dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be conducted by J. South, and all liabilities of the firm are assumed by him. A committee was appointed last Sunday by Rev. S. N. Burns to raise funds for the purpose of removing the debt which hangs over the Methodist parsonage. The amount is only $35, and it is thought not much difficulty will be experienced in securing the sum.

Our job office has recently turned out for Rev. C. W. O'Hara the minutes for the last meeting of the Shelby County Baptist Association. Mr. O'Hara has held the office of clerk in this association continuously for more than thirty years, and though deprived of one arm can furnish as neat manuscript for the printer as any man.

An old country horse, unaccustomed to the ways of a large city, ran away on our streets last Friday and a multitude of people saw the performance. The babel of their testimony about the patetic actions of this unsophisticated animal had the rhythm of Pop-Reps. of Shelby County in convention assembled, but would sink them to insignificance in an impartial comparison.

J. R. Moore, of Pratt City, who deserted his wife a few weeks since, mention of which was made in these columns last week, returned to that place a few days ago and was arrested upon a charge of embezzlement. He refunded all money taken from the parties making the arrest and was permitted bail. He claims that he was off having a good time and spent none of the money to which he was not entitled, but a trial will no doubt develop the true facts in the case.

R. B. Posey, of Shelby County, was in our office one day last week to read the news from Harpersville. He has been the correspondent from that place to THE CHRONICLE from its very beginning almost, and his copy always goes in as sent—no erasures, no knockouts and but few corrections. He is a Democrat from his heart and for that reason has always taken a great interest in the paper which helps fight his battles.

In the case of the State v. John Warren, charged with the murder of Henry Armstrong, a mistrial resulted, the jury standing 11 to 1 for conviction. The case was given to the jury late Friday night and the court was informed Saturday afternoon of their inability to render a verdict. This is the second trial of this case, and it went much harder with the defendant than when a mistrial resulted at the last court. Mr. Warren, who claims that the deed was justified, is a prominent and respected citizen of the Harpersville district and had many friends among the witnesses.

PUBLIC SCHOOL INFORMATION

To Teachers, Trustees and Patrons of Public Schools.

The examination of teachers takes place at Columbiana December 4, 1899.

In contracting with teachers those holding license under the new law should have the preference, though teachers who held license under the old law may be contracted with as though they had passed the State examination, and may teach during this quarter at their own risk; for in the event they fail in the December examinations no public funds will be paid such teachers. Trustees must write on the back of their contracts, "no license." All school contracts must be filed on or before the 15th day of the month preceding pay day of each quarter.

Section 3562 (Code of 1896) directs that all township trustees shall, on the last Monday in October, call a meeting of the parents and guardians of school children and at such meeting locate the schools by numbering each one, and to ascertain the exact number of pupils located to each school and how many are transfered. I will endeavor to notify the trustees before the date above mentioned the exact amount the general fund will pay each pupil, according to the July enumeration, so that the monthly salary of the teacher from the general fund may be easily ascertained. Now after the monthly salary has been stated in the contract write on the face of the contract that the teacher is to receive poll tax for that number of children located to his school from such townships—say 61 pupils or 90 pupils, as the case may be. This rule also applies to tranferred pupils, but you must be governed strictly by the July enumeration. A complete report of the business transacted at the annual meetings must be furnished me on blanks supplied by me. No contract will be approved until I know how many pupils are located to the school.

Hereafter public school teachers must use more care in preparing their quarterly reports. They must be made complete in every particular, and correctly signed and certified to by trustees according to law, or no money will be paid the teacher until this is done. Teachers, remember this.

It is to be hoped that trustees and teachers of public schools will thoroughly inform themselves and become familiar with the law governing public schools. There will be an increase in the general fund of about forty per cent, and the schools throughout the county must be lengthened to some extent. Longer terms are needed, especially in the rural districts.

County Supt. Ed.

R. A. O'Hara, of Wilsonville, has been digging during the week past for a large sum of gold coins which he is positive is hidden somewhere on his farm. He has men from other cities doing the work, they to receive half of the money found if successful. It has been reported for some time that sums almost fabulous in the amount were hidden in the northern portion of the county and that everybody owning a one-acre lot with a hog pen in the middle were dreaming sweet dreams and having visions. Mr. O'Hara seems to have some evidence that there is money on his land, and is leaving nothing undone in an effort to secure it.

H. C. Crump, Jasper, Ala., writes: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine 29 years and believe it the best liver medicine on the market. I have had Black Draught handed to me, the clerk declaring it was genuine Simmons medicine. I told him I knew better, and refused to take it.

Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine quickens the appetite, aids digestion, gives tone and vigor to all the functions and fortifies the system against epidemic influences.

Wilsonville Waifs

J. H. Weldon paid Anniston a commercial visit the front end of the week.

Mrs. Pope, mother of J. F. Pope, returned to Oxford Monday.

Mrs. John Hall, of Weldon, is visiting relatives in town this week.

Bud Edwards has resigned his position at the planer to accept a position with the American Pipe and Foundry Co. at Bessemer.

If a stranger had seen the caravan of girls on the Sunday afternoon turf he would have pronounced it a boycott.

The inaugural meeting of the Alsofronian League was entertained Friday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. Williamson, and was very well attended. The principal feature of the evening was a music festival under the able and efficient direction of Miss Baber, which was highly enjoyed by all present until a late hour. The leaguers will meet with Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Pope Friday evening to dispense with the following programme:

Song by the society.
Serio-comic reading by Miss Blossom Densler.
Music—"Charge of the Light Brigade"—Miss Olive Densler.
Town topics—Leon Pope.
Solo—Miss Rosalind Baber.
Why man proposes and woman supposes—Miss Helen Loyer.
Music—Miss Meta Bolin.
Debate—Resolved, That woman is a greater slave to fashion than man. Affirmative, John Weldon and Miss Rosa Graham; negative, Pat McGowen and Miss Ella Thomas.
Music—Miss Baber.
Finale—Lady quartette.

We trust that we may have a good meeting, and that the debaters will burst forth in the very elements of forensic oratory and that the slaves will be slain by substantial argument.

FRIEND O' MINE.

Harpersville.

Turnip patches are looking fine.

It will soon be "tater-digging" time.

A movement is on foot to repaint the Baptist church.

Mr. Willis McClinton and Miss Lizzie Jones were married here last Sunday.

We will be glad when the papers quit talking about Dewey and give us some news. Dewey did not do any more than any other man would have done, and why act such fools over him. Hobson! Hobson and that crew which was with him deserves as much praise in sinking the Merrimac as he did, and yet "they" are not known. Have the people gone wild?

Joe Johnston is being talked of just now more than any one else. We did not approve of his action in regard to the constitutional convention, nor do we endorse some of his appointments, but he has made a good Governor, and as for my part I had about as soon for him to be reelected Governor as some who are spoken of.

Senator John T. Morgan! Yes, the grand old man, we want him reelected. In our opinion he has more brains than McKinley and all of his cabinet; and why get rid of him because he is old? I have a horse that I have made seventeen crops with, and he is a good one yet; and Morgan is a good Senator and ought to be reelected without opposition.

Our farmers are busy gathering their crops. Some are picking cotton, some are gathering corn, some are making "lasses," while others are preparing to sow their wheat and fall oats. The advance in the price of cotton has caused a good many to be able to pay off their old debts, and I believe as a general thing the farmer is in a better fix than he has been for years. This is a great country, for here we can raise everything, and we as a nation are better fed, have more and better and greater variety of foods, better meats, better fruits than any other country on the face of the earth—yes, and cheaper too. We have so much that we send our grains, meats and fruits to adorn the stalls of the markets and grace the tables of Europe.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

ALABAMA STATE FAIR TOPICS OF INTEREST

Chattanooga Southern to Complete Its Line From Gadsden to Montgomery.--Lauderdale County's Fair. New Nursery for Madison.

Interest in the state fair is rapidly increasing all over the state, and news of steps being taken by the various counties to enter into a spirited contest for the county prizes is constantly coming into the headquarters of the fair association.

Perry county has come to the front with an effort to make a splendid exhibit, and Saturday application was made for space for the exhibit, Judge J. B. Shivers, of Perry, has appointed the following committee to handle it: R. A. Hardie, Uniontown; R. A. Payor, Morrowville; W. M. Caffee, Pinetucky; John Sprott, Sprotts; J. F. Sattle, Felix; Dr. J. B. Lucker, Jericho; John B. Curb, Curbville; J. C. Folsom, Mooreville; A. C. Davidson, Uniontown, and S. A. Crawford, Hamburg.

In the poultry department the prospects point to an exceedingly large exhibit. A letter has been received from W. W. Babcock, of Addison, N. Y., applying for space for 300 chickens, and Superintendent McCafferty is in receipt of a communication from a poultry association in Atlanta stating that it will send a car load of fowls to compete for prizes.

The Mexican Band is now practically a certainty. Secretary Rountree is now arranging transportation for it. The band will be in Atlanta eighteen days and here during the entire fair.

November 16 has been set apart as Negro Day, and those in charge of that department say there will be 10,000 negroes to attend on that day.

The Confederate Veterans will hold a meeting to take steps concerning the matter of Veterans' Day. They have been given November 13, and on that day will march to the grounds headed by two big brass bands.

Lauderdale County's Fair.

The annual Lauderdale county holiday season was held at Florence last week, when the gates of the Lauderdale County Fair association were thrown open for the sixth annual fair. The agricultural feature of the fair this year was almost a failure, owing to the long drouth in that county, which has burned up everything worth exhibiting. There was a splendid display of hogs, cattle, horses and mules, chickens, etc. The ladies' department in Floral hall, where are exhibited specimens of all kinds of fancy work, products of the kitchen, etc., was the most splendid success ever made.

This county will also make an exhibit at the coming state fair at Birmingham from the articles displayed at the fair grounds in Florence. The streets of the city are filled daily with visitors from all portions of the county, and the merchants are reaping a rich harvest.

Bringing in Ore Miners.

Six hundred ore miners are to be brought to Birmingham this week from Atlanta and other towns in Georgia, to be put to work in the ore mines at Ishkooda. The mines at Ishkooda have been needing men for some time, but the strike which prevailed there and the disorder and bloodshed kept a number of negroes away from the place. However, everything has been quieted and the negroes can work in peace and just as many as can be secured will be brought.

Nursery Near Huntsville.

A deal has been consummated at Huntsville for the location of another large nursery in Madison county, to be located on an acreage of 850 acres, directly south of the city, by a Louisiana, Missouri, firm. Two hundred and fifty men will be employed steadily. The nursery will be worth $80,000

One Thousand Petitions in Bankruptcy.

The 1,000 mark has been reached in the bankruptcy department of the United States court at Birmingham. Up to date just 1,000 petitions have been filed in the local office of the court and handled by the referee in bankruptcy. While there have been among these several important cases, a large percentage of the petitions were filed by parties involved to the extent of less than $100.

Alabamian Killed in Philippines.

Capt. Bogardus Eldridge, of the Fourteenth infantry, who was killed October 2 at Manilla, was a native of Huntsville. He was the son of Wm. G. Eldridge, a prominent physician of Madison county.

Asphyxiated.

A negro laborer named Jim Thomas laid down next to a gas flue at the Sloss furnaces in Birmingham to take a nap. In a few moments he was asphyxiated.

RAILROAD EXTENSION.

Chattanooga Southern Will Be Extended From Gadsden to Montgomery.

The extension of the Chattanooga Southern is now an assured fact. The road will be extended from Gadsden to Montgomery and a branch line will be built into Birmingham. The Chattanooga Southern extends from Chattanooga to Gadsden, and the mileage extension will be over 125 miles. Running south from Gadsden, it will tap the Black Creek coal fields, some of the most valuable property in the state, and the route to Montgomery will pierce a section of good country. The branch line from Birmingham will tap the main line about forty-five miles south of Gadsden.

Gentral Manager Bonzano, in an interview in Chattanooga Saturday, states that the extensions will cost $1,500,000.

The Chattanooga Southern is now owned by C. P. Huntington and Russell Sage.

The State School Fund.

The census of school children of the state is taken every two years, and from the returns just in from the census taken in August it is shown that there are 635,854 children of the school age in the state. In 1897 there were 613,812. The per capita for the two years ending September 30, 1899, was 73 cents. The apportionment for this year is $1.05, the estimated poll tax running up to $1.30.

Unapportioned appropriation for 1898, $105,964.10; unexpended contingent fund, $17.10; interest on sixteenth section fund, $115,260.61; on valueless sixteenth section fund, $5,825.47; on surplus revenues, $26,763.47; school indemnity land fund, $1,387.19; fees for examination of teachers, $7,732.73; less amount paid per diem to state board of examiners, $885; less sum paid county superintendents, $1,270; $2,155. Total, $5,577.73. Appropriation for fiscal year beginning September 30, $450,000; estimated poll tax, $150,000.

Files His Report.

Secretary of State McDavid had filed his annual report with the governor. The most notable feature of the financial statement of the office is the exceptionally large amount that has been earned in the office in the past year in the way of fees for copying and affixing the great seal, these fees for one year amounting to more than $2,000. The secretary of state makes several important recommendations to the governor, among them one that an expert be employed to straighten up the land record books, which are said to be in bad shape.

A Disastrous Fire at Paint Rock.

Paint Rock had a disastrous fire raging there Saturday night, and the whole business section of the town is probably destroyed. The fire started during the early part of the night in Jim Berry's grocery store and rapidly spread in both directions. At 11 o'clock R. T. Larimer's residence and general store, Tom Tipton's store, Steele & McCully's dry goods store, and Harry Hill's residence had been burned.

Madison's School Teachers.

Dr. J. D. Humphrey, superintendent of education of Madison county, has received from the state superintendent returns of the recent examination of public school teachers. Forty white teachers stood the examination and thirty-five passed. Fifty-eight colored teachers were examined and thirty of them passed. The percentage of first grade licenses awarded is believed to be higher than in any other county in the state.

Victim of Lockjaw.

James White, 19 years of age, died at his home in Whitesburg from the effects of a wound received several days ago while handling a shotgun. The young man was drilling with an old muzzle-loader when it was accidentally discharged, and a large charge of birdshot entered his shoulder. He died of lockjaw.

New Cotton Mill.

There is no doubt but that the new cotton mil will be built at old Allenville, near Prattville, in a short time Nearly all the capital stock has been subscribed.

Opening Up Mines.

William Jackson, of Brookside, has been appointed superintendent of the Alabama Iron and Development company, at Gate City, the concern that absorbed the old Gate City Land company, and has opened up mines at three different places on the property. Under his direction the company has also put in a big sand crusher near the old glass factory and resumed work in the chert pits.

Confederate Reunion.

At a meeting of the veterans of the Southern Confederacy held at Athens it was decided that it was the unanimous wish of the members of the second brigade that a reunion be held in the city of Birmingham during the month of November.

Chairman Robert J. Lowe, has called the executive committee of the democratic party of Jefferson county to meet in Birmingham, October 18.

HERMITS AND FIDDLERS.

Some of the Strange Things One Sees on an Ocean Beach.

Of all the many oddities, none seemed stranger to me than the fiddler and hermit crabs, which are found almost everywhere on the salt water shore. The fiddler is a pert little creature which delights in parading about when the tide is out and the sandy bottom is free for him to travel over. It is sometimes three inches long, generally considerably less, and it gets its name from the fact that it has two very disproportionate claws, one of which is three times as large as the other, so large, indeed, that you wonder how the little fellow manages to carry it about. Whether the crab is at rest or traveling, the claws, big and little, are held aloft, and the position gives them the decidedly comical appearance of fiddling.

All are fiddling and all are, so to speak, dancing, for they keep moving about on the sand, although far from rhythmically. They look as if they had nothing to do, but if you will observe carefully you will find that they are picking up particles of food. Sometimes two crabs may be seen pulling and hauling at the same scrap, and they act much like a pair of boys engaged in a tussle over a plaything. If you wish to put the whole assemblage to flight you will have to rush in, and presto! the whole collection disappears in a manner to surprise the beholder. Then we discover that there are thousands of little burrows in which these diminutive crustaceans live on the shore sands. At low water on the seashore at Cedar Key. I have seen a thousand fiddlers at one time, but if you walk over the strip there will not be one in sight.

Grand Fall Opening.

We call attention to the display advertisement of Loveman, Joseph & Loeb, Birmingham, Ala., announcing their Fall Opening, which will be held in their immense new store, on Monday and Tuesday, October 16 and 17. The wonderful growth of their business demanded more room, and today they could justly boast of a modernized retail establishment unrivalled by any in the entire South. Their exhibit of Ladies' Fall and Winter Costumes and Wraps, Millinery, Dress Goods and Silks, Ladies' Lingerie, Furniture, Imported China and Bric-a-Brac, etc. etc., will well be worth a day's journey to see. A cordial invitation to be present is extended to all.

Good Effects of Singing.

Army Doctor Barth, of Koeslin, Germany, says that singing possesses health giving properties. It intensifies, he says, the respiratory movements, thus rendering the lungs capable of dealing with more air. This increases and strengthens the action of all the organs of the body, appetite and thirst increase, and the more frequent movements of the diaphragm and the wall of the abdomen materially aid digestion.

UNCLE SAM'S POSTAGE STAMPS.

Uncle Sam printed just a few postage stamps during 1898, says the Washington Star. The number of 2-cent stamps issued during the year was about 2,500,000,000. Such a number, obviously, is beyond the grasp of human mind, but perhaps the matter may be made more clear by putting it otherwise.

An ordinary 2 cent stamp is exactly one inch long. From this fact, by a little calculation, it is easy to discover that the number of stamps of this denomination issued in 1898, placed end to end, would extend a distance of 39,000 miles. In other words, they would make a continuous strip of stamps, each one adorned with the head of the father of his country, stretching in a belt more than once and a half around the equator.

Of course, though the two-cent stamps are those principally used, there are others. Enough one-cent postage stamps have been issued during the year 1898 to stretch from New York city by way of Europe and Asia, to Bombay, India, if similarly arranged in one strip. All other stamps, as to production and sale, are of minor importance, comparatively speaking, but it is interesting to know that almost one mile of $1 stamps were manufactured for the demand of 1898. Of $5 stamps the production was equivalent to a little more than half a furlong, or about one-fifteenth of a mile.

Now, if all the postage stamps printed by the United States government in 1898 were placed one on top of another as nearly as might be without putting them under pressure, how high do you suppose the pile of them would be? There is no use guessing, you would never get it nearly right, unless you went to work to calculate it for yourself. The 3,500,000,000 stamps of all denominations printed the current year—the statement of course is approximate—would tower to an elevation of twenty-one miles. This is more than three times the height of the highest mountain in the world—Mount Everest, in the Himalayas. If the same number of stamps was piled up in the form of the ordinary sheets of 100 each, it follows that the stack would be over a fifth of a mile high.

During the year 1898 the number of special delivery stamps sold was about 5,200,000. It is only reasonable to suppose that the average journey of the special delivery messenger is half a mile. Indeed, that is an absurd underestimate, but let it go at that. On this assumption the total distance traveled for special delivery in 1898 was about 2,600,000 miles. That is a very considerable space to traverse, as may be realized when it is considered that a messenger boy, in order to accomplish the total distance would have to go about 1,100 times around the world, or five times to the moon and back.

It appears from figures furnished by the postoffice department that the average person in Massachusetts, including men, women and children, spends $2.30 on postage per annum. New York comes second with an expenditure of $2.27, and the District of Columbia third, with $2.16. Colorado is fourth, with $1.93 and Connecticut is fifth, with $1.80. The states ranking lowest in this regard are South Carolina, with 25 cents per capita; Mississippi, with 34 cents; Alabama, with 35 cents; Arkansas, with 37 cents, and North Carolina, with 41 cents.

The will of George W. Clayton, who died not long ago in Colorado, provides for the establishment of an institution to be known as the George W. Clayton college, on the plan of the Girard college.

VOL. XIV. COLUMBIANA, SHELBY COUNTY, ALABAMA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1899. NO. 44.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR BEGINS

BRITISH ARMORED TRAIN BLOWN UP BY THE BOERS.

FIFTEEN BRITONS KILLED

Consul Macrum Takes Formal Charge of British Affairs.

The London Evening News of Friday published the following dispatch from Cape Town:

"An armored train has been destroyed south of Mafeking. Fifteen British troops were killed. The Boers shelled the wreckage after the train was derailed."

An official dispatch received at the colonial office says:

"The armored train was deatroyed near Kraipan station while on its way to Mafeking with guns."

This disposes of the fear that many women and children were involved in in the disaster.

It was reported in Cape Town, though as yet rumor was not confirmed, that a collision had taken place between trains bearing refugees, near Victoria West, Cape Colony, nine persons being killed and many others injured.

The Boer forces, with artillery, according to a dispatch just received from Standerton, broke camp at Sandspruit yesterday morning, moving in the direction of Natal. The war office has received the following dispatch from the general commanding the Cape forces:

"An armored train from Mafeking, escorting two seven-guns sent from here ,o Mafeking, was attacked last night at Kraipan. Apparently a rail had been removed. The train left the track, and the Boers fired into into it with artillery for a half hour, and captured it. Telegraphic communication with Mafeking is interrupted at Kraipan. The women and children have been sent to Cape Town. The guns referred to belonged to the colony. They are light and of old pattern. We have no details as to casualties."

First Gun Fired.

The first act of the war was the swarming of the Boers across the border of Natal and the occupation of Laings Nek. An advance in the direction of New Castle is also reported, but is not fully confirmed. The British field force in Natal under Generals White and Symons remains on the defensive.

The main body of troops in Cape Colony is also stationary, but a strong force has moved out from Mafeking in Bechuanaland toward the Transvaal border, taking guns and ambulance equipment. This force consists chiefly of rough riders and crack marksmen from Buluwayo, and is stiffened with the Northumberland Fusileers, or the "Fighting Fifth," regarded by Kitchener as his best regiment. The cavalry is commanded by Colonel Baden-Powell and the infantry by Colonel Plummer. These two officers were the best on the British side during the Matabele rebellion.

Joubert Cautions His Troops.

Advices from Pretoria state that Commandant General Joubert's command is now at Volksrust. Several Cape Colonists have been sworn in as Burghers. The town is quiet. Postal communication with the surrounding colonies has been suspended, but that between the Transvaal and the Orange Free State is maintained.

Commandant General Joubert has issued a circular from the chief laager in consequence of the report that some of the Burghers had misbehaved themselves on their journey to the borders, plundering a number of stores. Such offenses, the commandant general says, will be severely punished.

"When we are unwillingly compelled to cross the boundary line of our country," says General Joubert, "let it not be thought that we are a band of robbers, and with that in view, remain as far as possible from private dwellings and from places where no enemy is stationed. When food or forage for the cattle is needed, let certain officers acquire such goods from the owner, and let a receipt be given with promise of recompense by the government."

Macrum Now British Agent.

A special from Washington says: The state department was notified Friday of the withdrawal from Pretoria of Mr. Conyngham Greene, the British diplomatic agent to the South African republic, and the existence of a state of war between Great Britain and that republic. Mr. Macrum, the American consul at Pretoria, has accordingly been instructed to undertake the care of the British interests in that section during the war.

The notification came to the state department in the shape of a note from Mr. Tower, the charge of the British embassy in Washington. The details of the transfer of the interests in case of war has been previously arranged, so all that was necessary was the dispatch of a brief cablegram to Mr. Macrum at Pretoria.

This officer is the superior in rank to the other consular representatives of the United States, not only in the Transvaal, but in the Orange Free State, and has been entrusted to give these officials the necessary directions. The only consular official beside Mr. Macrum in the South African republic is a Mr. Gordon, who succeeded Mr. Manion as consular agent at Johannesburg, Mr. Manion having resigned a few months ago.

In the Orange Free State the United States is represented by Alfred Elliott, consular agent at Bloemfontein. He is an Englishman, and therefore it is questionable whether or not he will remain at his post in his capacity as American agent. If he retires, Mr. Macrum will probably select some American to take up the duties of consular agent.

There is no present intention at the state department to issue a proclamation of neutrality.

DEWEY IN VERMONT.

Admiral Lays a Corner-Stone at His Alma Mater In Northfield.

The little village of Northfield, Vermont, in the very heart of the Green Mountain State, and the home of Norwich university, at which Admiral Dewey as a cadet was grounded in the principles of military training, greeted the famous naval officer Friday morning.

The occasion was the laying of the corner stone of Dewey hall, a building made possible by voluntary contributions from prominent alumni of the university.

The exercises began with an introductory address by Commander Brown, president of the university, who introduced Colonel Henry O. Kent, of Lancaster, N. H., senior member of the board of trustees of the university, and a classmate of the admiral. Colonel Kent delivered an address of welcome.

Commander Brown also welcomed Admiral Dewey. The admiral then stepped forward and laid the cornerstone. As he spread the mortar and the stone was lowered, he said:

"I now declare this stone duly and truly laid and according to my wish."

After the admiral had completed the laying of the cornerstone, Commander Brown introduced Chauncey M. Depew, United States senator-elect of New York, the orator of the day.

At the conclusion of Mr. Depew's address Admiral Dewey held a brief reception, after which he was escorted back to his train and left for Boston, where a public reception was given him

Twenty-five members of the Atlanta battalion had been summoned to appear before the court to tell what they knew of the looting of the stores in North Carolina by the men of that command.

PAPERS DENOUNCE BRITONS.

The German and Russian Press Express Opinions Freely.

A cable dispatch from London says: The formation of a British fly squadron has created considerable bewilderment. It is purely a defensive measure and inspired by the bitter hostility to England displayed by the continental press.

The Russian official organs are foremost in their threats and incitements to join the action against Great Britain, though official Germany proclaims itself neutral, the German press is second only to the Russian in its denunciation of England's South African policy.

Several prominent citizens have been heard to express themselves as wholly in sympathy with the girl strikers and have signified their intention to see them through the matter.

RHODES GOT AWAY.

Boer Spies Did Not Know That He Was So Near.

According to the Kimberly correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, Cecil Rhodes had a narrow escape from capture while on his way to England. His train was delayed and he passed the Modder river three hours after the expiration of the ultimatum when the Boers were only five miles distant and some of their spies were actually on the platform.

J. F. POPE,

WILSONVILLE, ALA.

QUARANTINE FIGHT.

Supreme Court Will Be Asked to Settle Trouble Between Louisiana and Texas.

A special from New Orleans states that E. H. Farrar, special representative of the state of Louisana, left that city Sunday for Washington, where he will file a petition and present a strong brief before the United States supreme court asking for an injunction, in the name of the state of Louisiana, against the state of Texas, to restrain the latter from interfering with the commerce of Louisiana by her quarantine restrictions.

Governor Sayers, of Texas, and Dr. Blunt, health officer of that state, have already been notified of the proposed action of Louisiana by Attorney General Cunningham, and of the intention of Lousiana to bring the question of embargo by means of the quarantine before the federal supreme court.

The suit was brought at the demand of the merchants of New Orleans, who claim that Texas has kept in operation an embargo against Louisiana since May that is unreasonable and unjust, and has made it tighter from day to day.

Dr. Blunt and Attorney General Smith, of Texas, will be in Washington to fight the case, as it is desired by all parties to have an early ruling from the supreme court as to the questions of quarantines, and whether the United States has any jurisdiction when one state injures another or shuts out its commerce altogether under the name of quarantine, regardless of the fact whether there is any infectious disease prevailing or not.

There have been several of these quarantine wars between the southern states during the last three years, notably between Alabama and Mississippi, and between Louisiana and Texas, but they have been patched up heretofore instead of being carried into the federal courts.

HIGHWAYMEN MET WITH COLD LEAD

Bold Attempt to Rob Sevierville, Tenn., Bank.

RESULT WAS DISASTROUS

One Killed, Another Wounded and Third Suicided.

A daring attempt was made Friday to rob the Sevierville bank, at Sevierville, Tenn. At noon the citizens of that mountain village, twenty-seven miles from Knoxville, were startled by the repeated crack of winchesters in the heart of the courthouse square.

The masked men, armed with winchesters and braces of heavy Colts pistols, were firing into the open door of the Sevierville bank. The volley came more as a signal than as a surprise to the officers of the town, who had been previously warned that an attempt would be made to rob the bank by three desperadoes.

They accordingly secreted themselves in a building opposite the bank building, and the fire of the bold outlaws was promptly answered by a fusilade from smoking winchesters.

Thurmer, the leader of the robbers, dropped to the ground wounded to death. Cal Derrick fell seriously wounded. The third man escaped. For a mile and a half he ran in front of fierce fire from the pursuing officers. He entered an open door of a barn, out of sheer desperation, and his place of refuge was quickly surrounded. Realizing that the odds were immensely against him, he stepped out in plain view of all, saluted the sheriff, and crying "Good-by, boys," placed his pistol to his head and blew out his brains.

The officers could but admire the mountain desperado's nerve, and covering the bloody form with grass and wheat sacks, until it could be removed, they left the place in silence. They were men of the mountains, famous for the illicit distilleries and the atrocious outrages of whitecapism, some were members of the whitecap order, or kuklux klan, and yet this was an unexpected finale to the tragedy being enacted.

They returned to the perturbed little village. Thurmer was in the agony of death throes. Cal Derrick was wounded twice in the right leg. Two of the three horses were dead in the street.

The townspeople were wild with excitement, and there were threats of a lynching. This fever was soon subdued. Derrick was attended by a physician, who pronounced him not fatally injured.

For Thurmer there was never the slightest hope. He was an ex-convict whom Governor Bob Taylor had pardoned. He was serving a life sentence for the murder of a Knoxville policeman. Cal Derrick was a desperate mountain character, who had just returned from a carouse in the west. He was married but was not living with his wife.

William Derrick, the suicide, was thought to be a respecetable, peacable man. He was a Knoxville livery men and was married. The desperadoes were driven to Sevierville by a man named Cruze, who is under arrest as an accomplice.

Threat to Release Derrick.

Much excitement prevailed at Sevierville, Tenn., Saturday from a report that whitecaps would attempt to release Cal Derrick, one of the would-be robbers of the Sevierville bank.

BOERS MENACE ENGLISH TOWN

Kimberly Besieged and a Railway Station Is Seized.

KRUGER'S TROOPS ACTIVE

Boers Were Ready and Waiting For That Armored Train.

The London Daily Mail's Cape Town correspondent, telegraphing Sunday evening, says:

"Kimberly is besieged and the Boers are massing in force. No details, however, are obtainable.

"The Boers have cut the railway at Belmont, have seized the Spyfontein railway station and constructed fortified earth works. There are strong defending forces at Modder bridge and the Orange river bridge.

"The object of these energetic operations is believed to be the capture of Cecil Rhodes. Kimberly is now isolated, both railway and telegraphic communication being cut."

The Daily Mail's Glencoe Camp correspondent under date of Sunday says:

"A force under Commandant Viljoen from Spitzkep, occupied New Castle Saturday afternoon, and it is reported planted their flag over the town hall.

"It is rumored that the Boers have captured a police patrol of six men at Dejagers, on the Buffalo river."

So far as actual news is concerned, very little change in the situation is noticed. The state affairs at Mafeking can only be conjectured. The occupation of New Castle by the Boers was prepared for and expected, the place having been abandoned by the British. The Boers are reported by press dispatches to be menacing Kimberly.

Boers Were On the Watch.

Further details are at hand regarding the destruction of the armored train at Kraaipan. These show that Captain Nesbitt, who was in command of the train, was warned at Maribago that the Boers held the line. He replied that he was bound to proceed. Nearing Kraaipan, the train dashed into a culvert that had been blown up by the Boers, who were lying in wait for the train. The Boer artillery immediately opened fire and a desperate fight appears to have ensued, lasting four hours, with the odds greatly against the British. The precise details are uncertain.

It seems, however, that a police patrol, attracted by the firing, approached within about two thousand yards of Kraaipan, saw the train ditched with the Boer artillery still pounding at it, but noticed no response. The Boers seemed afraid to approached until the wreck was complete; and the police feared, as there was no sign of life near the train, that the entire force had perished in a desperate attempt to get the train back to Mafeking, where they knew it was anxiously awaited with its load of guns and ammunition.

It is reported that the Boers lost heavily, but there is no means of verifying this. Two miles of rails were torn up.

There is no authoritative confirmation of the report that a battle has been fought in Natal between Sir General George Stewart White and the Orange Free State troops, although there is no question that the Boers have crossed the frontier at several points.

VICTIMS OF EARTHQUAKES.

Death List For Island of Coran Placed at 4,000 Souls.

Official dispatches from Batavia, capital of The Netherlands Indies, confirm the reports regarding the recent earthquake on the island of Coran.

Not only the town of Amhoi, on the south side of the island, was destroyed, but several other villages were wrecked. The official advices declare that no fewer than 4,000 people were killed and hundreds of others seriously injured.

Marchand Anxious to Fight.

Advices from Paris state that Major Marchand, who commanded the French expedition in the Soudan, wished to go and fight for the Boers for revenge for being compelled to withdraw from Fashoda, but the government refused him permission.

VESSEL BURNED AND LIVES LOST

Boat Destroyed By Fire In Long Island Sound.

THE ALARM WAS WITHELD

Seven of the Crew and Three Passengers Either Perish In Flames or Were Drowned.

A New York special says: The Bridgeport steamer Nutmeg State was burned in Long Island sound off Sands Point, L. I., at sunrise Saturday morning and ten persons were burned to death or drowned.

Most of the passengers who escaped suffered nothing more than shock from immersion in chilly water, and only four persons were sent to the hospital. The steamer was run to the beach at the outbreak of the flames and burned to the water's edge.

The bodies of two victims of the disaster drifted ashore about noon on the beach, a mile east of the blazing wreck.

One was the body of a woman about twenty-eight years old, and the other a girl of four years.

The Nutmeg State, with over a hundred persons on board, bound from Connetticutt towns to New York, was discovered on fire about half-past five, when she was within a few miles of Sands Point, L. I.

The flames were in the bow of the boat between the forward cabin and the donkey engine room. The fire was on the main deck, and seemed to be a small affair; so Captain C. M. Brooks, not wishing to needlessly alarm the passengers, ordered the crew to work as quietly as possible with buckets and hose. For about twenty minutes the flames did not seem to be dangerous, and the men appeared to have them in control. Suddenly they burst into a furious blaze amidship.

Baggageman Samuel Jaynes was detached from the fire fighters and sent to alarm the passengers and all the members of the crew who were in the forward part of the boat. He ran through the passageways on the several decks, shouting to the passengers on the several decks, shouting to the passengers and the sleeping crew. He remained amidships crying out warnings until he was forced by the flames and stifling smoke to jump overboard.

BURGLAR MAKES CONFESSION

Which Causes the Arrest of Two Well Known Citizens of Atlanta.

At Atlanta, Ga., Saturday, Vincent F. Pickert, son of A. F. Pickert, was arrested on a warrant charging him with burglary. This was a sensational development of the sensational arrest of A. F. Pickert, which occurred three days before, and who was released under a $2,000 bond. Immediately after his arrest young Pickert was also released on a $2,000 bond.

These two arrests of father and son, two men who have hitherto stood well in the community, and who are well-to-do financially, is the result, the city detectives claim, of the discovery of one of the most notorious and gigantic "fences" that has ever been known in Atlanta.

The elder Pickert was a prominent jeweler in Atlanta for many years. His son is a lawyer by profession and a pawnbroker by trade.

Upon the statement of a confessed negro burglar, Will Etheridge, confined in the Tower, backed up by evidence which the officers claim is strongly corroborative, it is expected to convict the two men, one of burglary and other of receiving stolen goods.

The Pickerts deny their guilt. Their friends claim for them that the evidence against them is nothing more than a lie made up by a self-confessed thief and that there is absolutely nothing to back it and that there will never be.

MAY CAUSE COMPLICATIONS.

French Detectives Cause the Death of English Subject.

A dispatch to The New York Times from Paris says:

"A great sensation has been caused here by the murder of an Englishman named Derrick by French detectives at Dieppe. Derrick was so shockingly injured that an unusual surgical operation had to be performed upon him, with the result that he died.

"The British consul is attempting to bring the murderers of Derrick to justice. English feeling is intensely excited about the incident, which is likely to have important international consequences."

FACTS AND FIGURES.

The Montgomery Journal claims that the last issue of this paper was full of misrepresentations of the Governor. In support of its claims it mentions two out of twenty paragraphs in which we pointed out fallacies in the Governor's recent epistle to the people. The first of these is that paragraph in which we reminded the Governor that he had opposed the passage of the increased appropriations to common schools. The Journal reiterates the claim made by the Governor at the time he was charged with the opposition that he opposed it on account of the burden it would put upon the treasury. The Journal attributes to this paper ignorance of the facts. We take pleasure in giving that paper some of the information we possess on that point.

We know that Governor Johnston tried to defeat the bill for increased appropriations through his friends to relieve himself of the necessity of vetoing it. We know that the bill carrying a special tax rate was not the plan of the Governor, but that it passed over his private opposition, and that he only signed it because it would have been unpopular to refuse to do so. We know these things from a source as reliable as that from which the Journal speaks.

The Journal also charges us with ignorance of the amount of saving to the State by the examination of public accounts. We take our figures in this matter from the Auditor's report, which gives the net amount of money returned into the State treasury for the years 1897 and 1898 at a little over $9,000. We said nothing about what the examiners had found to be due; we referred to the practical results, and we stand upon the figures. We also notice in this connection that the Treasurer's report recently published does not show the receipt of one cent from this source, though it shows an expense of more than $5,000 on that account. We presume that the official figures are to be taken in preference to the bare statement of the Governor in a lengthy praise of his own acts.

The Journal does not know whether it is ignorance or malignancy that causes the Governor's enemies to misrepresent him. It is the Governor's own misrepresentation of facts and his suppression of figures which causes these replies to his statements. And the Journal joins him in this withdrawal of attention from the truth. The two matters referred to above are the least important of the matters pointed out by us. Why did it not reply to those paragraphs in which we called attention to the increase in the tax rate, the increase of total expenditures, the shortage of tax values, the fact that assessors could be made to do the work of tax commissioners at less expense and with less annoyance to the people, the fact that he misstated the condition of prices of farm products, the fact that certain corporations in this county are drawn up to the rack while politicians are let alone, and other things to which we called attention?

If fusion prevails the Democrats will win on the color line; if anti-fusion is the order it will be "nip and tuck."

Let's see. Judge Longshore supported Aldrich last year; Clerk Pearson did not. Judge Longshore received six votes for chairman of the Populist committee; Clerk Pearson received all the balance of a large attendance. As an indication of his position and political acts it seems to us that Mr. Pearson has cause for congratulation.

In the Governor's letter, printed on our first page last week, we find this sentence: "Within a little over two years (from January 1, 1897) this deficit was entirely extinguished." The report of the State Treasurer, published this week, shows that the net deficiency on the 30th of September last was $254,699.96. Will the Montgomery Journal please explain the difference between these two statements?

Since the Montgomery Journal is in the business of making apologies for the Governor and his official acts, we would like to have it explain to us why the whole power of the back tax law was directed against the Shelby Iron Company in this county, attempting to raise their taxes to their full limit, while no effort was made to raise the taxes of the Montevallo Coal and Transportation Company. The Shelby company, with only a part of its property in this county, was paying a fair valuation, and a jury of the county said so, though it gave a judgment for the value of the pig iron on hand, half of which was exempt if properly claimed. The Montevallo company is now capitalized at $100,000 and its president says its stock is worth par; yet it pays taxes only on $35,000 worth of property. None of the officers of the Shelby company are politicians, or take any interest in politics except to vote. The president of the Montevallo company, Mr. Aldrich, is a boodle politician of the worst type, not only seeking office himself, but dictating the nomination of half the officers of this county, and the election of all of them. There can be no excuse for his escape, for this paper has called attention to it for more than a year. When the great principle of equality before the law is shouted we would like to know the cause its flagrant violation.

THE CAT LET OUT.

Our Populist neighbor, the Advocate, lets the cat out of the bag in its last issue. We have been looking for the admission for a long time, and it has finally come. It says, "The People's Party cares no more for the free coinage of silver than the free coinage of gold." We have often charged the Populist party with that very position. When it declined to support the great leader of free silver, and even defeated him by putting out separate tickets in the close States, the charge was proven. When it supported a gold-bug stockholder in a national bank and corporation president for Congress, the charge was proven. When it fused with nominees of negro conventions for county officers, the charge was proven. And now its organ admits the charge in plain English.

In fact the Populist party does not care for anything except office. It started out as an ardent advocate of low tariff, and wound up with a declaration for protection to pacify the Republican voters in this State. It howled long and loud for free silver, and wound up by supporting a Republican for Congress. It cursed the corporations, and wound up by boot licking the head of one for his power over the negro vote. It cried out for low taxes, and its first act in this county was to raise them above the constitutional limit. It has never put one of its principles into practice when it had the opportunity, but has violated and forsaken them all when the exigencies of the place hunter demanded.

We are glad the Advocate had the manhood to tell the truth one time. We call the especial attention of the Montgomery Journal to this declaration of our contemporary.

At Huntsville Senator Morgan made a speech before the Industrial Convention. We clip the following from a report of it:

Ex-Governor William A. MacCorkle, chairman of the convention, introduced the speaker in the following words:

Gentlemen, it is far from my purpose to make a political speech, but I will say that when John T. Morgan leaves the Senate of the United States there will be an intellectual void in that body that can never be filled by any other man. I have known him many years and I find that he grows greater as I know him better. I say to you, in all the earnestness of my being, if old age makes greatness, God give us some more men in the South like John T. Morgan.

There can be no higher tribute paid no better reason advanced for his reelection.

THE SCHOOL LANDS.

Meeting of Boards of Trustees of Two Schools.

[Montgomery Advertiser.]

The Montevallo and Tuskegee trustees met in joint session in the Governor's office at 2 p. m. yesterday to receive the report of Commissioners Plowman and Thompson, and to agree upon a method of division of the 50,000 acres between the two schools. Governor Johnston presided and Rev. C. W. Hare was made secretary.

The Montevallo school was represented by the Governor and Superintendent of Education Abercrombie, ex-officio members; Judge Austill, Senators Thompson and Moody, Judge A. H. Alston, Col. S. W. John, Rev. Dr. G. B. Eager and Capt. T. S. Plowman.

Tuskegee, by Messrs. G. W. Campbell, C. W. Hare, Booker T. Washington, Lewis Adams, Warren Logan, J. W. Adams and R. C. Bedford.

The commissioners reported 50,600 acres selected, which they felt, after such deductions as might be necessary were made, would leave the full 50,000 acres. The report was adopted and the work of the commissioners were ended.

Various methods for dividing the lands were suggested. It was finally agreed that each school should select a man and these two a third, who should go over the lands and divide them into two parts, equal in acreage, and as nearly equal as possible in value, and then in the presence of the Governor to cast lots for the first choice.

Montevallo is to be represented by Captain Plowman and Tuskegee by Mr. C. W. Hare. They will at once select the third man. Their work is to be completed by Nov. 1st, 1899. A selection of 45,000 acres is to be made at once. The remaining 5,000 acres are more or less scattered and are to be selected with a view to their sale to parties who own lands adjoining them. These lands are in Jefferson, Tuscaloosa, Walker and Winston.

After the adjournment of the joint session the Tuskegee board met in the State Treasurer's office. Mr. H. T. DeBardeleben went before the board at its request and gave very valuable and interesting information with reference to his plans and his knowledge of the State's mineral lands. The Tuskegee board has not yet seen its way clear to accept any propositions for sale made to it.

A hearty and unanimous vote of thanks was extended to Mr. W. W. Thompson for his faithful and efficient services as commissioner for the school in selecting its 25,000 acres of land. The meeting of the board was excellent in spirit and very interesting.

The Montevallo board had a meeting at the same time that the Tuskegee board was in private consultation, and they approved the work and actions of the building committee, which were submitted. The matter of the land sale was deferred until the lots were drawn and it was decided what parcels and tracts each school was to have, and then would come up the final determination of the sale of lands upon which Mr. DeBardeleben has the option. Nothing final was done by this board in relation to its land, as matters were not in shape for such action. The whole matter was talked over and the situation was regarded as very satisfactory.

THE STATE FAIR.

Committee Appointed from Shelby County on Exhibits.

THE ATTRACTIONS TO BE SEEN.

Preparations Being Made for a Splendid Exhibit of Resources.

Judge Longshore has appointed the following committee from Shelby County to represent the county at the State Fair:

Jno. E. Morris, Ganadarque..Lumber
W. E. Brinkerhoff, Dogwood ...Coal
J. P. Christian, Shelby.... .....Iron
J. B. Randall, Calera ....Lime
E. L. Turner, Calera ....Lime
Pleasant Shaw, Aldrich.....Coal
G. F. Peters, Maylene.....Coal
S. L. Walthall, Columbiana.....
F. W. Gist, Columbiana.....

At the last term of the commissioners court it was suggested that the county appropriate $200 for a general exhibit, but on account of the financial condition of the county it was decided not to do so. The gentlemen named above will be expected to send exhibits in their various lines, and if any parties not named desire they may add any exhibits they may have.

The following gives some idea of the preparations being made for the various attractions at the Fair:

The Alabama State Fair and Agricultural Association will make their first fair, to be given in Birmingham November 7th to 17th inclusive the greatest fair ever seen in Alabama. It will be an affair that will attract attention not only in Alabama but elsewhere. The invitations that have been sent to the various governors in the South have met with a fair reply, and already assurances have been received that at least four governors and their staffs will be here, provided nothing unforseen occurs. The presence of the Mexican National band is also an item that makes the fair more than a mere State affair. Then it will be the first opportunity given for a general display of not only the agricultural interests, but also the timber, mineral and manufacturing interests ever had before. Each county rich in mineral deposits will have some of it here on exhibition. The agricultural display will be fine, while the large manufacturing interests will have a most creditable display.

The largest number of racing horses, trotting, pacing and running horses, ever before seen in Alabama will be at the fair in that city in November. Letters and entry blanks have been received from horse owners throughout the South, North, East and West. As far up as Detroit, Mich., interest is being taken in the Alabama State Fair. A prominent horse owner there writes that he will bring a good string here, being satisfied with the purses that have been offered, and also the rules which are set down to govern the races. Some of the best pacers and trotters in the country will be brought here, and lovers of that sport will have their appetite in that direction well satisfied. The race track is finished, and well informed race men pronounce it one of the finest tracks to be found in the country. The track was built by a firm equipped for the work and it was well done. The grand stand, which will accommodate no less than five thousand people, is also completed. The porch to the exhibition will also be used as a viewing stand over the track. With the standing room around the track it is estimated that no less than fifty thousand people can see every race. There will be racing every day during the fair. The full programme of racing, which has been out for some day, will be carried out to the letter and some fine sport is certainly promised.

The exhibition hall, the grand stand, the race track and other buildings are completed, and within another fortnight the exhibitions from all sections of the State and elsewhere will commence arriving. By November 1 the work of arranging the displays will be under way and when the opening day of the fair is at hand the grounds will be ready for the big crowds. The various departments of the fair will be in proper shape on the first day and the management will give strict attention to see that everything is kept in good condition through the entire ten days. People who come the first day will see much to satisfy their whims and it will mean future visits. The railroad rates go into effect all over the State in plenty of time to allow people to get here for the first day. Tickets are so limited as to allow the people to remain here if they so desire through the fair. There are no reasons why there should not be a big crowd right from the start. The arrangement of the programme is such such that every day there will be something new to be seen and heard and something which everybody will enjoy.

COTTON SITUATION.

Shortage in the Crop More Than Ever Apparent.

The cotton crop is undoubtedly short. All the reports say so, and it seems that the European buyers are beginning to realize it. The following telegram was received here yesterday:

NEW YORK, Oct. 17, 1899.

The semi-weekly interior receipts are 30 per cent under last year. Shipments 8 per cent less. A. J. Buston, a prominent Liverpool broker now in Texas, estimates the crop under nine millions. The market is very firm and looks higher.

PRICE, McCORMIC & Co.

Futures advanced 5 to 10 points Tuesday, and the spot market was firm. It is thought that if European buyers become satisfied of the shortness of the crop they will go in the market, and that the price will at once advance.

They Should Know it.

Many women suffer untold agony and misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood. They have been led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for the many ills that beset womankind.

Neuralgia, nervousness, headache, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, rheumatism, a dragging pain or dull ache in the back, weakness or bearing-down sensation, profuse or scanty supply of urine with strong odor, frequent desire to pass it with scalding or burning sensation, sediment in it after standing in bottle or common glass for 24 hours are signs of kidney and bladder trouble.

The above symptoms are often attributed by the patient herself or by her physician to female weakness or womb trouble. Hence, so many fail to obtain relief, because they are treating, not the disease itself, but a reflection of the primary cause, which is kidney trouble.

In fact, women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same remedy.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is the great discovery of the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is easy to get at any drug store for 50 cents or $1.

To prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and book telling all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Kindly mention THE CHRONICLE, and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

ANTI-FUSION CHAIRMAN.

Jno. P. Pearson Elected by Populist Committee.

The Populist county executive committee met here on Saturday last. A full attendance was had, all beats but two being represented.

M. S. Wilson resigned his position as chairman of the committee, and Jno. P. Pearson was elected in his place. The names before the committee were Judge A. P. Longshore and Jno. P. Pearson, and the latter was elected by an overwhelming majority. Mr. Pearson has been known as a middle-of-the-road Populist for several years and has opposed fusion. His election is supposed to be an indication that the idea of a straight Populist ticket will prevail next year. This idea has been in a formative state for some time, and it is supposed that the election of Mr. Pearson is the culmination of that sentiment.

The claims of the anti-fusionists is that a straight Populist ticket would command a better support in the county, and could be elected. Mr. Pearson's own election seems to bear out this thing, and the result of both elections last year showed that a great many white Populists stayed at home.

The anti-fusion sentiment is very strong, but whether it will prevail remains to be seen. The Populist committee will meet again in January next to call primaries.

It is understood that Mr. Wilson resigned for the purpose of becoming a candidate for tax assessor. From one source the rumor comes that he was asked to resign on account of his fusion tendencies, but this does not appear to be true.

There will be little local interest in politics before the first of the year, when candidates will begin to loom up on both sides.

If you want a first-class watch or clock at greatly reduced prices, or one repaired by the most experienced watchmaker in this section, call on Mr. J. H. South, of Montevallo. You will find him strictly reliable.

Mrs. Armstrong has decided not to have an opening and display of her millinery goods this season, but has arranged the stock in a convenient form and is now ready to serve the ladies in her line.

'Possum hunts are of almost nightly occurrences lately, and some fine animals have been brought in by boys of the town. They state that the woods are well supplied and that it is not at all necessary to remain up the entire night to catch enough to grease a peck of potatoes.

Uncle Jimmy Thomas, the butcher, is at his home near here suffering greatly from a carbuncle. The carbuncle is situated on the back of his neck, covering it entirely, and has eaten its way to the bones, making a very disagreeable sore. He is receiving medical attention and is not being neglected by his friends.

For durability and excellence of service there is an old towel in our office which could compare favorably with exhibits in the textile department at the State fair. It was purchased by us during the freeze of last February from a merchant who advertises in these columns, has not been ten feet from the rack and was never washed. It cost only a dime and has in every respect demonstrated its worth.

Two of our enterprising merchants have quite an improvement in the way of scales. These scales are self-computing, having registers to indicate the price and amount of an article weighed even to the small fraction of a pound and cent, thus dispensing with the use of paper and pencil. Customers having their purchases weighed on these scales will receive nothing but for what they pay, as it is so adjusted that a pea would doubtless be sufficient to throw the balance.

Unless the young men around here who are addicted to the habit of smoking have reached the age of 21 they are likely to do without their favorite "siesta" for awhile. They can't buy it, neither are others permitted to give it to them. A law has been on the statute books for some time prohibiting the selling or giving to minors cigarettes, cigarette leaves or smoking tobacco, but it has never been rigidly enforced nor much respected in this city until recently, when a prominent attorney of this city went among the merchants and requested that the law be observed. As a result minors can not procure their tobacco from the stores here nor from any one over the age of 21. The law is a good one and should be kept among the statutes for all time to come.

THE EXAMINER EXAMINED

Tax Collector Smith Finds Most of His Shortage.

EXAMINER TOO HASTY IN FIGURES.

An Overcharge of $338.57 Found By Careful Checking.

Two weeks ago we published the report of State Examiner Purifoy on the books and accounts of Tax Collector A. F. Smith, which showed that he was indebted to the State in the sum of $473.56.

Mr. Smith employed P. G. Trent to check up the accounts reported by the examiner, and the result of Mr. Trent's work is given below.

The errors reported by the examiner consisted of four classes of items, viz: assessment of escapes by the collector not reported, assessments to owner unknown not reported, poll taxes not reported and a difference in the year 1892, the nature of which does not appear. The following table shows the amount of these items found by the examiner for each year. In the second column of figures is shown the amounts found by Mr. Trent to have been reported but overlooked by the examiner. The total of these amounts deducted from the total of the charges by the examiner gives the real amount of errors by Mr. Smith, and when the interest is added gives the amount due by him.

	Charged by Examiner	Errors found by Trent
1892—
Collector's Assessment	$67 91	$56 73
Difference State tax*	41 06	.....
1893—
Collector's Assessment	37 17	25 60
Poll tax	7 50	.....
1894—
Collector's Assessment	30 54	26 70
Owner Unknown†	145 25	145 25
1895—
Collector's Assessment	19 99	15 72
Poll tax	9 00	.....
	358 42	270 00
Amount really due	.....	88 42
Interest	.....	46 57
Total	.....	134 99

In the items marked by a (*) it does not appear what it is for, and it is impossible to tell whether the charge is correct. In the item marked (†) the examiner by turning over one leaf of the assessment book would have found the amount properly charged against the collector. In the items of collector's assessments for the various years a great number were assessed and reported in one beat and collected in another. These were found by Mr. Trent by a careful checking of the entire assessment book, which the examiner evidently failed to do. Mr. Smith saves himself $338.57 by this careful checking of the examiner's report, and this amount he will refuse to pay.

Mr. Smith feels sure that he can show the whole charge against him to be without foundation, and he will refuse to pay it. If he is sued he will defend on the lines set out above.

The astronomers and papers tell us that a great meteoric shower is to be expected about the middle of November which in brilliancy and effect will surpass the one of 1833, when the "stars fell." These showers are periodical and occur at intervals of thirty-three years, the last of any consequence being witnessed in 1866. They have never been known to fail, and those in our midst who can recall the shower of 1833 say that it is something awe-inspiring. 'Possum hunters and nightly pedestrians should keep their eyes on the heavens during the nights of November 14 and 15, the time predicted when the shower will occur.

Black Boy Killed by Passing Train Last Night.

At an early hour this morning the body of a negro boy was found on the railroad track near Nelsons Switch in a mangled condition. Justice Moore was notified, and went up to hold an inquest. He found the body lying just in the track, the head badly crushed and one leg cut entirely off. The body had been dragged from its former position, giving evidence that two trains had passed over it, the last one doubtless severing the leg. The accident had probably occurred in the fore part of the night.

The body was brought this morning to the depot here, and was identified as that of a son of Jim Shaw, who lives near here. The boy was 14 years old, and had been working for Mr. German near Creswell. He was seen last night at 8 o'clock passing the house of Mr. Lyons above here. At 8.30 a train carrying Robinson's circus passed down, stopping at the tank for water. It is thought that the boy must have attempted to board the train, when he was killed.

The father and sister of the boy arrived here about noon, and identified the body as that of his son. The remains were interred here.

Wilsonville Waifs

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dykes were guests of the city Sunday.

The headgear of our ladies presents a spectacle of beauty, uniformity and style, and yet the poor boys are condemned slaves of fashion, as was decided Friday evening at the debate.

J. H. Hammond, the heavy-weight grocer of your city, was in town a few hours Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Sanders returned to-day from a week's visit to Calera.

Harry Stoudemire marketed a fine load of watermelons here Tuesday.

Jim Mason, our young merchant, has a considerable amount of business in Columbiana of late, and it's hard to ascertain the nature of his visits. As he is a merchant, though, Sunday visits are rather suggestive—eh?

Sam Wallace now pulls the lines over a fine pair of "workersons."

We will indeed give a sigh of relief when the stock law goes into effect, as 'twill cause the two-bit yearlings and hogs to disappear from the streets, and as a natural consequence the fleas will disappear in self-defense.

Mrs. J. M. Brown's death occurred Sunday morning at 6 o'clock. Her departure was not unexpected, as she had been sick for months and had doubtless suffered the tortures of a dozen deaths. The husband was absent from the city and could not be located by letter or telegram. This incident alone added a double solemnity to the occasion. Her two sons, G. W. Brown, of Atlanta, and J. M. Brown, jr., of Ensley City, were both reached by telegram and responded readily in due time for the funeral. The funeral occurred Monday afternoon and was conducted by Revs. Burns and Francis at the Methodist church. We extend condolence to the relatives of the deceased.

The Alsofronian League met at the residence of J. F. Pope Friday evening to present their literary entertainment, and verily it was a splendid program worthy of special comment, but we will not consume your valued space with a detailed account. Suffice us to say that each member acquitted himself with elegance and ease. Below we submit the program to be executed Friday night week:

It will be published by the Review Publishing company, of which Frank Leslie is president, N. T. P. Finch editor, and Shelby Smith business manager.

Brutal Assassination.

Edward P. Royle was brutally assassinated a few days ago about 9 o'clock at Selden's bridge, on the Tayloe road, a half mile east of Uniontown. James D. Long, his brother-in-law, was with him. The fatal shot came from a gun loaded with slugs, making three terrible wounds in the abdomen. There is no clue to the murderer.

They are worth from $1 to $5 per ton.

Confederate Dead in Madison, Wis.

An effort is to be made to have the resting place of the 110 brave confederate soldiers, who were Alabamians, and died while in prison at Madison, Wis., marked by a fitting shaft. Captain S. B. Trapp, president of the convict bureau, will call the matter to the attention of the Ladies' Memorial association of Alabama, and ask that some steps for the preservation of the graves be taken. The soldiers were members of the First Alabama regiment, which was captured at Island No. 10, and imprisoned at Madison. During their imprisonment 110 of them died.

Southern Industrial Convention Adjourns.

The Southern Industrial convention, which has been in session at Huntsville four days, adjourned sine die Friday evening. Governor MacCorkle will select a place for the next meeting, to be held six months hence.

The convention adopted resolutions recommending that the southern states establish departments of industry and immigration, to be removed from all political influences; that the commercial organizations of the south start a concerted movement for the aid of our merchant marine, and removing restrictions on foreign-built ships floating American flags; to remove the race problem from politics, where it has seriously vexed industrial progress of the south; that every reasonable means should be adopted to maintain the best of relations between the races of the south; that all industries be kept open to the negro, and that the present organization of industrial convention be continued, and the next meeting be held at some central point within six months.

Plant to Build Blowing Engines.

A plant for the building of blowing engines will be erected at East Birmingham in connection with the machine and foundry works of the Birmingham Machine & Foundry Company. This will be a great addition to the Birmingham district, as no plant exists this side of Pittsburg. These blowing engines are used in all the furnaces.

Young Succumbs to His Wounds.

Doc Young, of Birmingham, a freight conductor on the Southern, died in Anniston Saturday from injuries received in the Anniston yards. His train was a double header, and han been cut in two. He was on top of some cars attached to the front engine when the other engine, in coupling up, struck the cars on which Young was standing rather hard, and he was thrown to the track between the cars.

GREAT INTEREST IN STATE FAIR.

The People Anxious to Come Together to Show Their Products.

The state fair is now the talk of the people in every town and hamlet in Alabama, an old time enthusiasm has been aroused and the people are anxious to come together and show their products.

There is no longer any doubt of the success of the fair, which promises to surpass in every department the most sanguine expectations of its promoters. The people scarcely realize the magnitude of the enterprise.

Secretary Rountree, in conjuction with Secretary Martin of the Georgia State Fair association, closed the contract for the Mexican band from Laredo, Tex., to Atlanta and then to Birmingham and return to Laredo.

The band comes to the Georgia and Alabama state fairs through the personal courtesy of President Diaz, of Mexico. The band consists of forty-five pieces and will be in Birmingham the entire time of the fair and will give daily concerts.

The racing feature of the state fair will be all that can be desired in the trotting, pacing and running classes. Secretary Rountree is in receipt of a letter from Arthur W. Elrod, Highland Park, Detroit, Mich., sending him a list of owners of horses and the number that they will bring to Birmingham; also asking him to reserve stalls for them. It will be noticed that ninety odd horses are in this list. The following is the names of the owners and the number of horses they will bring:

H. Stover, ten horses; John Ferriss, Jr., seven horses; Colonel Skid Howard, four horses; Pat Stanton, seven horses; H. Snyder, twelve horses, S. Strobel, four horses; W. H. Laird, fourteen horses; Jack Sheehan, six horses; Joe Redfern, three horses; Joe Burns, two horses; C. Bruhur, five horses; F. W. Williams, three horses; W. Weir, five horses; F. M. Fisher, two horses; C. Blumington, three horses; Bill Dixon, four horses.

Building Supervisor Richard Randolph is pushing work at the grounds in a most rapid manner. The grand stand and exhibition hall are completed and are now receiving the finishing touches. The new fences are going up very rapidly as well as the paddock. Supervisor Randolph states that there will be no trouble about everything being ready for the gates to be thrown open to the public on November 7.

Secretary Rountree is writing the different counties of the state that expect to make exhibits, that everything will be ready by November 1 to receive exhibits. He is trying to impress upon the public to have their exhibits in order before November 7, so there will be no hitch about everything being ready for the public.

W. F. Garth, of Huntsville, one of the directors of the fair association, says that there is no doubt that there will be a fine string of good horses from North Alabama. He says that the people of Madison county are enthusiastic, and that they are coming to take first prize in the county exhibit.

Negro Department.

The negro department is meeting with tremendous success. Commissioner David W. Parker is working hard for success and the outlook is extremely bright. E. A. Brown, the colored attorney of Birmingham, is rendering Parker most valuable assistance. The colored people of Birmingham and all over the state are greatly enthused and are taking much interest in their department.

Prof. W. H. Councill, of Normal, will be the principal orator on Negro day, November 16. Bishop C. C. Peety, of North Carolina, E. A. Brown and other noted negroes will speak. Prof. A. H. Parker, the well-known colored teacher of Birmingham, is in charge of the educational section of the negro department.

It is conservatively estimated that ten thousand colored people will attend the fair on Negro day. John G. Wright, of Tuskaloosa, is grand marshal, and will have charge of the parade. He has appointed fifty mounted assistants. This will be the largest parade of colored people in the history of the state.

Dimmick Pipe Works Located.

The location of the Dimmick pipe plant, to be constructed by D. R. P. Dimmick, James Bowron and others, has practically been selected. While nothing official can be learned, it is stated that Bessemer has been chosen by the promoters, and that the offer of the city to give sixty acres of most desirable land has been accepted. North Birmingham and Anniston also were working for the plant.

Verdict for $5,000.

In the circuit court of Jefferson county a verdict for $5,000 was rendered in the case of John B. Bunt against the Southern railway. Bunt sued for $20,000 for injuries received while coupling cars in the service of the road.

208 Students at the University.

BRITONS A THANKFUL PEOPLE.

A Phrase that London Tradesmen Could Not Do Without.

Americans who have lived in London for a little time begin to think that "Thank you" is the word that bears the burden of British business, and that if it got lost out of the language some dark night the shops and the omnibuses would be unable to do any trade next morning until it was found again.

The red-cheeked boy in the grocery around the corner would certainly be helpless without "Thank you." For example, this is the conversation that takes place when a customer comes in.

"Have you any canned tomatoes?"

"Yes, ma'am, thank you," says the red-cheeked boy.

"You may send me a can."

"Thank you," says the boy, making a note of it.

"And a pound of crackers." (You see, the customer was American.)

"Thank you?" says the boy, with a question mark in the word and a puzzled look on his apple face. "Beg pardon, ma'am, er—we don't have 'em."

"Why, those are crackers right there."

"Oh," says the boy. "Thank you! Beg pardon! You see, we call 'em biscuits. Anything else?"

"That will be all."

"Thank you."

"How much will it be?"

"Fi'p'nce ha'p'ny and eightp'nce ha'p'ny is one and two—thank you."

When the customer hands him her two-shilling piece he says, "Thank you; much obliged," and when he hands her back the sixpence and two huge pennies in change he says "Thank you" again, and as you pass out he says "Thank you; much obliged."

That boy may be a little more actively thankful than the average, but not much.

When the 'bus conductor (there are no electric cars in London) comes around to collect the passenger's fare he often says "Thank you," instead of saying, "Fare, please," and, of course, he says "Thank you" again when the fare is paid, and if he has to make change a third thank-you is almost sure to accompany the returned coppers.

And so it is with the retail clerks and small tradesmen all over London, until presently the visiting American finds himself saying the over-worked word in the same queer way. You can catch the note of the peculiar London "thank you" by striking C on the piano and then the G above quick and sharp. The American "thank you" goes down the scale, instead of up; and so does that of the titled Londoner; but the small tradesman's always goes up. It would be interesting to know how many times a day the red-cheeked grocer's boy says the word. He is a busy boy, and everybody likes him.—New York Press.

Mr. Vanderbilt and Sam Barton.

His life-long friend, the late Samuel Barton, who was also his first cousin once removed, lay very ill at his home in this city a little while before Mr. Vanderbilt was himself stricken with apoplexy. They had been playmates and schoolmates. Barton at the boarding school which he and young Vanderbilt attended had been the custodian of his cousin's pocket money. He was a little older than Cornelius Vanderbilt. Afterward Barton was one of the brokers for the old Commodore, and he was esteemed a man of wealth when Cornelius Vanderbilt was drudging as a bank clerk at $50 a week.

Mr. Vanderbilt heard that Mr. Barton was in some distress of mind, as well as body, and he called upon him. The meeting was like that of men who have been playmates, and they spoke of their sports and of their experiences at the boarding school, and at last Mr. Vanderbilt very delicately inquired if there was anything that was causing Mr. Barton anxiety, and his old playmate replied that he was fearful that his estate would not leave his family comfortably provided for. Thereupon Mr. Vanderbilt said, speaking the familiar name of childhood days, "Sam, don't let that worry you." That was all he said, but the next day he deposited in Mr. Barton's name a large sum of money, not far from $50,000. When Mr. Barton heard that it seemed to give him peace, and he called his family to him, said that he was content to die, bade them good-bye and then, saying, "I am very tired," turned his face to the wall and in a moment was gone.—Philadelphia Press.

Turn Down the Light.

A late invention in the electrical world possesses interest for young girls who are "keeping steady company." Heretofore it has been impossible to "turn down" an incandescent light. It was all the light or nothing. The new invention consists of a double carbon, each attached to a wire, so that when both are burning the regular sixteen-candle power is given to those who are in the room. But a simple twist at the burner cuts off half and gives but eight-candle light. But the inventor has not gone far enough. He should have made four filaments in his lamp, each of four-candle power. Then when the light is dimmed it would have been possible to have had a four-candle light, and this is about the amount demanded by those engaged in the commendable business of sparking. Even a four-candle light may be looked upon with disfavor by those who are well advanced in love, but the average bliss hunters would be satisfied. In all probability there will be another improvement patented in due time which will make a perfect substitute for the old-fashioned lamp, which is always ready upon proper occasions to give twenty-five-candle power or one-candle power, depending upon the circumstances whether papa was reading or Aurelia entertaining her Willie boy.

Chin Grease for Fishing Rods.

The Jamaica Bay fisherman oils the joints of his rod with "chin grease." This is done by rolling the stopper, or plug, in the depression beneath the under lip and above the chin. Sufficient lubrication is accomplished by a slight pressure to keep the metal from rusting and sticking.—New York Press.

Ben Clench, the highest mountain in Scotland, will have an electric road to its summit and a sanitarium.

A remarkable feat of surgery was lately accomplished by Dr. Pagenstecher of Eiberfield, Germany, to whom a youth of seventeen was brought who had been wounded by a comrade in such a manner that the point of a small knife had slightly perforated the heart, and the boy was rapidly bleeding to death and already in a comatose condition. The color of the blood made the nature of the wound clear enough, and Dr. Pagenstecher decided to make a desperate attempt to save the lad's life. He therefore removed a portion of the rib just over the heart and laid bare that organ. He then sewed up the small cut with four tiny stitches and the hemorrhage soon ceased. No fever ensued, the heart's movement went on regularly and the lad was pronounced cured in about nine weeks.

"He is Wise Who Talks But Little."

This is only a half truth. If wise men had held their tongues, we should know nothing about the circulation of the blood. If it were not for this advertisement you might never know that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood medicine.

EVE'S APPLE TREE.

It Still Grows in Ceylon—Its Fruit Is Deadly Poison.

The botanical curiosities of the island of Ceylon are replete with varied interest. One of them is "the forbidden fruit," or Eve's apple tree." Its native name is Diwi Kaduru, Kaduru signifying "forbidden," and Diwi "tigers."

The flower of this extraordinary production is said to emit a fine scent.

The color of the fruit, which hangs from the branches in a peculiar and striking manner, is very beautiful, being orange on the outside and a deep crimson within. The fruit itself presents the appearance of having had a piece bitten out of it. This circumstance, together with the fact of its being a deadly poison, led the Mohammedans, on their first discovery of Ceylon, which they assigned as the site of Paradise, to represent it as the forbidden fruit of the Garden of Eden, for although the finest and most tempting in appearance of any, it had been impressed, such was their idea, with the mark of Eve's having bitten it, to warn men from meddling with a substance possessing such noxious properties.

Lady Doctors in England.

There are in London and the provinces, according to an article on lady doctors in the Young Woman for August, no fewer than thirty-seven institutions officered wholly or partially by lady doctors, and there are nearly 200 registered medical women who have been educated at the Handel street school or the Royal Free hospital in Gray's Inn road. Miss Louisa Aldrich Blake, of the New York Hospital for Women, is the first woman master of surgery of London university, and it is worth recording that the Royal College of Surgeons of Ireland four years ago conferred a fellowship on a woman—Miss Emily W. Dickson, daughter of a former member of parliament. The first lady dentist in London was Miss R. G. Malliday, a fully qualified dental surgeon.

The heaviest rainfalls so far observed with scientific accuracy occur in India. At Cherrapunji, in the Khasi hills, in Assam, the mean precipitation is 39 feet 6 inches, at Debundja 30 feet 10 inches, and at Bibundi 34 feet 4 inches. Both the latter stations are on the seacoast and at a much lower level than Cherrapunji.

OPPRESSING THE SPANIARDS

Filipinos Revenging Themselves on Their Old Enemies.

COLONEL BELL SCATTERS THE INSURGENTS

Natives of Cabanaun Welcomed the Americans, Shouting "Viva los Americanos"---Other News From the Philippines.

A Manila dispatch says: The Spanish commission which entered the insurgent lines a month ago with money to relieve the wants of several thousand military and civil Spanish prisoners, returned to Angeles Monday. The commissioners report that they spent most of the time in Tarlac and that vicinity, where there are some 2,700 sick Spaniards in the hospital. The Filipinos ill treat and ill feed them, refusing to surrender them, as well as the other Spanish prisoners, in the hope of compelling Spain to recognize the independence of the island.

There are fourteen prisoners, they say, at Tarlac, all of whom are well treated. Lieutenant J. C. Gilmore, of the United States gunboat Yorktown, who fell into the hands of the insurgents at Baler, on the east coast of Luzon, last April, where the Yorktown had gone on a special mission to relieve the Spanish garrison, is at Bingul.

The commissioners have brought a letter to General Otis from a relative of the murdered Filipino general, Luna, who wished to avenge the assassination by Aguinaldo's officers, and who asks a personal interview with the military governor. According to the commissioners' statement, Aguinaldo, who is still at Tarlac with 8,000 troops, wishes to continue the war, although he has a high opinion of the American officers and soldiers. General Lawton he calls "El General de la Noche" (the night general), because that commander has attacked him so often in the darkness that he never knows when to look for him. Aguinaldo is said to be well supplied with arms and ammunition, and he is able to get plenty of rice from the northern provinces.

With the Spanish commissioners came a large number of women, the families of eight prominent officers of the Filipino army, who recently applied to General Otis for permission to send their families to Manila. Upon the receipt of the military governor's reply, the nature of which has not been disclosed, the women and children started under escort from Tarlac for the American lines. When they arrived General MacArthur compelled them to halt about a mile beyond our outposts, where they will remain while their credentials are being examined.

WELCOMED THE AMERICANS.

Major Ballanco's Battalion Entered Cabanauan With No Resistance.

Major Ballanco's battalion of the Twenty-second infantry entered Cabanauan Monday, meeting with no resistance. The natives welcomed the Americans, shouting, "Viva los Americanos." The insurgent troops have fled to the mountains.

General Bates will be appointed military governor of the Mohammedan islands, with headquarters at Jolo, until Samboanga is occupied. General Frederick Grant will command General Bates' brigade.

Bell Scatters the Insurgents.

Three companies of Colonel Bell's regiment have had two encounters with the insurgents near Labam and scattered them. The insurgents left four officers and eight men dead on the field and the Americans captured three prisoners and three guns. On the American side one man was killed and two officers and six men were wounded.

Captain French took a reconnoitering party beyond Labam after he had met the enemy and was re-enforced by Major Bishop, with two companies. The insurgents brought up cavalry reinforcements and there was a second fight during which their leader, Major Salvador, was killed and many were wounded and carried away.

Killing at Huntsville.

A special from Huntsville, Ala., says Bartley Lewis, 50 years of age, was shot and instantly killed by Frank Ellis, a young man, at the home of a woman with whom they were both in love. The only eye witness was a woman. Ellis remarked that he did not believe in two men loving one woman and killed Lewis without explanation.

RELIEVED OF $58,180.

Daring Robbery in a St. Louis Street Car.

Robert B. Jennings, secretary and treasurer of the Broadway cable line, St. Louis, was robbed of $1,013 in cash and $48,750 in checks while standing on the rear platform of a Broadway car Monday. The robbery, committed in broad day light on one of the busiest corners in St. Louis, is regarded as one of the most daring crimes committed in the history of local police annals.

Mr. Jennings had just withdrawn the money from the bank, intending to take it to the railroad company's office to pay off the hands. Just as Mr. Jennings was getting on the car two men approached and one of them jostled up against him, giving him what is termed in police parlance the "strong arm." This was done to attract his attention away from the other man, who picked his pockets while he turned to see who jostled him.

NEGROES' SCHOOL RIGHTS.

Case Before Supreme Court Involves Construction of Constitution.

The United States supreme court Monday heard argument is a case involving the right of the board of education of Richmond county, Ga., to establish a high school for whites in Augusta without also establishing a high school for the colored children.

The case was based upon the petition of a number of colored people of the county, who asked that an order be issued either compelling the board to give their children the advantages of a public high school, or to compel the board to refrain from carrying on white schools, for the support of which the petitioners are taxed. The case involves the construction of the federal constitution, and has attracted considerable attention.

DEWEY TO WED.

The Admiral Will Marry the Sister of John R. McLean.

Admiral Dewey has announced his engagement to Mrs. Hazen, daughter of Mrs. Washington McLean and sister of John R. McLean.

The admiral made the announcement to a delegation from Nashville, who had come to invite him to be present at the reception of the First Tennessee regiment in Nashville. He gave this as one of the reasons why he could not be present. He said that he had only that morning been made happy by this most charming lady, and as yet had told no one but his confidential friend and legal counselor, ex-Secretary of the Navy Hilary Herbert.

HOBART VERY ILL.

Feared That the Vice President May Not Survive His Present Sickness.

Vice President Hobart, who has been ill for some weeks at his home in Paterson, N. J., suffered a relapse Monday morning. He had a succession of choking spells, resulting from imperfect action of the heart, an old affliction complicated with inflammation of the stomach.

Squadron Will Go to South Africa.

The South Atlantic squadron has been ordered or soon will be ordered to the scene of South African hostilities. The feeling at the navy department that it would be well to have a large American squadron cruising off East Africa is a growth of the last few days. It is undoubtedly based on the news obtained in Washington and from Europe that contingencies may arise in the progress of the war in the Transvaal which make the presence of a larger body of sailors and marines a necessity in that neighborhood.

Buller at Capetown.

A dispatch from Capetown announces the arrival in Table Bay of the Dunottar Castle with General Sir Redvers Buller and his staff, who are expected to arrive in Capetown Monday morning. They will meet with a tremendous ovation in Capetown. It is reported from Pretoria that 200 of the British wounded from Dundee have arrived there and have been furnished accommodation in the state school building.

One Death at New Orleans.

The board of health reports no new cases of yellow fever in New Orleans and one death.

Another Candidate for Governor.

The friends of Hon. W. J. Samford, of Opelika, lawyer, announce his candidacy for governor of Alabama, subject to the democratic nomination. He is an ex-congressman, and has been a member of many Alabama senates, a member of the last two constitutional conventions, and an active worker in party councils.

STATE NEWS CHRONICLINGS

General Summary of the Important Events of the Week.

ALABAMA'S COAL TRADE WITH LOUISIANA

John Weatherford Acquitted of Murder---Schley Will Visit Fair Nov. 7 Fourteen Persons Cremated. Dispensary at Dothan.

A review of the business done by the Alabama Block Coal Company in the shipment of coal from the Walker county mines to points on the Mississippi river south of Greenville, Miss., shows that for the fiscal year ending September 1st, 75,262 tons of coal went from this state to Mississippi river points as compared to 28,000 tons for the year previous. The coal went to Greenville over the Southern Railway and from there was floated down the river in barges, taking the place of a like amount of Pittsburg coal, which has heretofore held undisputed sway in that market. In no instance was there any complaint against the quality of the Alabama product. Practically all the coal was used by sugar planters. This is a new branch of trade which the coal operators of Alabama are developing, the Alabama Block Coal Company having been organized especially for this particular class of business.

Weatherford Acquitted.

After deliberating for thirty-two hours the jury before whom John Weatherford was tried at Tuscumbia for murder in the first degree returned a verdict of not guilty. The verdict was a tremendous surprise to all.

On the night of July 19th, H. A. Weatherford, a railroad engineer, was shot and killed while sleeping in a caboose. The murderer had fired from the top of a freight car on another track. No clue was obtained as to who committed the deed until the following day, when bloodhounds were placed on the trail. The dogs went swiftly and without hesitation from the scene of the crime to the home of John Weatherford, son of the murdered man, and it was with difficulty that a lynching was prevented. What was considered absolute proof, added to the work of the dogs, was offered to the jury to fasten the crime on the young man, but he was set free.

Dispensary Carries the Day in Dothan.

The Dothan city primary has been the absorbing interest for several days. One week ago the ward primaries were held and the dispensary was the issue. The wards voted for W. C. Pilcher, Edward Nix and Oscar Williams, who were outspoken dispensary candidates for aldermen, and W. S. Wilson, who also announced that he favored it, though he was voted for by the antis. A week later the white voters of the entire city met at the court house and the largest vote was polled ever cast in a primary in that city. J. L. Acree was supported for mayor principally by the antis and received 113 votes. George Cotton and R. A. Pearce each favored the dispensary and on first ballot the former received 115 votes and the latter 91.

Fourteen Persons Cremated.

Capt. J. E. Jordan, who lives in Baldwin county, reports a story of fourteen people meeting a horrible death by burning near Fairs, in that county. One night last week the houses of Harr Goodlow and Samuel Smithson caught and burned so rapidly that the inmates could not escape. In the first house were father, mother and six children; in the second, six people. After the fire the bodies were found in the ruins. The families recently came from Iowa and settled in Baldwin county.

Admiral Schley Coming to Birmingham.

Admiral Schley will leave Washington for the south on November 3, spending the 4th and 5th in Atlanta and the 6th and 7th in Birmingham. The admiral has received a number of invitations, but owing to the little time he has before hoisting his flag over the Chicago and starting for the South Atlantic station, he will be compelled to decline all save the two he has already accepted.

New Coal Company Organized.

The Globe Coal company filed articles of incorporation in Birmingham with a capital stock of $100,000. The incorporators are F. M. Jackson and T. T. Hillman, two of the most prominent developers in the Birmingham district. The company has acquired valuable coal lands in this county, and the same will be developed. Birmingham will be its principal place of business.

REPUBLICAN CONFERENCE.

They Pass Resolutions Endorsing McKinley's Administration.

A big conference of leading republicans from all parts of Alabama was held in Birmingham Saturday and the future of the party in this state was discussed. Every district was represented and two-thirds of the state executive committee were in attendance.

William Youngblood, third auditor of the treasury, and member of the national republican executive committee, from this state, was present, and all in the conference were his following. William Vaughan, chairman of the state executive committee, and Dr. J. Hughes, Birmingham's postmaster, were not invited into the conference. Resolutions were adopted endorsing the McKinley administration and his foreign policy in particular. A demand for the renomination and re-election of McKinley; a declaration that the Alabama delegation to the next republican national convention be instructed for McKinley; Committeeman Youngblood was indorsed and Julian Bingham, collector of internal revenue in this state, was mentioned for the chairmanship of the state executive committee. The fight between Youngblood and Vaughan is on in earnest.

TO ENTERTAIN ADMIRAL SCHLEY.

Citizens of Birmingham Preparing to Give the Hero a Welcome.

Preparations for the reception and entertainment of Rear Admiral Schley, who will visit Birmingham November 6 and 7, have begun in earnest. An informal meeting of citizens of Birmingham, in which all classes were represented, was held Saturday afternoon in the headquarters of the state fair association, and preliminary steps taken towards raising the necessary fund, estimated at $5,000.

Committees were appointed to visit the various interests to solicit subscriptions and to outline plans. The committee on plans will outline a complete programme, with the estimated cost of carrying out same, and with the encouragement which has already been given in a financial way will leave nothing undone to make the celebration the most brilliant and elaborate ever attempted in the confines of the state.

K. of L. Scored a Victory.

The Knights of Labor scored a signal victory over the United Mine Workers, and have practically gained control of the Walker county coal mines. The fight was in reality a contest for recognition at the hands of the big operators and proved a battle royal.

The test was made at the mines of the Galloway Coal company, which, by reason of its capacity, fixes the scale for the smaller operators. Demands for recognition were made on the company by the officers of both orders, and, after a conference with the officers last Friday, President Calloway addressed a communication to District Master Workman A. J. O'Keefe, of the Knight of Labor, recognizing his men. The Walker county mines employ between 1,500 and 2,000 miners, and is an important factor in the labor situation.

Cremated Body of Smallpox Patient.

An unusual case is reported from the Bonacre farm, in Russell county. It seems that some days ago a negro woman died of smallpox. No one could be induced to bury the body, and even the woman's son, who had had the smallpox himself, declined to go about his mother's body. Negroes who had had smallpox declined a fee of $2 each to bury the remains. Her body remained in the house until Friday, when it was decided to apply the torch to the building and cremate the body, which was done. The cabin was burned to the ground, and smallpox germs therein destroyed.

Completing a Railroad.

The South Alabama Railroad company is completing the gap between Repton and Pine Apple very fast, having laid over ten miles of track, and Monroe county is soon to be startled by the rumbling of the "iron horse" as it traverses its hills and valleys.

Women Are on a Strike.

Between 75 and 100 women and girls in the pants' department of the Park Woolen Mills at Huntsville have walked out on a strike because their wages had been cut from 1½ cents per pair for making jeans pants to ½ cent. This enraged the women, and led by Miss Nevil Arnold, of Rossville, Ga., they walked out, leaving only twelve girls in the factory.

THE BRITISH SURRENDER

Two Thousand English Troops Captured by the Boers.

ROYAL IRISH FUSILEERS AMONG THEM.

General White Has Fought an Engagement With General Joubert. British Lost About 100 Men. Boer Loss Was Greater.

The following is the text of General White's dispatch to the war office in London.

"LADYSMITH, Oct. 30, 10:35 p. m.—I have to report a disaster to the column sent by me to take a position on a hill lying to the left of the troops.

"In the operations today the Royal Irish Fusileers, ten mounted batteries, and the Gloucestershire regiment were surrounded in the hills and after losing heavily had to capitulate. The casualties have not yet been ascertained.

"A man of the Fusileers, employed as a hospital orderly, came in under a flag of truce with a letter from the survivors of the column who asked for assistance to bury the dead. I fear there is no doubt of the truth of the report.

"I formed a plan in the carrying out of which the disaster occurred, and I am alone responsible for the plan. There is no blame whatever to the troops, as the position was untenable."

General White, in a later dispatch, says: "The following is a list of officers taken prisoners today:

"Staff Officer Adye.

"Irish Fusileers: Colonel Carleton, Major Munn, Major Kinkaid, Captain Burrowes, Captain Rice, Captain Silver, Lieutenant Heard, Lieutenant Southey, Lieutenant P. Hibbs, Lieutenant McGregor, Lieutenant Holmes, Lieutenant Kelley, Lieutenant Dooner, Lieutenant Kinahan, Lieutenant Jeudemine, Chaplain Matthews.

"Of the above Captains Rice and Silver and Lieutenants Dooner were wounded.

"Gloucestershire Regiment: Major Humphrey, Major Capel-Cure, Major Wallace, Captain Duncan, Captain Conner, Lieutenant Bryant, Lieutenant Nesbel, Lieutenant Ingham, Lieutenant Davey, Lieutenant Knox, Lieutenant Tempe, Lieutenant Radice, Lieutenant Bruel, Lieutenant Hill, Lieutenant Short, Lieutenant Smith, Lieutenant Beasley, Lieutenant Gray.

"Of the above Captains Duncan and Conner were wounded.

"Royal Artillery: Major Bryant.

"Mounted Battery: Lieutenant Wheeler, Lieutenant Nugent, Lieutenant Moore, Lieutenant Webb."

The Blow Staggers London.

While minor reverses were not wholly unexpected, nothing like the staggering blow General Joubert delivered to General White's forces Monday was anticipated.

The full extent of the disaster is not yet acknowledged, if it is known, at the war office. The loss of effective men must be appalling to a general who is practically surrounded.

Two of the finest British regiments and a mule battery deducted from the Ladysmith garrison weakens it about a fifth of its total strength and alters the whole situation very materially in favor of the Boers, who have again shown themselves stern fighters and military strategists of no mean order.

The disaster cost the British from 1,500 to 2,000 men and six seven-pound screw guns, and as the Boer artillery is already stronger than imagined, the capture of these guns will be a great help to the Boers.

COLOMBIAN REVOLUTION.

Government Troops Victorious on Land and Sea.

A report has reached Colon, Colombia, that on October 24 two armed government steamers destroyed seven insurgent vessels, one of the latter sinking with, it is rumored, 200 soldiers.

The government troops were victorious in a pitched battle with the insurgents near Bucaramanga. The insurgent leader Uribe was killed and the insurgent leader Ruiz taken prisoner.

It is now believed that the revolution is ending.

Accidently Killed.

While squirrel hunting near Coaling, Ala., J. W. Holcombe was fatally injured by the accidental discharge of his gun, caused by a vine hanging in the hammer, dying later. Deceased was a prominent member of Woodman of the World Camp 69, Coaling, Ala. He was a member of the Second Alabama Regiment, Warrior Guards.

STATE FAIR PREPARATIONS.

Indications Point to the Most Successful Exhibition in the State's History.

The gates to the greatest fair ever held in Alabama will be thrown open to the public next Tuesday. Arrangements are being made for the reception of such a throng of people as never before congregated in Alabama.

The people will be present from all sections of the state, and will be amply repaid for the time and the expense of the trip. They will see exhibits that will make them proud to claim Alabama as their home.

A feature of the fair will be a public marriage on November 14, when a prominent couple will celebrate their marriage vows on the grounds. The names of the young couple will be kept a secret until the day of the wedding.

Exhibits are coming in rapidly and being placed, and by the end of the week a grand transformation will have been effected at Smith's Park—the transformation of an old field into a beautiful city of magnificent exhibits of industrial and agricultural products.

By Monday the displays will all be in their places, the race track will be in prime condition, the public halls and the club houses will be ready to receive visitors.

Reports from various portions of the state indicate an overflowing crowd for the opening day. It is stated that a large party of Cincinnati people will be here that day to see Alabama's matchless exhibits, and others are coming from the surrounding states.

Admiral Schley's Reception.

A magnificent ovation awaits Rear Admiral Schley on his arrival in Birmingham Monday. The distinguished officer and his party, accompanied by a reception committee of twenty-five prominent citizens, will reach the city from Atlanta at 11:20 o'clock and will be received by an immense throng of people, amid the greatest enthusiasm; a demonstration that cannot fail to impress the distinguished visitor with the patriotism of the southern people, and especially the people of Alabama.

The party will come to Birmingham in the handsomest car of the entire Southern railway system, which has been tendered for the occasion by the Southern.

When the work of the committees charged with raising the necessary funds for the celebration was brought to a close Tuesday, $3,080 was in hand and by Wednesday it is expected that over $5,000 will have been subscribed.

Will Go on the Stage.

Mrs. William Loring Spencer, widow of George E. Spencer, former United States senator for Alabama, announced Tuesday that she would make her debut on the stage within the next three weeks. She will appear in a vaudeville house. Mrs. Spencer, twenty-odd years ago, as May Nunez, was a popular actress in Augustin Daly's company, but since 1877, when she married General Spencer, she has not been on the stage. Mrs. Spencer is a cousin of Vice President Hobart and a great friend of Mrs. Senator Frye.

Spencer became United States senator for Alabama, being elected by the carpetbag legislature in November, 1868.

Cotton Destroyed Fire.

At Faunsdale, Ala., fire destroyed the cotton warehouse of J. H. Minge & Son, resulting in the loss of between 1,100 and 1,200 bales of cotton.

More Troops for Manila.

Headquarters and ten companies of the Forty-third volunteer infantry, now on duty at Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., have been ordered to proceed to New York city, and there embark for the Philippine islands on the transport Meade, November 15.

The Shubrick Launched.

The torpedo boat Shubrick was launched at Richmond, Va., Tuesday, in the presence of President McKinley, many members of his cabinet, Governor Tyler, of Virginia, and an immense outpouring of people.

Count D'Alamenas Springs a Sensation.

A sensation was caused in Madrid, Spain, Tuesday, by the declaration of Count D'Alemenas that, owing to the ignorance of the Spanish-American peace treaty commissioners, three islands of the Philippine group, the two Batanes and Calayan islands, both north of Luzon, were not included in the scope of the treaty. These islands, he asserted, ought to be made the basis of negotiations for the liberation of Spanish prisoners.

PENSION CLAIMS FRAUDS

Organization Discovered in Tennessee to Defraud the Government.

WAS RECKLESS IN COMMITTING FORGERY

One Hundred and Seventy-four Claims Filed Which Show no Pension Status--Many Convictions Have Resulted From the Trial.

The successful prosecutions for pension frauds in the Federal court at Nashville, Tenn., the past week have developed the fact that there has been an organization in that city having only one object—the securing of pensions for its members. This organization had an affidavit factory, and its members were perfectly reckless in committing forgery and perjury.

There were apparently three centers of the crooked work in Nashville, which, however, were interlocked and dovetailed in that they were practically one. First, there were the Rebecca Starks-Anderson Charlton-George R. Hyter gang, which had its notary work done by Moses C. Davis, shoemaker and notary public. Davis admits that the rest of the gang would prepare papers during the day time and he would go to 529 South High street on his way home from his shoe shop in the evening and put his jurats on everything he found ready, in the absence of the alleged witnesses.

Some idea of the extent of the forgeries and amount of perjury committed may be gained from the fact that it was shown during the trials that 174 claims, filed through the instrumentality of the different gangs, have so far been discovered in which no pension status exists by reason of the fact that the alleged soldier did not perform the service upon which the claim is based, or that forgery, perjury and personation have been resorted to. In each one of these cases there were numerous papers—anywhere from half a dozen to twenty-five. In a large number of cases every paper was forged, and every signature to every paper, except that of the executing officer. Some of the alleged witnesses were scattered over the various countries in Tennessee, and even in the states of Kentucky, Alabama and Mississippi, and many of them had never been in Nashville in their lives until they came as witnesses in the federal court.

George C. Stewart, who is chief of the criminal division of the pension office during the first four days this week, pronounced 134 signature forgeries and later evidence and admissions confirmed his statements in every case.

The work of the court in these cases has been phenomenal, conviction resulting in every case, averaging over two daily. The punishment of these frauds, who have been instrumental for many years past in swindling and attempting to swindle the government, and who bring the pension system into disrepute, is due to the desire of Commissioner Evans to make pensioners feel that it is an honor to have a pension and not a discredit.

Killed by a Fall from a Tree.

Wallace Wither, the ten-year-old son of W. F. Wither, of Athens, Ga., fell to his death Saturday afternoon. He was thirty feet above the ground in a large oak tree, near his home, when he stepped on a dead limb, which broke, and precipitated him to the ground. His skull was fractured and concussion of the brain resulted.

Two Men are Killed Instantly.

In a wreck near Langtry, Texas, caused by a double-header freight train breaking in two, J. R. Constable, of Hannibal, Mo., and Patrick Cullen, of Del Rio, Tex., were killed. Trainman B. L. Glenn was badly hurt about the head and back. Brakeman Felix Rimmet was badly bruised. A. Bezzety may die from internal injuries.

Preacher Hanged.

Rev. G. R. Morrison was hanged Friday at Vernon, Texas, for wife murder. He met his death resignedly still claiming his innocence.

A Lieutenant Disappears.

News has been received at the War Department of the arrival of the hospital ship Relief at Manila. She reported the disappearance at sea between Guam and Manila of Lieutenant Robert D. Carmody, who went to Guam with the Marine Battalion on the Yosemite, when Captain Leary was sent out as Governor to take possession of the island.

THE CHRONICLE.

LET THE LAW BE OBEYED.

Some questions present themselves to us at this particular time. Is there a Democratic organization in this State? What are its provinces? Is it entitled to any respect? Are Democrats bound by any party obligation to obey the party law? Can men violate the law of their party and disregard the action of its executive head, and still claim the support of its loyal members?

These questions arise from a condition existing within our midst, and not as mere theories for speculation. The executive committee of the party in this State decided upon a uniform course of action in the selection of delegates to the State convention. This has been the rule, adopted because of its good features, and nobody has complained of it. This time they went further and included the nomination of representatives and senators. They did so because these nominees are to participate in the election of a United States Senator, an election in which the State is as much interested as that of a Governor. Such a plan could hurt no individual candidate, nor could it aid any. It insures independent action by the counties without interference of outside influence. No believer in the Democratic principle of local self government could object to the protection of the parent head against foreign interference.

Some counties are openly rebelling against this carefully conceived plan of the party head, and certain men are aiding and abetting this rebellion. We can not recognize the right of a county organization to act contrary to the State body in matters of State interest, nor can we recognize the right of men to uphold them in such repudiation of party law.

From the same source before this has come this defiance of the party organization. We feel like asking to what extent this rebellion will be allowed to go on. It is about time that a note of warning was being sounded to these malcontents who assume the right to violate the law of the party whenever that law does not work to their advantage.

We suggest a meeting of the strong and loyal men of the party for the purpose of giving some expression of approval or disapproval of these periodical traitorous outbreaks. If the party is to have no representative head; if it is to be governed by the wishes of a boss, let it be known. If the good old theory of strength in union is to prevail, let the marplots be warned and driven off the outposts.

There are men of strength and courage. Let them speak.

ALABAMA STATE FAIR.

Next Tuesday the Alabama State Fair will open in Birmingham, and it will continue till the 18th. Many attractions have been provided for visitors, and a pleasant day is in store for all who attend. Nothing will so interest Alabamians as the display of the State's resources which will be seen there. Alabama has made wonderful progress in all industrial lines, and it will do her own people good to know the full extent of her growth. They can learn it at the Fair, and they ought to go and see it. The farmers ought especially to go and learn the possibilities open to them in diversified agriculture, as well as see the many other fields of effort open to them and their sons. If we could all mingle there for a day or two learning each other's successes, we might catch new ideas, gather new inspiration that would help us a long way on the new road to prosperity at home. Few States offer broader fields of labor or more likely of success than Alabama. If her own people knew her as others see her, the mother love would grow warmer in the hearts of her sons and daughters and develop into a devotion which would bring much fruit. Great is Birmingham; but when she is made the exhibition hall of the State she will be greater, because she will be the central figure in a grand picture of industry and material wealth.

WE now have four candidates for Governor—Jesse F. Stallings, C. E. Waller, Jno. W. Tomlinson, and W. J. Samford. There may be others later on.

THERE are four candidates for United States Senator—Jno. T. Morgan, W. C. Oates, Jno. D. Roquemore and Jos. F. Johnston. The race will likely be between the first and last.

"OUR JESS" is very versatile. He has finally settled the Richardson incident by nominating that gentleman for Vice-President on a ticket headed by Bryan. That makes it perfectly satisfactory to everybody—so Jess thinks.

OUR sympathy goes out to Brother Smith, of the Hot Blast. Sometime ago he lost his house by fire. Tuesday Mrs. Smith died after a protracted illness. The loss of his wife is a hard blow, and he will find life's pathway dark and dreary.

SENATOR Morgan passed up the road on Monday, enroute to Washington on a business trip. He will be back again to see more of the people and renew the friendships that have been his so long. His energies are not dimmed by his years, but his experience makes him more valuable and his ability more practical. Alabama will not let him retire from her service yet.

THE MONTGOMERY STREET FAIR.

The street fair at Montgomery was strictly a Montgomery enterprise, and must have been a financial success to its business people. Thousands and thousands of people flocked to the State capital the entire week, and more on shopping expeditions than for sight-seeing. It was estimated that fifty thousand people were on the streets on Friday, the big day of days, during the fair week. Commerce street, Dexter Avenue, Court Square, and Montgomery Avenue were a solid mass of black-headed living humanity, and the only unpleasant feature was the fact that two-thirds of the mass were negroes. If the negro had been eliminated from the crowd on that "Ladies' Day" of the beautiful floral parade, how different would have been the conditions and pleasure of white people gathered there to view the artistic and gorgeous floral display. The person who thinks the negro domineers in the South a myth should attend some of these fairs and get knocked aside a few times, and his children mashed up and sent into screams by burly negroes and "swell-dressed" mulattos. If the white man is going to protect the women and children with his vote in the South he had best be up and voting.

We have not space to describe the magnificence of the floral parade and the queenly beauty of Miss Alabama Browne, chosen queen of the fete. The elite of Montgomery did themselves proud in that parade, and the queen followed alone in the last carriage. She wore a robe of royal purple and white satin, and her carriage was in the same colors.

One seeing the crowds that teemed in to Montgomery last week might think that nobody was left, or any money either, to attend the State Foir at Birmingham. But just wait till Schley arrives, and the toot horns, and balloon boys and high divers and race horses, and other thousands of attractions, and let's see if there isn't a few thousand people on hand with dimes and dollars to spend.

Nearly all the booths built on the streets in front of the various shops were beautiful and comfortable. Hundreds of visitors especially enjoyed a rest at the Domestic Sewing Machine booth, which was handsomely carpeted and full of luxurious rockers. The Y. M. C. A. lunch rooms did a thriving business, as did the Confederate Veterans' lunch booth.

The street decorations were very pretty, and especially the arch across Commerce street, near the depot. When lighted at night this was the prettiest street decoration in evidence.

Various funny incidents were occurring constantly. We heard one lady reading a programme of the street performances thus: "In front of the Exchange Hotel the bear dance;" when in truth two men were to perform on the bar.

The ever gallant and popular Charlie Allen, jr., endeared himself to one lady by rescuing a mother's small son from a dense mass and standing him upon the queen's stand. Some of you know the little fellow—John T. Morgan Gist.

WHAT WOULD JESUS DO?

When the World Does as He Would it Will Enjoy its Millennium.

Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, writing in the November Ladies' Home Journal in further emphasis of the teachings of his famous book, In His Steps, reiterates that "the teachings of Jesus will work in the market, the home, the school, the shop, the street, the life of man everywhere, but they can not work in a selfish heart, and they are not capable of expression in a soul that has put any one on the throne except Him who is Lord of all. Why are men afraid to try love in business? Why are they cowardly in the face of giving the greatest thing in the world its most supreme test? Come, let us take Jesus at His word. If we seek the Kingdom of God first we shall have all the physical things we need. What would Jesus do? There is no question as to His conduct in our places. There is no casuistry in the question when asked honestly every day. When the world is willing to ask it, and live according to the daily answers, it will begin to enjoy its millennium. Perhaps that Golden Age will be this coming century. Why not? It rests with the human race to prove that of all the mighty forces that rule the real life of men on earth none is so mighty, so practical, so permanent, so productive of happiness and power as the life of Jesus lived over again in the lives of those who believe in Him as the life abundant for a weary world."

THE CEREMONY OF THE HAT.

When Polite Society Demands of the Man to Raise or Remove His Headgear.

"The ceremony of the hat is somewhat more punctilious than formerly," writes Mrs. Burton Kingsland in the November Ladies' Home Journal. "A man awaits the lady's recognition before he raises his hat to her. He also raises his hat when presented to a woman, when meeting and taking leave of her, when about to address her, or when she first speaks to him—for whatever reason, if he passes her on a stairway or in front of her in a public conveyance, theatre or elsewhere—indeed, whenever the least apology would be in order; when he offers his services in any way, even tacitly, or shows her some trifling courtesy; and he should always raise his hat when acknowledging her thanks. A man should pay the same mannerly treatment to her sex when a woman enters an elevator, and remain uncovered during her stay therein. He should also raise his hat upon recognizing an acquaintance who has a lady with him. If the friend with whom he may be bows to a lady, he should show the same courtesy although she may be unknown to him. Should a lady be with him and recognize a friend, he should lift his hat."

LIKE ROUNDLAP BALES.

Opinions of Cotton Farmers and Ginners After a Season's Experience.

The attitude of cotton ginners and farmers towards the Roundlap cotton bale of the American Cotton Company, after a season's test of the machine, is illustrated by a letter received recently by the editor of the Manufacturer's Record, Baltimore, as follows:

Editor Manufacturer's Record:

Some time ago you requested us to give you our opinion of the American Cotton Co's. cylindrical press. At that time we were unable to give our views correctly, owing to the short time we had operated the press. Now that the ginning season has closed we can unquestionably say that the press is a success in every particular, not only from a ginner's standpoint, but as practical farmers. The results from sale of our cotton have been eminently satisfactory and much beyond what we had anticipated. The advantages to planter and operator are so many that it would take up too much space to enumerate them. It is sufficient to say that no one who has baled their cotton on this press would now or hereafter patronize any other. And why should they? Their ginning charges are less than the square-press people charge, and they receive from one-quarter to one-half cent per pound more than they could get in the square bale. There is no question about the round bale being here to stay, and we would advise the ginmen, especially those who are near a railroad, to get in the swim at once and exemplify the old adage of the early bird getting the worm. They will not only benefit themselves, but their friends, the farmers, will get the cream that the middlemen, the commission merchants, have been enjoying and getting rich upon. In conclusion, to condense the advantages, will say that the bale is fireproof, waterproof, dustproof, and proof that it is a labor-saving and money-making bale to the farmer.

MORRIS & MOREN.
Keo, Ark., June 7th.

OUR POPULATION IS 75,000,000.

Fifty Thousand Enumerators Must Gather Census in a Month.

In June of next year the people of the United States will be counted for the twelfth time since the establishment of our government. "It will require about fifty thousand enumerators," writes Clifford Howard in the November Ladies' Home Journal, "to take the census, and their work must be finished in one month's time, or by the first week of July, 1900. That means that about seventy-five million people must be recorded in thirty days, or at the rate of two and a half million a day. The rate will be even greater than this, however, for in towns and cities of eight thousand inhabitants the enumeration must be completed within two weeks. The enumerators will not be permitted to have any assistance in the work; it must be done by them in person, except in such sections of the country as contain a great many foreigners, where the employment of interpreters will be allowed, as otherwise it would be next to impossible to secure the necessary data. The enumerators will be paid for their services in accordance with the amount of work they are called upon to do."

The southbound passenger on the Southern railway has make a change of three minutes in its schedule and now gets here at 1.48 p. m. instead of 1.45, as heretofore. This change was made several weeks ago, but was not generally known by our people.

Our subscription books and mailing galleys have recently been overhauled and proper credit given to all who have sent in their renewals. Keep your eyes upon the figure opposite your name and never let it get behind you. New subscriptions come in every week, and a good paper will be given the people next year.

Though the merchants are observing literally the law relating to the sale of smoking tobacco to minors and the young people themselves can not purchase it, it does not seem to have much effect upon the minors. As many cigarettes are being puffed by them as heretofore, and there seems to be no material decrease in the number of smokers.

We hear that complaint is being made about the irregularity of THE CHRONICLE reaching our subscribers, some stating that the paper is not received by them until Monday or Tuesday, while others at the same place get their papers at the proper time. We are unable to account for this and therefore can not explain matters to those subscribers. The paper is sent out every Friday morning, and should be received by all in the county on the next day.

BIGAMIST CAUGHT.

Chas. Ledbetter in Jail for Having Two Wives.

WIFE AND CHILDREN IN ELMORE.

Left Them and Married Again in This County.

Charles Ledbetter is in jail at this place charged with bigamy. As a result of his worthlessness a splendid young lady of this county is neither wife, maid or widow.

Ledbetter came to this county about twelve months ago from Elmore County, and secured work with Mr. Jack Sewell, a timber contractor living near Weldon. He won the affections of Miss Ida Belle Sewell, and about five weeks ago they were married.

Recently Mr. Sewell heard some rumors of his son-in-law having a wife in Elmore County, and went down there on a quiet investigation. He found a lady there who said she was a wife of Charles Ledbetter. She had four children, and bore a good reputation at Bradford, where she lived. Mr. Sewell obtained a warrant down there and returned home, bringing with him a young man who knew Ledbetter. He arrived at home last night, and securing the services of a constable had Ledbetter arrested. He was with the victim of his crime when arrested.

He was brought here this morning, where a new warrant was sworn out, charging him with bigamy in this county, and he was placed in jail. Ledbetter denies his guilt, but admits that the children are his.

Mr. Sewell and his family are highly respected citizens of this county, and have the sympathy of their many friends in this unfortunate affair.

The young man who came here with Mr. Sewell from Elmore identified Ledbetter, and there seems to be no doubt of his guilt.

THE CHRONICLE receives a very liberal patronage from the people of Shelby and has a good list at that place. We would like to have a correspondent and agent there, and think considerable local news could be obtained in that city. We want to make this paper the best home paper in the State, and the cooperation of our subscribers in furnishing us news from their various homes would aid very materially to this end.

Those having dogs, cats or other domestic animals must treat them with the consideration of human beings—so far as keeping life in them is concerned. Any person who needlessly and without cause kills one of these domestic animals, whether it be his or not, will place himself in the attitude of a lawbreaker, and must be dealt with accordingly. This fact was impressed very strongly upon a certain party at the last term of county court, he being ignorant of the existence of such a law.

Mrs. W. H. Taylor, who died at her home in Anniston last Monday, was a former citizen of this county, and the news of her death will no doubt be heard with considerable regret. She was a Miss Mary Ferguson, the only sister of Rev. J. L. Ferguson, a former pastor of the Methodist church here, and was raised and spent the greater part of her life at Chapel near Wilsonville. She was greatly beloved as an earnest christian worker, and had many warm and personal friends in this city whose sympathy goes out to the husband and children in their sad bereavement.

The postoffice department at Washington has issued a circular letter and is sending it to the various postoffices in the South condemning the Ex-Slave Mutual Benefit, Bounty and Pension Association and other organizations of like character as fraudulent. This class of societies has been in operation for many years, and is practiced upon the untuttored and uneducated negro by parties out of employment. The department states that the use of the mails is prohibited and that there never was and never will be the slighest chance for such bills as they propose to become an enactment. There are several branch organizations in this county, and many negroes are being induced to contribute their money to a cause that can never aid them. This is published for their information, and if there be any among them capable of taking the advice of the government they will turn their money into other channels.

AN APPEAL

To Confederate Veterans, Wives, Sons and Daughters.

At the veterans' reunion held at Cambranch in August last the fact was made known that in a burial ground at or near Shelby Springs there lie the remains of two hundred and seventy-seven Confederates who died in hospital at that place during the memorable war between the States. Most of these gallant soldiers died from wounds received in battling for the cause which they and we thought was just, and there is nothing but bumps and holes to mark the spots where they rest.

The undersigned were made a committee to ascertain the probable cost and institute a plan to have these graves enclosed and to erect an appropriate shaft or crest. We find that the small amount of $250 is sufficient to complete the work.

We have selected the following veterans, members of the association, to canvass their respective neighborhoods and collect for this fund by donation or otherwise at as early a day as possible, and forward same to Capt. Jno. W. Johnston, or deposit in the Shelby County or DuBose Banks, subject to draft of "Shelby Springs Cemetery Association," who are authorized to receive and receipt for same:

Ira Campbell, Rev. Job Reynolds, Chilton County; Hon. R. W. Cobb, Jefferson County; Hon. John F. Burns, Capt. H. C. Graham, Dallas County; Rev. J. M. Langston, J. J. Little, Bibb County; W. S. Cary, E. Finley, James Ozley, John Harmon, J. T. McMillan, Dr. C. C. Oliver, N. A. Graham, John W. Pitts, Dr. DuBose, Jos. Crenshaw, T. J. Martin, J. M. Edwards, Jas. Nabors, J. M. Leonard, Col. W. T. Smith, Rufus W. Walker, Rufus DeShazo, Henry Parker, Dr. J. Ried Morgan, and all the officers of the Association, pastors of churches and teachers in the various schools of Shelby County are earnestly requested to cooperate with the veterans and committee in their laudable work.

Of course the committee expects the ladies to be foremost in this patriotic move and request them, all who can, to begin at once, that the Association may complete the work at once.

UNTIMELY DEATH.

Young Man Caught in a Gin and Horribly Mangled.

Shelby Taylor, a young man eighteen years of age, who was employed in his father's gin on Fourmile near this city, met with a distressing accident Tuesday, and died from the effects yesterday morning.

He was raking cotton seed from the machinery when his shirt sleeve caught in the moving wheels and drew his arm under the saws, mutilating it in a horrible manner and crushing the bones from the hand to the elbow. His screams were heard and the machinery stopped as soon as possible, but it required half an hour or more to extricate him from his position. One entire side of the gin head had to be loosed and partly removed before he could be released. Medical assistance was summoned, and it was thought if the wounded member could be removed nothing more serious would result, but it was found that the action and flow of the blood from the heart would not permit this. The wounds he received to his arm were not necessarily fatal, and the physicians who attended him think it very likely he sustained some internal injury.

The young man was the son of Tom Taylor and a grandson of J. M. Taylor, two well known and respected citizens of the Fourmile district. He was quite a favorite among the people, and his untimely death has caused great sorrow in the neighborhood.

Advice to Consumptives

There are three great remedies that every person with weak lungs, or with consumption itself, should understand.

These remedies will cure about every case in its first stages; and many of those more advanced. It is only the most advanced that are hopeless. Even these are wonderfully relieved and life itself greatly prolonged.

What are these remedies? Fresh air, proper food and of Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. Be afraid of draughts but not of fresh air. Eat nutritious food and drink plenty of milk. Do not forget that Scott's Emulsion is the oldest, the most thoroughly tested and the highest endorsed of all remedies for weak throats, weak lungs and consumption in all its stages.

They Should Know it.

Many women suffer untold agony and misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood. They have been led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for the many ills that beset womankind.

Neuralgia, nervousness, headache, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, rheumatism, a dragging pain or dull ache in the back, weakness or bearing-down sensation, profuse or scanty supply of urine with strong odor, frequent desire to pass it with scalding or burning sensation, sediment in it after standing in bottle or common glass for 24 hours are signs of kidney and bladder trouble.

The above symptoms are often attributed by the patient herself or by her physician to female weakness or womb trouble. Hence, so many fail to obtain relief, because they are treating, not the disease itself, but a reflection of the primary cause, which is kidney trouble.

In fact, women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same remedy.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is the great discovery of the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is easy to get at any drug store for 50 cents or $1.

To prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and book telling all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Kindly mention THE CHRONICLE, and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Alabama's Senior Senator Speaks on the Political Issues of the Day.

TOUCHES ON THE STATE'S EARLY HISTORY

And Reviews the Prominent Measures With Which He Has Been Actively Connected Since Entering the U. S. Senate.

FELLOW CITIZENS OF CALHOUN COUNTY:—The invitation to which I now have the honor of responding, comes from the people whom I have known from my childhood. They have supported me in my public life and, what is even more gratefully appreciated, they sustained and encouraged me in my earliest efforts to gain a livelihood and to establish myself in the respect and confidence of an honest, enlightened and patriotic community. The lessons taught me by these people and the example of their virtues and of their steadfast devotion to truth and justice, have given me a firm confidence in the ultimate triumph of these necessary elements in free government, that has sustained me in many a bitter and trying ordeal in the Senate.

The questions that are now the most interesting to the people were here, in their chrysalis State, in the first settlement of this part of Alabama—the Creek Indian Country. It was a wilderness with the lands unsurveyed, when my father, a pioneer, brought me here, a little boy. The Indians were preparing to cross the Mississippi, under the pressure of our expansion. The negroes were here, and shared in the enjoyment of peace and plenty, as members of Christian households and the abolitionists were demanding their emancipation.

Silver money, and no other money, was here, paying for our lands at $1.25 per acre.

The specie basis of Jefferson, Jackson and Benton were then at war here with the Bank of the United States.

New States were being formed west of the Mississippi river in the Louisiana purchase, and Missouri and Louisiana were beginning to lead the van of the sixteen great commonwealths that have lifted their proud crests to give honor to the wise and courageous statesmanship of Thomas Jefferson. We were then projecting and studying the problem as to the form and character of government we should give to dependent people—the Indian tribes who were here ages before we came. They owned this beautiful country with its grand forests untouched by the axe, its fertile lands yet undisturbed by the ploughshare of the Anglo-Saxon, and its streams bright and limpid in their unpolluted waters. When we expanded over this lovely and splendid country, the Indians took up the line of march that all colored people the world over have been compelled to pursue, when the white race, bearing the banner of Christian civilization, have led the progress of mankind towards a higher plane of duty and of destiny.

This progressive power has expanded until it now envelopes this continent, and has included the great islands of the Western Atlantic, the North and South Pacific oceans.

The problems of government and of national duty that were here, in their first development, when I was a child, met me in the Senate when I entered that body under your commission twenty-three years ago. Their form has changed in the rapid growth of our population and national power, and in the fierce conflicts of political rivalries, but they are not yet finally settled, though I believe they are about to be. I must state as briefly as I can the views I have of these questions which now absorb your attention, passing over many important matters which I have not now time to mention.

I think I am not mistaken in the fact that your invitation to which I am trying to respond, was intended to impose upon me the duty of stating briefly the prominent measures with which I have been actively connected since I entered the Senate. As my work in the Senate has been active and assiduous in all these years, it is obviously impossible that I can now deal fully with the most prominent features of our history with which I have had a connection in the Senate.

Before taking up the topics of more immediate interest at this time to my constituents, it is proper that I should refer, briefly, to some measures that I have advocated and some that I have opposed in the Senate, which bear directly on the political and material welfare of the people of Alabama, in which I also feel that I have not gone contrary to the judgment of the Democratic party; I have observed to the best of my judgment the policy of that great party in all the past, and have adhered to its creed, and have never threatened its organization by refusing to support its platforms, or its nominees.

Before I first took my seat in the Senate, I visited the Bay of Mobile in company with Captain Damrell, of the United States army, and examined the location for the line of a channel thirty-one miles long, from the wharves at Mobile to deep water in the bay. Captain Damrell wanted $10,000 to make borings along the line preparatory to his first report on the subject. My first work in the Senate was to secure this appropriation. From that time to this I have constantly labored to push this work, sustained and sometimes led by the members of the House from that district. The result is a channel deepened from fifteen feet to twenty-three feet through which ships of war and deep sea steamers reach the wharf at Mobile at all seasons. In this and other great works in river and harbor improvements, in all of which I have actively assisted, Congress has appropriated $11,757,310 since I have been in the Senate, and has accepted estimates for the additional sum of $7,850,000 to be appropriated, an aggregate of $19,607,310. An outlet to the gulf is thus established, for the enormous traffic that will descend to the bay of Mobile, through the Coosa, Cahaba, Warrior and Bigbee rivers. The Warrior improvements are provided for virtually, and the Coosa river the most important to the farmers will now receive our undivided support, with help also from Georgia and Louisiana.

I was the earnest advocate of the agricultural and mechanical colleges in the States and Territories, and I suppose that as much as $300,000 has been appropriated to Alabama on this account since I have been in the Senate. I originated the measure that has given the University of Alabama an endowment of lands that are valued at more than $1,500,000. I gave my assistance to the passage of a measure to donate 50,000 acres of land to two special schools of great merit, one for white girls, at Montevallo, the other for negroes at Tuskegee. I think I may say that the passage of this measure is largely due to my efforts.

So much for the schools. I do not claim the whole credit for these measures, but I may justly claim that I have given earnest and efficient aid to them. In resisting the passage of the "Lodge Force Bill" I did all that I possessed in physical and mental ability to do; and I held the floor of the Senate for several days, until a Republican who supported the bill, with my consent, moved to lay it on the table. It was tabled, there to remain, as I hope and believe, to the end of time. It was a heavy task, but the bill broke down before I did. With equal determination, but in silence, except a protest which Mr. Pugh signed with me, I resisted a movement of Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, and Mr. Chandler, of New Hampshire, to legislate Governor Oates and others out of the State offices and to drive me out of the Senate, on the ground that Alabama was not possessed of a government republican in form.

This was the second effort to exclude me from the Senate. The first one was led by George E. Spencer, a Republican carpet-bagger, which got only two votes and this second got only six votes in the Senate. No contest of my seat was made by Mr. Reese, who held a certificate of election with which Mr. Kolb had compli-mented him, but he got $5,000 out of the treasury for his share of the profits of this romantic phase of practical politics. I claim no credit for defending the seat I held under your commission and the officers of the State government, but it is not out of place to refer to the fact that my seat in the Senate has not been a sinecure.

I offered the resolution in the Senate to raise a select committee on warships and ordnance, and I had the honor of being a member of the committee. The report that we made assisted greatly in establishing the great gun foundry at Washington, and out of this movement has grown the fleet of great battleships and cruisers and other war vessels that have recently added renown to the republic and have, in fact, taken a "bond of fate" for the security of the peace of the nations, so far as we are concerned.

The Charleston, the Olympia and the Oregon and other ships of the Pacific fleet would not have been prepared in time for the Spanish war, if ever, had it not occurred to me while in San Francisco, on the committee, and examining Irving M. Scott, that great architect of warships to ask him why he did not bid for contracts to build a Pacific fleet. He told me he was handicapped by the cost of the transportation of tools and materials across the continent. When I assured him that Congress would make an allowance to cover this disadvantage, he said he would bid for and build the fleet if that was done. It was done, on my motion, and the fleet was built. This was not on my part any great or original conception, it was only an unavoidable expansion of thought to meet conditions that were made necessary by the expansion of our territory under Mr. Jefferson in the Louisiana purchase, and by Mr. Tyler and Mr. Polk in the results of the war with Mexico, and by Mr. Marcy and Mr. Pierce in their prophetic forecast of the annexation of Hawaii to the United States.

The idea was as simple and natural as that of the sailor who was exchanging signals from the mast of his ship with a ship in the Pacific ocean, ten miles away, when it occurred to him that the low divide which separated the oceans should be ditched so that he could save a travel of more than 10,000 miles in his next voyage from New York to San Francisco.

The Nicaragua canal was first presented to my mind as a question of duty that I was connected with as a Senator, by a conference with Senator Eaton, a grand old Democrat from Connecticut, when he was chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations. We concluded, in harmony with the declaration of President Grant that any ship canal across the Isthmus of Darien should be "a canal under American control," and so we declared in resolutions that we reported to the Senate. The first distinctive plan for executing this purpose was the Frelinghuysen-Zooala treaty with Nicaragua. This treaty presented the best, safest and cheapest arrangement for the construction and control of the canal that has been or ever can be made.

The first official act Mr. Cleveland performed was to withdraw this treaty that Mr. Arthur had sent to the Senate, on the ground, as stated in his message, that it probably violated the Clayton-Bulwer treaty with Great Britain, made in 1850, and created an entangling alliance with Nicaragua. But for that unfortunate act, the canal would now be in successful operation. This policy left nothing open to the friends of the canal, but the effort to build it with private capital under concessions from Nicaragua. The concession was obtained by private citizens of the United States who had every possible encouragement from Mr. Whitney, then Secretary of the Navy. Congress took up the subject of building the canal by the aid of the government, in order to reduce the cost to a sum that would not create too heavy a burden of canal tolls upon our domestic and foreign commerce. Then came obstruction in every dangerous form to delay, if it could not finally defeat, the construction of any waterway across the Isthmus of Darien. Eight trans-continental railways, including the Panama railroad and the Canadian Pacific railroad, combined with all their vast lobby power, to defeat the canal. On the first test vote in the Senate, the bill being in my charge, it passed the Senate by a majority of eleven votes. It went to the House and was refused a hearing by the Committee on Rules, when twenty-six more members of the house than were required to pass the bill, signed a petition to the speaker to permit the bill to be called up for consideration. This was refused by Mr. Crisp because he knew that the President, Mr. Cleveland, was opposed to it; and he was satisfied that it would be vetoed. The bill was then lost, and Mr. Secretary Lamont, of Mr. Cleveland's cabinet, soon after became the first vice president of the Northern Pacific railroad. The canal measure was then placed at zero, and had to take a ground start on a new program. I was chairman of the select committee on the canal, and reported a bill to the Senate in the last Congress. This bill occupied the attention of the Senate for a month, and was passed by a vote of 48 to 6, or 8 to 1. But in the House Mr. Reed, the speaker, put his foot upon it, and prevented its consideration. So it failed to get a hearing there. Having discovered that a lobby of the Panama Canal Company was working to defeat any waterway, unless we would buy out the bankrupt Panama canal, with all its stains of speculation and crime, I asked for a commission of American engineers, commercial men and jurists, who would enquire and report upon all the conditions connected with both enterprises, in order to avoid further delay. Congress put an amendment on River and Harbor bill, giving $1,000,000 to this purpose, and that commission is at work. It is my highest ambition to provide the law for its construction before my present commission as Senator expires; and those who want the seat I now hold would do well to help me pass the bill. I cannot now dwell upon the benefits and advantages to be derived from the canal when built. The most vivid imagination will fail to comprehend their magnitude, as we have failed and still fail to comprehend the future benefits of our iron and coal fields.

Connected with the canal, I have had two other wishes, and my connection with the events that secured these ends is to me most satisfactory. Being on a select committee on the Pacific railroads, I have had the opportunity, which I have diligently improved, to assist in the compelling of the Union and Central Pacific railroads to return to the treasury $113,000,000 which was loaned them to build their railways. This has been a hard and bitter struggle, and I now ask why shall we not apply this $113,000,000 to the construction of this canal? Who will oppose the further use of this money for the benefit of our people?

Our Governor has censured me in semi-official paper for my course with reference to the canal. It was given out a few days since, and reads as follows:

"Our people are vitally interested in the construction of the Nicaragua canal. It would open up to our iron and coal and timber and agricultural products markets that would greatly enhance their values and give employment to thousands of men. * * * * *

"What we want is results, not talk. It seems that the orators should be able to do their part of the work in fifteen or twenty years. The jaw-bones of debate should be converted into picks and spades. We want a canal full of water, not wind."

I regret that he had not administered this reprimand in language better suited to the dignity of his great office, but I must accept it along with his recent official approval of my conduct, which I will read from the Acts of our General Assembly for 1898-9, as follows:

"Whereas, Through the tenacious efforts and enthusiastic advocacy of that great statesman, Honorable John T. Morgan, the bill authorizing the construction of the Nicaragua canal has at last been enacted by the Federal Senate, and

"Whereas, The construction of the Nicaragua canal will mean a grand evolution for the South and the whole world; therefore

"Resolved by the House, the Senate concurring, That the General Assembly of Alabama feels grateful to our distinguished Senator for his superb courage and splendid energy exercised in procuring the end he has achieved.

"Resolved further, That the congratulations of the General Assembly be, and the same are, hereby extended to Senator Morgan on his latest brilliant attainment.

"Resolved further, That a copy of this resolution be engrossed and the same be transmitted by the Secretary of State to this illustrious Alabamian.

"Approved February 1, 1899."

When the Governor made up his mind to charge me with wasting wind in the discussion of the canal, he forgot, I hope, that he had sent me the resolutions I have just read, in which he and the General Assembly thanked me for having passed the bill through the Senate a second time, the last time by a vote of eight to one. The legislature of Texas voted me similar honors, and seems not to have repented of it.

I fear I have transgressed the proprieties of this occasion by entering so fully upon my record in the Senate, especially as there seems to be no adverse criticism from any friendly or impartial source; but I understand that it is expected of me. There are many questions I have discussed and voted upon in these twenty-three years, that I have not the time now to allude to. Taking up the theme I suggested in my opening remarks, I would prefer to have discussed it without reference to what it has fallen to me to do in the Senate. I will pass by the questions that have grown out of the emancipation of the negroes, with only a reference to two or three points, concisely stated. It was the politicians, not the people of the United States who gave to the negroes the full power to vote and hold office equally with the white race. Now the people and many of the politicians realize as Senator Morton did, that it was a fatal error, an error that has cost the whole country a long season of unnecessary bitterness and heart burning for a period of thirty years, without any benefit to the negro race.

Several States have gone a great length in the effort to remedy this error and shake off this unnatural incubus upon their peace and prosperity. If they can do that, no injustice will be done to any man while the evil will be removed. In this I feel they have the heartfelt conviction of every Democrat that they are right, and many others of the white race will sympathize with them. Louisiana has touched the outer border of this question, and North Carolina will follow. Whether the question is made in the count of electoral votes for President, by this Congress, or in the next, upon the passage of an apportionment bill, the Democratic attitude throughout the Union will be voiced in the cry, "Let Louisiana and North Carolina alone!"

The treaty with Spain, for which I voted, created the expansion that some now reprobate. I voted for peace with Spain, and against sending fleets and armies to invade Spain, after she had withdrawn the great body of her troops from all the islands, and all her warships were sunk in the sea; and I saw no harm that could come to us from including the Philippines or Porto Rico within our national sovereignty. No political consideration influenced my vote for the treaty. It was not made a party question then, and will not become such. McKinley and Bryan, the recognized party leaders, advised that the treaty should be ratified. If they had advised against it, my vote would not have been different. I have a firm conviction, based on facts, that our flag in the Philippines is the herald of the opening of a door of opportunity to the people of the South, and especially to the cotton planters, for which we should thank God as for a special providence. It is the first ray of the light of commercial independence for the cotton-growers, as to foreign lands, that has fallen upon our country. The Orient, with 558,000,000 of cotton consumers, has furnished a cotton trade to Liverpool which in sixty-three years has built up Hong Kong on a naked rock in the sea until it is either the second or third seaport in the world. If our point for the distribution of the cotton trade of the South, through the Orient, is established at Manila or any other American seaport on the Pacific, that with our home manufactures will soon absorb half our crop and will divert more than two-thirds of our production from Liverpool. The direct journey of cotton and cotton goods to the field of consumption will be reduced to less than half the distance, with a great saving of freights, hauling, trans-shipment, brokerage, interest, commissions and wastage, all of which is paid by the producer.

As to silver, a new market is opened to us, under our own flag, in the Spanish islands with more than 12,000,000 of people who must have silver money, as they have always had it. At five dollars per capita even for a single year they will absorb $60,000,000.

I submit for your thoughtful consideration a statement taken from the reports of the Superintendent of the Mints, on the production and consumption of silver in the year ending July 1, 1898, both in the world at large and in the United States. It proves, to my mind, that we have the ability not only to dispose of any surplus of silver from our own mines, but of the world's surplus; so that a deficit will be created in the supply of silver for the uses of men and nations. When this occurs silver will mount to a premium over gold, as it was when the odious Sherman act was passed in 1873. These are the figures taken from the latest mint reports:

Last year, up to July 1, our mines produced at coinage value silver bullion valued at $72,552,940. Of this we coined $18,487,297. We consumed in the arts, $10,237,695, a total of $28,784,992, thus leaving a surplus of $43,767,948.

But to supply the 12,000,000 of our people recently under Spanish dominion with our silver coin at $4 per capita, will require $48,000,000, thus leaving a deficit of $4,232,052.

The world's surplus last year was $66,534,426. These facts will remonetise silver if no speech is ever made to promote it.

The world's production of silver last year was $263,730,360. Take from this our production of $72,552,940 and there will remain $191,177,360. The world outside the United States used in coinage and the arts $189,410,382. Thus it appears there will be only this $1,706,478 to be absorbed if we coin all our production not used by us in the arts, in furnishing the $4 per capita to the people of the new possessions we have acquired from Spain.

We owe it to ourselves, and to all the Spanish possessions, including Cuba, to provide them with currency under our laws to supply the place of the Spanish money we have driven out, and we should not relinquish our control over them until we have abolished exchange between them and the United States by establishing in them our legal tender laws, and making all issues of money there uniform with ours, as is the case with the Hawaiian Islands.

The issues for the campaign of 1900 should be on the part of the Democratic party, the Chicago platform, without amendment or addition. With that platform we can win with any leader, and with William J. Bryan our success will be assured. The action of Congress at the coming session may make it necessary to change the form, but not the substance of the issues that the Democratic party will present in its platform of 1900.

I have always supported our nominees, because I believe that good faith requires that sort of fidelity to the party, and not because I have always preferred the nominees to other worthy Democrats. If the party is worth preserving, Democrats who profess to belong to it are in duty bound to support its authority. When that honorable obligation is repudiated, especially by men who aspire to lead in the councils of the party, it is a wrong and an insult to the whole body of the party that cannot be tolerated.

The disposal of my future in political affairs as in the past, I confide to my associates in the Democratic party. I will cheerfully accept their will as the arbiter of my political destiny, and will never so far forget myself as to drown my gratitude for the great honors they have conferred upon me, in tears over future disappointment.

VELOCITY OF FALLING.

In a Vacuum All Fall Alike—Not So in the Atmosphere.

The old-time query as to which of the two, a pound of lead or a pound of feathers, dropped from the same height at the same time, would first reach the ground, seems ever new. Someone propounded it to the wise man of the Scientific American last week, using instead of lead and feathers an ounce and a ton of iron. And this is how the wise man responded:

"This matter was put to the test of experiment by Galileo at the leaning tower of Pisa in the seventeenth century, with two balls of lead, weighing one and ten pounds respectively. The followers of Aristotle had taught for centuries that the balls would fall in proportion to their weights, the heavier one falling the faster. Galileo pointed out the fact that the lighter one would reach the ground first because the air would resist the fall of the larger one more than it would that of the smaller. He had previously demonstrated the law of falling bodies that the velocity under the action of gravity is independent of the mass of the body. Experiment confirmed his position. The small ball reached the earth first. In a vacuum all bodies fall with the same velocity through any distance. As a practical statement, it may be taken as true that small dense bodies will conform to the theoretical laws, falling any distance less than 200 feet, in the atmosphere. But with an ounce and a ton there would be a perceptible difference. The ounce ball would fall the faster. Facts like this are nowadays demonstrated by even elementary students in almost every class in physics in the country."

LONDON'S WOMEN POLICEMEN.

Queer Occupation of a Crowd of Withered Old Dames.

London has many queer things in the huge extent of its area, but none queerer than its women guardians of the streets, for London, unknown to most of its inhabitants, has a police force the like of which does not exist in any other city on earth.

In order to see it work you must get up very early on Friday morning and visit Covent Garden market. There you will see such a block of traffic and such a crowd of angry and unreasonable drivers that you will not be surprised at the metropolitan police giving up the duty of keeping order as an impossible job. But still you will find that things come right in the end, and on looking to find how this is brought about you will probably be shocked at discovering that Covent Garden has a police force all to itself in the shape of some hundred or so of old women. They dart in and out among the cars, order the drivers to stop or back their horses, or move on. They shout and swear and shake their fists and catch the horses' heads and if necessary, shy turnips or potatoes at the drivers. But they always succeed in having their own way. But for these women it is believed that it would be necessary to read the riot act every Saturday morning in Covent Garden. As it is, the women police make a comfortable living out of their profession, the drivers giving them daily tips, while the proprietors pay them a fair salary.

A correspondent of the Westminister Gazette gives this ingenious method of how to remember in future that Dreyfus was condemned September 9, 1899. It is as follows: "He was condemned on the 9th of the 9th month '99—i. e., four 9s. Four times 9 are 36; 36 inches make three feet; three feet—Drei Fuss, Dreyfus. If, then, it is asked what date was Dreyfus condemned: Dreyfus—three feet—36 inches—4x9—the 9th of the 9th month of the year '99."

The largest tree in the United States, it is said, stands near Bear Creek, on the north fork of the Tule river, in California. It measures 140 feet in circumference. The giant redwood tree in Nevada is 119 feet in circumference.

(From the BROCKTON TIMES, Oct. 10, 1899.)

Brockton's prosperity is so closely allied to the prosperity of the shoe industry that it will, no doubt, prove a matter of interest to a large number of people to learn the actual average earning capacity of each individual employed in the making of the world-famed Brockton shoe. For illustration: At the factory of the W. L. Douglass Shoe company the pay roll for the week ending Sept. 30, excluding superintendent, foremen, salesmen and all clerical help, shows the average earnings of the employes, large and small, to be $15.54 per week. This was not an extraordinary week. It was the customary pay roll.

The amount earned per week, however, does not always tell the story of prosperity. The number of weeks employed each year is the determining factor in the wage earners' prosperity. The Douglass factory has been closed but one week this year, and that for the usual summer stock taking, and it will be closed but three days the latter part of December. This would make it nine days out of the year that the factory is closed, which is surely as steady work as the most industrious shoemaker could desire.

Owing to increased business, another addition is to be made to the Douglass factory. It will be 100 feet long, 40 feet wide, and five stories high. It will be ready for occupancy early in December. This addition increases the capacity 25 per cent. The W. L. Douglass Shoe company has the largest factory in the world, producing an advertised line $3.50 and $3.00 shoes.

Mr. Douglass says that the prospect for successful business for Brockton manufacturers was never so good as now, and that collections are better than for years.

The scarcity of rubber is a matter that attracts the attention of so many different people, in so many lines of applied science, that some facts from one of the United States consular reports bearing on the subject will not be amiss. The principal reason advanced to explain the scarcity of rubber is the great difficulty in securing enough men to go into the forests along the Amazon and tap the trees. There is no immediate danger of any great shortage in the supply of rubber, but conservative opinion in the Amazon district holds that there is sure to be a steady diminution of the output for two very cogent reasons: first, the trees growing near the banks of the river are naturally the first to be tapped, and as a result are now becoming exhausted, the milk becoming poorer every year; second, the river banks have all been worked inland for a distance of about three miles from the banks, and in order to reach the fresh, untouched rubber trees deeper in the forest, a longer time and a much larger number of men will be required. The finest rubber forests are now said to be along the Purus river, one of the large tributaries of the Amazon from the south.

Tea Culture in the South.

Dr. Charles M. Shepard, special agent in charge of tea culture investigations, has prepared a report on the results of experiments on the Pinehurst estate at Summerville, S. C., says the government agricultural report. The problem of raising tea in the southern part of the United States has been discussed for many years, but until recently the results did not warrant the hope that the undertaking could be made profitable. Dr. Shepard has, however, demonstrated that the industry of tea culture in this country is possible. The crop this season amounts to nearly 3,000 pounds. The report states that from the results obtained on the Pinehurst plantation it seems probable that the cultivation of tea can be made profitable in the warmer portions of the United States in two ways. One is by establishing a plantation on the scale of the experiment at Summerville, with capital sufficient to carry the work to a point where the product can be offered on equal terms with teas holding an established place in the markets of the country. The other is to grow tea for home use in the farm garden. In either case, tea growing can be undertaken safely only where the temperature rarely goes below zero, and where a liberal supply of water can be depended upon. There is probably no place in the United States where the rainfall is sufficient for the best results with the tea plant, and irrigation should, where possible, be provided for in tea growing.

BIG DEAL IN BROWN ORE.

Six Thousand Acres of Rich Mineral Lands to Be Developed.

UNITED STATES IRON CO. THE PURCHSERS

Most Important Transaction Ever Negotiated in the South---Means Much for Northern Alabama and Southern Tennessee.

The most important brown ore deal ever negotiated in the south has just been consumated in Florence, Ala., by Messrs. A. A. Berger and N. C. Elting, president, secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the West Point Mining company. The sale is of vast import to the northern Alabama iron district.

The entire assets of the West Point Mining company, which practically controlled the brown ore fields of northern Alabama and southern Tennessee, has been sold to the United States Iron company of New Jersey, a corporation organized with a paid up capital of $1,000,000.

The deal embraces all the personal property belonging to the West Point Mining company, including washers and equipment, and all the personal property belonging to J. King McLanahan, of Hallidayburg, Pa., formerly operated at Pinkney, Tenn., together with the Wilson, Hyde, McIntosh, Hurst, Hamilton, Douglass and Richardson ore properties at Russellville, Ala., the West Point Mining company, Brunnell, Herron, Hollis, West Point Iron company. Couch, VanLeer, Powell, Hamilton, Buck, Smith, James Smith, Bivins and Emmett properties in the West Point, Tenn., district, and also the valuable Laney properties in eastern Alabama, north of Anniston.

These properties aggregate about 6,000 acres of land, on which it is estimated there are thirty million tons of brown hematite ore, averaging 52 per cent metallic iron, and worth at a conservative estimate at least $1,000,000.

The West Point Mining Company was organized about one year ago by A. A. Berger and N. C. Elting, the former being elected president and the latter secretary and treasurer. The success of this company is without parallel in the south. From a small institution with a paid up capital of $50,000 it continued to expand until it acquired and controlled the most valuable aggregation of brown ore properties in the entire south.

The officers of the United States Iron company are as follows: J. W. Gates, president; C. G. Gates, treasurer; William Edenborn, J. W. Gates and Col. I. L. Ellwood, executive committee. J. W. Gates is the president of the American Steel and Wire company, a corporation with a capital of $90,000,000, and the largest producers of steel wire in the world.

The United States Iron company has financial backing that insures its ability to develop the large properties they have just purchased, and their coming into this field means much to the iron interests of the entire south.

The entrance of this corporation means the development of interests that could hardly have been accomplished by local money.

The deal is perhaps the largest that has ever been engineered in this section of the south. The United States Iron company will become the largest producers of iron ore in the south.

WILL EMPLOY PRIVATEERS.

Boers Issue Letters of Marque in Europe and America.

The Paris Temps corroborates the statement of the Eclair that the Boers have decided to employ privateers and says:

"There is an immense fleet of transports at sea carrying troops. The Transvaal government cannot seriously threaten those, but there is no doubt that it has issued letters of marque to Europe and the United States and British commerce may suffer, even if the transports do not."

Two Were Killed.

The southbound limited passenger train on the Illinois Central railroad, which left Memphis at 9 o'clock Monday morning bound for New Orleans, jumped the track at Senatobia, Miss. The dead are: Jack Barnett, fireman; David Dowling engineer, Memphis.

The injured: Natt, baggagemaster, arm broken and bruised; will recover.

GOVERNMENT IN NEGROS.

General Smith Administers Oath of Office to Natives.

At Bacolad, in the island of Negros, the first autonomous government of the Filipinos was established Monday. General Smith, governor of the island of Negros, administered the oath of office to the judge of the supreme court, who in turn swore in the governor, three judges, twelve councilmen, the auditor and the secretary of the interior.

The natives of the entire island attended the ceremony. The officers from Iloilo were also present. Three days feasting will follow, in celebration of the new government, and the first anniversary of the surrender of the Spaniards to the Negros revolutionists, ending with a ball in the government house at night. American flags are displayed in the village. The celebration consisted of horse playing and other sports, music, religious functions and an illumination. The ball at night attracted the wives of the wealthy planters and there was a great display of rich costumes and costly jewels, as would be seen at a similar affair in America or Europe.

Elections were held October 2, the number of votes cast being 5,248. There were forty candidates for the various offices. Meleco Gaime received 1,277 votes. Suffrage was determined by property values and other qualifications.

RAMMED AND SUNK.

Was the Colombian Insurgent Steamer Drag---200 Lives Lost.

Reliable Colombian advices just received disclose the pursuit of an engagement with insurgents' convoy steamers by the Colombian cruizer Herculos, under General Rodriguez, accompanied by the steamer Colombia, having the troops on board.

The insurgent steamer, the Drag, was rammed and sunk, while smaller ones were captured after a sanguinary fight. Then the Cisneros, with the surviving insurgents, escaped into Rio Blanco. The insurgents lost 250 men and the loss of the steamers is regarded as a severe blow to the insurgent cause.

Four Men Killed in Cave In.

At Mahanoy, Pa., a cave-in in the mine of Larence & Brown, resulted in the death of Geo. Boxshees, Michael Bornsky, Joseph Boxhees and Michael Drabig. John Curry and Michael Hansas were probably fatally hurt.

INSURGENTS ARE DEFEATED.

Leader of the Insurrection in Peru Flees With His Brothers.

The Peruvian government received official dispatches Sunday announcing the complete defeat and rout of the insurgent commander, General Kurand, at Huanuco, capital of the department of that name, 180 miles northeast of Lima. The insurgents lost many in killed and wounded, as well as a large quantity of arms and ammunition and many horses. The number of prisoners taken by the government force was large.

What a Hunter Found.

Hunter Johnson, a white citizen of Jackson, Miss., while hunting in Pearl river swamp east of the city several days ago, discovered a box containing nearly $50,000. The money was encased in an iron case and is in gold pieces, nearly all of the $20 denomination. It is thought the money is a war treasure. All of the coins bear date prior to 1850.

MOVING UPON DAGUPAN

Fleet of Transports and Gunboats Leave Manila.

TO ATTACK NORTHERN PARTS OF LUZON

American Forces Now Hope to Drive Aguinaldo and His Followers Into the Mountains or Surrender.

Sunday evening a fleet of transports and gunboats left Manila for the most important expedition of the autumn campaign. Its destination is supposed to be Dagupan or some other northern port.

General Wheaton commands with a brigade consisting of the Thirteenth infantry, the Thirty-third infantry, two guns of the Sixth artillery and two gatlings, the transports Sheridan, Francisco de Reyes and Aztec carrying the troops, with the gunboat Helena as escort.

A dispatch boat was sent ahead to arrange a rendezvous with the United States cruiser Charleston and the other warships that are patrolling the north coast of Luzon.

The landing will be made under cover of the guns of the fleet. It is assumed in Manila that the purpose of the expedition is to move down the Dagupan-Manila railroad toward Tarlac or to prevent Aguinaldo's forces making another base farther north.

Dagupan and Apparri are the strongholds of the insurgents in the north, and it is supposed the points where most of the filibustering parties land.

Since the beginning of the hostilities it has been the unanimous opinion of military experts in Manila that Dagupan should be made a base of operations, but sufficient troops have heretofore been lacking. With Generals Wheaton, McArthur and Lawton moving upon Tarlac from three directions, and the mountains hemming in the other side, the other insurgent capital will soon become untenable.

Aguinaldo may attempt to shift his headquarters to the rich tobacco country at the northern end of the island. Possibly he may slide around General Lawton's front to the southern provinces, but as McArthur's and Lawton's troops are spread across the country from Angeles to Cabanatuan, it will be difficult for the insurgents to escape.

Should the concerted operations succeed organized insurrection on a large scale should be at an end early next spring, although guerrilla warfare is likely to continue for a long time. No one anticipates that the insurgents will make many hard battles.

The problem is to move the troops about the country, to maintain transportation and to hold the territory gained.

The moral effect of the arrival of a large American army is calculated upon to sap Aguinaldo's strength by desertions and through the loss of hope among the supporters of the revolutionary movement.

Esterhazy Sentenced.

Major Count Esterhazy, the reputed author of the bordereau which brought adout the conviction of Dreyfus on the charge of treason, was sentenced Monday by a default on his cousin Christian's charge of swindling to three years imprisonment and to pay a fine of fifty francs. He was also ordered to refund the $35,000 francs claimed by Christian.

Calloway Begins Work.

Thomas B. Calloway, who has just been appointed by Commissioner General Peck as special commissioner to the Paris exposition for the purpose of preparing and managing a negro exhibit, has already begun his work and will, in a few days, start upon a tour of collection of the exhibits. President McKinley has manifested a strong personal interest in this exhibit and scores of letters from leading colored men and women all over the country are being received, showing an unusual interest manifested.

Gen. Shelley Announces for Governor.

General Charles M. Shelley is a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of Alabama. He made this announcement Monday.

"I am a candidate for governor of Alabama," said General Shelley.

To General Shelley's most intimate friends this decision does not come as a surprise.

WELCOMED TO BIRMINGHAM.

Schley Tendered an Ovation on His Arrival.

Admiral Schley was the guest of Birmingham Monday and Tuesday. He reached Birmingham Monday from Atlanta at 12:20 o'clock, one hour behind schedule time, the delay serving rather to increase than diminish the enthusiastic welcome which met him.

He was greeted on his arrival at the union station by a vast concourse of people, who gave voice to their feelings in patriotic cheers.

As the train bearing the admiral and his party and the escort committee rolled into the station a mighty shout went up from 20,000 throats. Hardly had the train come to a stop when the sea of humanity surged in one irresistible mass towards the rear car, on the rear platform of which the admiral and several members of his party were standing.

No official words were necessary to assure Admiral Schley of his welcome to Birmingham. The people did that with their smiling faces, the waving of hankerchiefs and their lusty cheers.

It was an ovation from a loving people to a noble son, and elicited from the admiral and Mrs. Schley expressions of the deepest gratitude. They were both visibly affected by the great demonstration.

The Fair Opened.

At 10 o'clock Tuesday morning the greatest state fair in the history of Alabama was thrown open to the public.

From the pinnacles of every building hundreds of fluttering flags are floating, and pennants welcoming Admiral Schley to Alabama, to the fair, can be seen on every side. The decorations are elaborate and the fair management has left nothing undone to pay tribute to the great hero of Santiago harbor.

The governor and his staff were present, and the chief executive welcomed Admiral Schley in the name of Alabama. This was followed by an addressel from a representative of Mayor Drennen in behalf of the city.

These speeches were interspersed with martial music from the Mexican and military bands, after which Admiral Schley, accompanied by Governor Johnston, Mayor Drennen and President Caffee, of the fair association, reviewed the entire parade from the reviewing stand. The admiral then held an informal public reception.

TRADES' COUNCIL REFUSED

Rejected Proposition to Raise Boycott Against State Fair.

At a meeting of the Birmingham Trades Council Sunday afternoon the overtures of the state fair association towards a settlement of the boycott were flatly refused.

From a small disagreement between the officers of the Alabama State Fair association and the Birmingham Carpenters' union the boycott has grown until many of the labor organizations in and around Birmingham have taken a hand in the fight.

It was thought the differences would be settled Sunday, when P. G. Bowman, vice-president of the association, went before the Trades' Council and presented a signed statement affirming the friendship of the association for union labor and promising to employ nothing but union men in the future. Such was not the case. After hearing speeches from Mr. Bowman, Frank S. White and General Charles M. Shelley, representing the citizens of Birmingham, the council went into executive session, and after a two hours' discussion unanimously voted down the proposal.

Elyton Company Property Sold.

Under decree of court the property of the Elyton company, of Birmingham, was sold to the highest bidder at noon Monday. The price realized was $1,040,000.

This bid was made by William Halls, Jr., of New York, chairman of the reorganizition committee of the company.

Chairman William Vaughan, of the state republican committee of Alabama, has issued a call for a conference of his friends to be held in Birmingham on November 11.

Half Million-Dollar Fire.

Half a million dollars' worth of property was destroyed at Kansas City Sunday by a fire that started in Jones Bros.' big department store, and spread through half a block of other buildings in Main and Walnut streets. The loss is estimated at $500,000, with $375,000 insurance.

It is reported that the Boers lost 800 in killed and wounded and captured in Thursday's battle on Tatham's farm, near Ladysmith.

ALABAMA NEWS GLEANINGS

Current Topics of Interest to the People of the State.

THE TOWN OF THOMASVILLE BURNED

State Quarantines Have Been Lifted. Interest in the State Fair---Former Alabamian Murdered in New York---A Heavy Sentence.

Disastrous Fire at Thomasville.

Thomasville, a small city on the Southern railroad, was almost wiped from the map Thursday night by a disastrous fire. About 10:30 o'clock the store of N. B. Boyle, one of the principal firms of the city, was discovered on fire. The flames, fanned by the wind that was blowing, rapidly spread from building to building, until the hotel, livery stable, bank, Postal telegraph office and warehouse were on fire. The latter contained 870 bales of cotton, which were destroyed. The lowest calculation of those who know the city and that section of it which was burned place the damage at not less than $75,000. On the side of the railroad where the fire started but one store is left to show where existed the principal portion of Thomasville.

Great Interest in the State Fair.

President A. E. Caffee, of the Alabama State Fair Association, arrived in Birmingham Friday. Immediately upon his arrival a reporter saw him and asked him what was the prospects of visitors from South Alabama to the State fair. He replied:

"I have never seen such interest in an affair of the kind in Alabama in my life. Everywhere I go I hear of lots and cords of people who are coming to the exhibition. There seems to be a universal desire to see Birmingham and enjoy its festivities next week. I am just from Montgomery and can report that the people of the Capital City are coming in large numbers. It is the same way all over the state."

Frederick Hardy Was Murdered.

Additional proof that Frederick Hardy, Jr., the young art student from Tennessee, formerly of Birmingham, was murdered on the shore drive near Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, came to light Friday. The day after Hardy was last seen, October 23, a carpenter found on the slope leading from the shore drive to the waters of the Narrows, an Alpine hat and pocketbook, which were Hardy's. The pocketbook was empty except for some photographs of relatives of the young man.

No importance was attached to the finding of the articles until the discovery of Hardy's corpse in the water at Keyport, N. J., when the hat and pocketbook were taken to the police station. The friends of the murdered man identified them.

Quarantine Lifted.

A special meeting of the board of health was held in Mobile Friday to consider the quarantine situation. State Health Officer Sanders and Surgeon McIntosh, of the Marine Hospital service, were present. It was the consensus of opinion that there is no longer danger of infection of yellow fever, and it was decided that all quarantine restrictions should be removed after Saturday.

A Heavy Sentence.

The trial of Robert M. Roust, the legless slayer of John James, came to an end in the criminal cout of Birmingham Friday, and he was found guilty as charged in the indictment and the punishment was fixed at twenty-five years in the penitentiary. The conviction and heavy sentence did not appear to disturb Roust much. He is a man of unusually happy disposition.

The Governor Takes Action.

Governor Johnston, upon the advice of the state board of health, has caused the quarantine in the state against the yellow fever infected district of Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida to be raised. In addition to the land quarantine, quarantine of Mobile bay was also lifted Saturday.

Prohibitionists.

The candidates for office in Limestone county have signed and published a pledge that they will neither give, nor so far as they can prevent, allow anyone else to give, whisky to voters of this county during the campaign.

W. N. Haynes, a prominent planter and politician of the southern part Limestone county, formerly a state senator, has announced for the legislature.

Batch of Prisoners for Columbus, O.

Thirty-four convicted prisoners of the United States courts, sentenced to terms in the penitentiary at Columbus, O., for illicit distilling, counterfeiting and kindred crimes, were taken from Huntsville to Columbus, O., Saturday by Marshal Dan Cooper and eight deputies. The moonshiners received an average sentence of fifteen months in the penitentiary.

Among the number is John L. Baisden, sentenced to two years for illicit distilling. Baisden is a prominent citizen of Colbert county, and made a strong defense during the trial of his case. His attorneys are Judge William Richardson, Lee Cowart and John H. Wallace and the case has been appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans.

State Fair Opened.

The State Fair opened Tuesday. Much has been said and written of the coming State Fair and of the crowds which will surge through the streets of Birmingham to the music of tin horns, grinding organs, brass bands and every conceivable kind of noise-making apparatus, but one who has not visited the grounds can not conceive of the great work achieved by the association in the short time in which it has had to work. Today the fair grounds present a scene of transformation. From an old deserted park, hundreds of small buildings have sprung up and their white glistening walls tell a wonderful story of the enterprise of the management.

Mississippi River Coal Trade.

The Southern Railway Company contemplates improving its facilities for handling coal shipments from the Birmingham district to Mississippi river points by the erection of additional tipples and enlarging those now used at Greenville, Miss.

When the Southern built the tipples at Greenville two or three years ago it was believed this would be ample for the handling of all the business that could be secured, but the tonnage has now grown to such proportions that additional tipples are almost an absolute necessity.

Tuskegee Institute to Have Exhibit.

Mr. Ferdinand Peck, the commissioner-general of the United States to the Paris exposition, decided to provide for a negro exhibit at the exposition, and has appointed Thomas J. Calloway, a well known colored educationalist, now in the employ of the war department, to have direction of it.

The Hampton and Tuskegee institutes, and the Fisk and Vanderbilt universities will be represented in the exhibit, as well as prominent colored schools generally.

Industries at North Birmingham.

Surveys for the buildings of the Dimmick Pipe company at North Birmingham have been made and a force of men put to work excavating and otherwise preparing for the construction of the buildings.

Representatives of the company that recently bought the old Henderson steel plant at North Birmingham are expected in the city this week and with them will come a force of expert steel men who will at once go to work overhauling the old plant. The repair work will be pushed with all possible haste.

Strike of Short Duration.

The Alabama Cotton Oil mills, at Huntsville, resumed operation after a few hours' inactivity caused by a strike among the colored employees. Wages were reduced and most of the operatives walked out. A majority of them returned to work and vacant places were filled by new negroes.

Cancelled Bonds.

The Board of Revenue of Jefferson county met Saturday and issued a warrant for $20,000 to redeem the old county jail and alms house bonds, whose redemption was ordered some time ago.

Wheeler Will Resume His Seat.

Judge W. J. Wood, of Florence, has received a letter from General Joseph Wheeler, who states that he will resume his seat in congress when that body meets. General Wheeler does not say when he will return from the Philippines.

An Alabama City Accident.

Sam Patterson, a laborer employed at the cotton mills at Alabama City, fell from the first floor to the basement, a distance of twenty feet, sustaining injuries of a serious and perhaps fatal nature.

L. & N. Extension.

The surveyors for the Louisville and Nashville railroad are hard at work making soundings for piers for the railroad bridge to be constructed over the Alabama at Selma. There

BOER VICTORY IN NATAL

Rumored That Sir George White Has Capitulated.

REPORT THAT LADYSMITH HAS FALLEN

Evacuation of Colonso Was a Bitter Pill for the British---Orange Free State Preparing to Invade Cape Colony---Other News.

Persistent reports are in circulation at Lisbon that Gen. Sir George Stewart White, British commander-in-chief in Natal, has capitulated to the Boers.

Colesburg Surrenders.

A special dispatch from Cape Town, dated November 2, says the Boers occupied Colesburg, Cape Colony, on Wednesday, meeting with no resistance from the local police, who yielded to superior forces.

Reported Capture of Ladysmith

The Belgian newspapers continue to publish telegrams from Amsterdam and Berlin reporting the capture of Ladysmith, but no such information has been received at the official residence of Dr. Leyds.

Colenso Evacuated.

It is officially announced in London that the British have evacuated Colenso, south of Ladysmith.

The war office has issued the following statement: The colonial office has received information to the effect that the British troops have withdrawn from Colenso and have concentrated further south, but we have no news of any engagements in that neighborhood.

A BITTER PILL.

Fears That the War Office is Suppressing Bad News.

News that Colenso has been evacuated was another bitter pill for the British public, and is arousing fears that the continental statements of a second serious defeat of General White may prove true. A significent fact is that the war office does not say when Colenso was evacuated, so the statement which emaninated from Dr. Leyds, the diplomatic representative of the Transvaal, who is located at Brussells, that the Boers had occupied Ladysmith, was positively true. There is much apprehension that the war office is suppressing bad news.

The dispatches say that the forces of the Orange Free State have at length prepared to invade Cape Colony.

ARMY ROUTED.

The Colombian Forces Badly Whipped by Revolutionists.

Columbian advices and private direct advices contradict the story received in censored cables of the destruction of the Colombian insurgent fleet, which now resolves itself into the capture of a few small boats conveying 200 insurgents, of whom twenty were killed. The others escaped ashore.

A great battle was fought October 3, ten miles outside of Barranquilla, and resulted in the defeat of the government forces with the loss of 300 killed and 100 wounded. The army was routed and its equipments were captured.

A vessell has arrived at Barranquilla from Curacoa with 600 insurgent reinforcements and a quantity of arms and munitions. The revolution is spreading rapidly.

Yellow Fever Report.

Doctor Porter sent the following statement from Key West Sunday night: New cases, 2; deaths, 0; total cases to date, 1278; total deaths, 63.

MIAMI.—New cases, 3; deaths, 1; total cases to date, 82; total deaths, 5.

Cotton Compress Exploded.

Saturday the cylinder of the Natchez (Miss.) Cotton Compress exploded, completely wrecking the establishment. Loss estimated at $30,000. No one injured.

Georgia Boat Goes Ashore.

The steamer Catherine Whiting, 890 tons, Captain F. C. Miller, from Santilla river, Ga., to New York, laden with a cargo of 350,000 feet of lumber, belonging to the Hilton-Dodge Lumber Co., went ashore twenty miles south of Frying Pan shoals. She is a total loss, having been dashed to pieces, and is valued at $20,000. The captain and crew of eighteen men drifted ashore.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana Ala., as second class matter.

COTTON still goes up in price, and the farmer gets the best of it.

THE latest entry in the race for Governor is Gen. C. M. Shelley. He is a strong man and will put up a good race.

THE question is, Who are you for for Senator? We aint for anybody who aint for somebody. Therefore if anybody wants our vote they must get off the fence.

WE notice that a special judge was appointed to hold court over at Eufaula. What's the matter with the supernumerary judge; what's he doing? He must be confining himself to drawing his salary, as we haven't heard of his doing anything else.

THE $1.500 borrowed by the county some time ago is all gone. The debt of the county is now $3,500, the tax rate is 6 mills and no money in the treasury. A fine showing for three years rule by the great reformers.

THE issue in this State next year will be the Senatorship, and we don't see any of the candidates for State offices getting on the side of either of the principal candidates. They are all on the fence during the big fight; by the time the convention meets they will be original Morgan men.

LET it be remembered that there is a Confederate graveyard in this county unenclosed, and let the people respond to the appeal for funds to enclose it. It is a duty and a privilege to honor a nation's dead, and while the Confederacy is but a memory her dead are none the less a sacred trust to those who survive.

FOR some time THE CHRONICLE has been coming out on Friday morning as a matter of convenience to the publisher, but we find that it does not suit our readers. We yield to their wishes, and hereafter the paper will be mailed on Thursday. We hope it will reach each office on time.

Now is the time to renew your subscription, and to induce your friends to subscribe. You will all want to keep up with politics from now on, and you will have to read this paper to do it. If we have the readers we will accomplish much good for our party next year. You can help us get the readers.

IN Tuesday's elections the Democrats redeemed themselves in Maryland, and Kentucky is somewhat in doubt. The fusion ticket won in Nebraska, and all the other doubtful States went Republican. Some wise men claim the result as a victory for Bryan, others that it is a defeat. It occurs to us that it is neither.

THE Selma Times puts it thusly: "Joe Johnston trying to fill Morgan's shoes in the United States Senate is like a tom-tit trying to hatch out an eagle's brood, like a scrapping match between a pigmy and a giant, like a race between a three-legged flee and a greyhound." The Times has a forcible way of telling the truth.

FROM what we hear the Populists are learning something about one of their big bosses that we have often told them, that he was not true even to them. They do say that they have caught him in an attempt to trade off his party to a prominent Democrat. We may be in a position to tell more about it later on.

IT is said that the commissioners will compromise with the railroads on the illegal tax rate by knocking off one-half the excess, and that those who have paid taxes will get back a half mill. We ought to have a court of county commissioners who know the law, or can at least understand it after it is told them.

THE Governor's appointee not only appointed a Populist deputy in this county, but he is throwing all his patronage to the paper that has been fighting his party since in the bitterest of terms. This is clearly a case of showing faith by works. Judging from his course since his appointment the committee showed its good judgment by declining to endorse him.

THE Advocate says: "The Populists belive in an irredeemable currency, and they will support no man for President or any other office who believes in coin redemption." For present emergencies that explains very clearly the Populist theory, but by election time they will be supporting a conglomeration of flat-money Populists and goldbug Republicans, woolhat farmers and corporation presidents, as usual. They preach unsound doctrines and don't even practice what they preach.

Rev. P. L. Abernethy is reported as saying from the pulpit in Montevallo recently that that city had entered upon an era of prosperity never before enjoyed, and that more money is now in circulation among her people than the most sanguine had ever anticipated. Montevallo is already reaching out for the many conveniences of a modern city, and all her people cooperate in the effort. It takes this to build up any town and without it no substantial progress can ever be made. Montevallo is a Shelby County town, and we all have a just pride in her interests, but the entire State rejoices in the wholesome example she has made.

A LIME COMBINATION.

Plan to Put All Kilns Under One Management.

All the lime kilns in the South, with the exception of those located in Texas, will pass into the hands of one corporation on the first of January.

Negotiations looking to this end have been pending between the lime manufacturers of the South for several months past.

The following clipping from the Baltimore Sun gives the details of the combine:

"Arrangements have been perfected for a combination of the lime manfacturing concerns in the South. The plan was engineered by the banking firm of Sperry, Jones & Co., which has recently carried to a successful issue a number of important combinations.

"The new company, which is to absorb the various concerns, will be chartered under the laws of New Jersey and will be known as the Consolidated Lime Company. It will go into full operation on January 1, 1900. The details of capitalization have not as yet been perfected, but the company will have a capitalization of about $2,500,000.

"Mr. A. M. Baldwin, a well-known financier of Montgomery, Ala., and president of the First National bank of that city, will be president of the new company. Offices of the company will be located at Montgomery, Ala., and Nashville, Tenn. Experts are now examining the different properties, and a special dispatch from Montgomery, Ala., stated that they were in that city examining properties there.

"This includes 41 plants in Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and South Carolina. There is no stone suitable for commercial lime in the other Southern States. The capacity of the plants secured is about 2,500,000 barrels per annum, and they are located on the most eligible sites by reason of accessibility to the best stone, abundant fuel and barrel supply and situation with respect to freight rates to the centers of distribution. It is proposed to consolidate all these plants into one company and under one management to control the production and market in those sections."

The principal lime kilns in Alabama are located at Calera, Siluria and Longview, in Shelby County, and near Anniston, in Calhoun County. Alabama produces more lime than any other Southern State.

NOT WITHOUT SIN.

Small Shortage Found in Clerk Pearson's Books.

State Examiner of Public Accounts John W. Purifoy, whose reports on the various officers of this county was published in our columns some time ago, has furnished Governor Johnston with a supplemental report on the books and accounts of John P. Pearson, clerk of the circuit court in this county.

The examination of all the officers was made during the months of August and September, and at that time the books of Mr. Pearson were found to be in a seemingly correct and good condition. He had been in office barely a year, and was commended by the Examiner. A subsequent examination was made, however, by Mr. Purifoy into his books and a shortage of $15.34 was discovered. This indebtedness was found in two removal cases where the clerk had failed to make the proper credit.

A letter from Mr. Purifoy states that Mr. Pearson has made a showing that in one of the cases a nol prosse was made and the defendant convicted in another, and he has only charged the clerk with the actual amount due in one case—that of Tom Walker. We publish below the report as sent in:

Hon. Joseph F. Johnston, Governor:

DEAR SIR: I respectfully submit the following supplemental report on the accounts of Hon. John P. Pearson, clerk of the circuit court of Shelby County:

When my report was filed I was not aware that there were removal bills, in hard labor cases, accruing during the time Mr. Pearson had been in office, but subsequent investigation developed that the following should be charged to him, the defendants having been sentenced to hard labor for the county and he having failed to tax the removal bills accruing in their cases in the costs for which they were sentenced:

Prorata in case of Tom Walker. 66⅔ per cent of $11.51	$7 67
Prorata in case of J. M. Hall 66⅔ per cent of $11.51	7 67
Total due	15 34

Respectfully submitted.
JOHN W. PURIFOY,
Examiner of Public Accounts.

According to the Examiner's corrected report, Mr. Pearson is only liable for the sum of $7.67.

The meeting at the Presbyterian church closed Sunday night. with six accessions to the church. The meeting was well attended throughout the week and considerable interest was manifested at each service. Rev. Mr. McLean left on the morning train of Saturday for Livingston to fill his appointments at the church in that city on Sunday. He is an able minister and did good work in our midst.

Hon. D. R. McMillan has torn down his residence on East College, and is erecting in its place a large and commodious two-story building with a frontage of forty feet or more. The Judge's family is considerably larger than when he first went to housekeeping, and hence the necessity for his present actions. His family is with Henry Milner temporarily.

A fine grey fox was captured by two little negro children near this place one day last week. The fox was driven into a large brush heap and was killed by the dog with the children before they could get to it. It was a fine specimen, but the negroes were ignorant of its name until told. Something has been killing the chickens of the people around where this animal was found for sometime, and this is no doubt the guilty party.

Alex Heard, col., was shot and seriously wounded by a white man in Selma last Friday because of his impudence and sassy talk in the presence of ladies. Alex was a former barber at this place, but skipped out with the tools belonging to the owner of the shop, and has been in a considerable number of scrapes since. Most of these difficulties are caused by his impudence to white people.

The Methodist Sunday school, which is the largest one in the city, has been doing some good work recently. The teachers and pupils are full of enthusiasm and the different classes vie with each other in an effort to raise the largest contribution for any special purpose. The collection last Sunday for missions netted the sum of $15, one class alone giving $6.25. Another class has adopted an orphan girl at the home in Summerfield, and the reports from its contributions each Sunday show that she is being well looked after.

Herman Edwin Lester, the one-year old child of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lester, died at the home of its grandmother at Lester Chapel last Sunday. The funeral and burial occurred at Hubbard Cemetery on the day following. The child had been afflicted with an insidious disease since its birth, but it did not develop into a dangerous form until a few days before death came. The condolence of the people goes out to the stricken father and mother in this their first bereavement.

Alphonso Verchot returned home Sunday night from Ft. Crook, Neb., where he was sent some weeks ago as a recruit for a volunteer regiment in the Philippines. He failed to pass on the final examination. Five went from in and near this place, and of that number only two now remain in Nebraska—Messrs. Vest and Tinney. Alphonso states that he left Will Vest in the hospital, and that he too was doubtful of standing the required examination before embarking for the Philippines.

"Aunt Calline" Harkins, an old and highly respected negro woman of this place, died very suddenly Saturday night. Though a negro she was as much esteemed by the white citizens as by her own people, and there are those living now who can recall many pleasant times spent at her house, when on the occasion of some anniversary or public holiday she would prepare a sumptuous feast and invite the whole neighborhood to participate, furnishing entertainment for white and black. She was a good negro and had resided here practically all of her life.

Shelby.

For bee-hive industry, come to Shelby. "It can't be beat."

All of the Shelby Iron Company's shops are full of busy men, and in some departments it has been necessary to work overtime and at night. The clerks in the office, too, are kept busy until late hours.

All the iron in the Company's yard is sold and paid for, cash in advance of delivery. The contracts already in hand will consume the product of two furnaces for many months in advance. Furnace No. 1 will be in blast soon, perhaps this week.

Mr. Charles Sparks, the superintendent of the charcoal department, has been making energetic efforts to secure a sufficient OUTPUT and INPUT of coal to run the Company's two large furnaces, and has success in sight.

Shelby is well provided with polite merchants, who are ready to do good to people who call on them from out of town.

Dea. Alexander H. Averyt and wife are making an extensive carriage tour visiting among friends and relatives in South Alabama.

We regret to learn that James McLean, the efficient engineer of the Company's waterworks, at Kewahatchee, is in poor health and obliged to take a vacation.

Dr. Parker is working energetically to make a name and place for himself, and he has already gained a good reputation for himself in Shelby.

Mr. Powell, teacher of our public school, is having excellent success.

Shelby is getting to be quite a court town. Judge Seale is winning good opinions for himself by the intelligence and fairness of his decisions.

Bicyclers are numerous in our town for the size of our population. We have two good repairers.

Rev. Walker preached at the Methodist church last Sunday morning, and the pastor, Rev. S. N. Burns, at night. Sacramental services at the Covenant Congregational church in the morning; "Missionary Heroes" the subject at night.

Rev. A. T. Clarke is absent this week to attend a State Convention at Gate City. B. S. Q.

Mrs. G. W. McGowen returned to Jacksonville Friday with her two little nieces, Libbie and London Porter.

E. Williamson has resigned his interest with the railroad and express companies and has been succeeded by Mr. Hansell, a young married man of much experience in the railway business. That he will give entire satisfaction we feel sure.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kytle have vacated the Williamson cottage to occupy the Claud Jackson residence in Jacksons Town. Claude having recently moved to his father-in-law's. The Williamson cottage will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Hansell.

Our town has grown so much since our last communication that we don't know whether this is Wilsonville or Baltimore, as she has taken upon herself the attire of a Baltimore Bargain House. If the ginning season was not so near over we would be constrained to invent a device for painting ads on the clouds of smoke that float above us.

Our dramatic talent would do well to muster its forces for a Christmas entertainment. Can we get a second?

FRIEND O' MINE.

The joy at the wedding of Mr. Samuel Templin and Miss Luna Stewart near Chapel last Sunday came near ending in an abrupt manner before the day had passed. They were married at 9 o'clock in the morning, and went direct from the house to preaching, some miles distant, when the ceremony was pronounced. On the return home in the afternoon the horse attached to the carriage containing the bride became frightened and ran away, throwing her violently to the ground. She was very painfully hurt, but not seriously, though medical attention was necessary before the journey home could be resumed.

Advice to Consumptives

There are three great remedies that every person with weak lungs, or with consumption itself, should understand.

These remedies will cure about every case in its first stages; and many of those more advanced. It is only the most advanced that are hopeless. Even these are wonderfully relieved and life itself greatly prolonged.

They Should Know it.

Many women suffer untold agony and misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood. They have been led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for the many ills that beset womankind.

Neuralgia, nervousness, headache, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, rheumatism, a dragging pain or dull ache in the back, weakness or bearing-down sensation, profuse or scanty supply of urine with strong odor, frequent desire to pass it with scalding or burning sensation, sediment in it after standing in bottle or common glass for 24 hours are signs of kidney and bladder trouble.

The above symptoms are often attributed by the patient herself or by her physician to female weakness or womb trouble. Hence, so many fail to obtain relief, because they are treating, not the disease itself, but a reflection of the primary cause, which is kidney trouble.

In fact, women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same remedy.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is the great discovery of the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is easy to get at any drug store for 50 cents or $1.

To prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and book telling all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Kindly mention THE CHRONICLE, and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

FOR FARM AND GARDEN.

Have Things up to the Handle.

A well known writer on agricultural subjects says that especially in seeding should there never be any haphazard ways. Even in giving milk to the calves should the process be the rule. The calf should have its ration statedly, should have it sweet, and should have it warm. Over feeding is injurious, but feeding cold milk is worse.

Weeds on the Roadside.

Not many farmers bother themselves about the weeds that grow alongside their farms on the roads, and, as a rule, not many road overseers care whether the weeds grow on the roads or not; but these same weeds produce seed and keep the farm well supplied with weeds every year, which cost the farmers large sums to destroy. The wise farmer will keep the weeds down at his own expense if they grow on the road.

To Keep a Dog From Sucking Eggs.

A Kansas farmer recommends the following as a sure cure for dogs that have a tendency for eggs: Divide a heaping teaspoonful of tartar emetic into eight or ten doses. Break off the end of an egg, empty a part of the contents, and stir into the remainder left in the shell a dose of tartar emetic. Confine the dog in a room, or tie him and give him the doctored egg. In an hour or two he will be trying to turn himself wrong side out.

As soon as he is over the nausea give him a second egg and a third, if he will eat it. When he refuses to eat the egg, and lets it lie by him for several hours untouched, pry open his mouth and force the egg down his throat. Afterward you may trust him in your henhouse.

The object in tying the dog is to let him get nothing else to eat while he is under treatment, or he may think it was the last thing eaten that made him so sick. The idea is to convince him that eggs no longer will lie on his stomach.

Disposal of Potatoes Inclined to Rot.

Potatoes from fields affected by blight should be kept by themselves, so they can be disposed of first and in ways that might not be open to the disposal of the whole crop. Where blight has appeared in a field, except it be the early blight, the tubers from that field will rot, to some extent at least, when placed in an ordinary cellar and exposed to about all kinds of temperatures above freezing. The first care is that none of them be saved for seed, as they carry the mycelium of the diseases over from year to year. In disposing of them two ways are open. One is to sell them for use at once, even if they have to be sold at a small sacrifice. If they go to hotels or other places that use large quantities of potatoes they will probably be used before the rot begins to make itself manifest.

If the potatoes must be kept, it can only be in cold storage of some kind. If dug late in the fall and the weather remains cool this may sometimes be accomplished by putting the potatoes into the cellar and keeping the cellar cool by opening the windows at night and keeping them shut during the daytime. This will keep the temperature down to a point where the concealed fungus will not develop. Later the tubers may be pitted.

Too Much Pollen for Wintering.

It has been claimed by apiarists that have tested the matter to some extent, that bees will winter better if not allowed to partake of pollen, but confined on combs of honey alone. I think some attention should be given to this matter in arranging hives for winter. I am satisfied that in some cases where a large amount of pollen filled the combs which the cluster of bees occupied during the winter, did not winter well. Dysentery showed itself to some extent in almost every case in such instances, but we might attribute this to the fact that they were confined to the combs containing pollen, and were obliged to partake of it or starve.

I believe they should not be confined to such combs, but I do not believe it necessary to entirely remove them from the hive. The frames of comb that generally contain pure honey are found on the outside of the brood nest, and those that contain pollen are always found next to the brood, and as this is the case the bees are likely to occupy the combs containing pollen for their winter quarters. This can be controlled to quite an extent, and all I think really necessary is to remove the centre combs, or those combs containing pollen, and place them at the outside, and the combs that contain honey next to the bees.

If this is done and the bees confined on combs of pure honey, we think no damage will be done by them partaking of the pollen at their pleasure. It is very necessary that bees have a good supply of pollen in early spring, and if possible we prefer to have it in the hive where they have access to it when needed. It is true that we can furnish a substitute in the shape of meal, etc., but can only do so on days that they can fly and work on it. It often occurs that a large amount of pollen is stored on the combs, and as it is exclusively used for food for the young bees, it naturally is stored near the brood nest. The amount of pollen stored depends on the supply. Bees seem to be as eager to gather pollen as to gather honey, and often a large reserve is on hand.—A. H. Duff in Farm, Field and Fireside.

Sage as a Market Crop.

Almost all farmers grow some sage for home use in making dressing for roasted turkey and chickens. In the olden time, when cheese making for home use was common, sage was usually put in one or more of the cheeses to improve the flavor and make variety. There is no more wholesome seasoning than sage. Most others, especially the boughten spices, pepper, allspice and the like, brought from the tropics, are too constipating for health. Sage is not so, or at most only in very slight degree, and as it is always used as condiment with fresh meat, which is laxative, it does good rather than harm. Those farmers who grow sage have generally an active demand about holiday time from their neighbors who have been less provident, and they have enough demand in their own neighborhood to take all their surplus. Sometimes, however, the well-to-do neighbors are ashamed to take so little a thing as this for a gift, and what pennies they give for sage much more than pays the expense of caring for the bed.

The market gardeners grow celery as an annual, and by taking the thriftiest plants and allowing them to seed, they have developed several varieties of large-leaved sage, which it is always better to use as seed when setting out new plantations. Sage, may, however, be spread from the root. This requires no annual planting of the seed, and of course keeps the large leaved variety pure, though after being grown in a clump the plant will be less vigorous and have smaller leaves. The layered sage stem, with its lower leaves stripped off and covered, roots very quickly, and this can be done any time in midsummer and secure a well- ooted plant next year. Most of the old sage beds in the country are grown from layers. This is why they grow in clumps, as the layer has some dormant buds which send up shoots the following season. The sage plant is best grown from seed which may be sown now, and get growth enough to live through the winter if the top is cut down in the fall, pretty close to the ground, and covered with a forkful of manure. This winter covering is important to keep the sage roots from heaving out in winter by alternate freezing and thawing.

New Way of Planting Strawberries.

It has been found that it costs more to cultivate a spring-set strawberry bed during its first six weeks than for any other period of its life. Attention must be given at the very time that other items of farm work need looking after. If this care is withheld the bed will become a mass of weeds and will be so checked that it may never recover. The following method which is in use in some sections of New York state and which the writer has tested in a small way, will be found as practical as it is simple.

The young plants are removed from the field in the usual manner, but are taken to a previously arranged bed of good soil where they are planted, after being trimmed of old leaves and injured and superfluous roots. The shortening of the remaining roots is rapidly done as follows: The plant is held in the left hand, leaves up, the collar grasped by the thumb and first finger, the hand is closed around the roots, which are snipped off by means of a pair of shears. In the bed the plants are set in rows about a foot apart and an inch apart in the rows. They are shaded until they have become established and a mulch of well rotted stable manure that is free from straw is applied. The plants are sprayed with Bordeaux mixture every ten days or two weeks, and watered if necessary. The ground is soaked just before they are to be removed to the field. They are then lifted, set closely upon trays and carried to the field. They are remarkably well provided with roots and suffer no check when set in the permanent rows.

While the plants are in the beds the field is being prepared. It is plowed, harrowed and thoroughly fined by means of a weeder run over it once a week or ten days, and after each rain. It not only pulverizes the surface but kills weeds and turns up any grubs and worms for the birds to remove. The plants have, by this method, a warm bed to start in, which is very different from the usual cold comfort forced upon them in early spring, when, in order to be ready, the ground frequently has to be plowed before it should be touched. The remaining treatment is the same as for other beds.

This method permits of easier spraying of the plants for disease, which operation occupies less time and requires less fungicide by far than is used in the open field. A double saving is thus effected. No spraying is usually needed in the field after the plants are set, unless the germs of disease are already present in great quantity in it. Much more time is allowed for transplanting since it may be done when the greatest rush of spring work is over. Shipments of plants that arrive late can sometimes be saved from utter loss by this plan. Lastly, plants grown in this way are in every respect equal to pot grown plants.—M. G. Kains in the Epitomist.

Poultry Notes.

It is possible to improve the egg laying qualities of any flock by careful selection.

The farmer who tries two colonies of birds this winter will want four next winter.

It is a good plan to give laying hens an occasional feed of corn that has been burned until it is charcoal.

The color of an egg has nothing to do with its nutritive value. A white egg is just as good as a brown one.

A party gave a dollar for a horse, killed it, sold the hide for $1.25 and had the meat for his chickens for his trouble.

If you havn't got a bone mill feed chipped meat scraps or sausage to the fowls—meat is just about as good as bone, anyhow.

The hen is the most profitable of all birds kept on the farm, but it is well where one can to have ducks, turkeys and geese.

If the hens are too fat to lay or moult well, feed them but once a day if yarded, or not at all if free, until reduced in weight.

The first three days that a hen sits on her eggs she should attend faithfully to business in order to start the "deck" to growing.

One brood at a time is best for the farm unless the farmer has money and time to build the yards and houses to keep the birds apart.

Ground oats, when made from a good quality of grain, is one of the best parts of the morning mash. It produces muscle, bone and feathers—not fat.

Chicago uses 4,000,000,000 pounds of ice a year.

RACING FOR A WIRE.

Plucky Woman Reporter Who Scored a Beat on Her Rivals.

"Some of my most vivid remembrances are connected with races for the possession of the wire in a country telegraph office, where the operator can send about ten words a minute, and rival reporters are filing twenty thousand words or so," began a woman reporter. "You know the telegraph law that the reporter who first files a page of 'copy' has possession of the wire until his last page is filed, provided he furnishes copy fast enough to keep the operator busy.

"The first important murder trial I ever attended took place in a little country town in Delaware. Representatives of leading Philadelphia and New York papers were there, as the usual circumstances of the trial made it of wide public interest. The interest grew as the trial reached the climax of a verdict. The jury came in at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and those of us who represented afternoon papers prepared for a lively scramble for the wire in the station about a mile away. I knew quite well that I need not expect any favors on account of my sex, and, indeed, I wanted none.

"That noon I went to a livery stable and hired the best horse they had with the understanding that the team should be kept waiting at the court house door. They sent me a fine, spirited horse, but only a boy to drive him. The instant the verdict was given there was a rush. The prisoner fell fainting in the dock, and the excitement delayed my rivals a little. I scampered down the long corridor of the court house and sprang into the buggy. Snatching the reins from the boy's hands I gave the spirited horse a sharp cut of the whip that made him jump nearly out of the harness and lifted the front wheels off the ground. Naturally, the horse ran away, but he ran toward the railroad. I kept him in the country road and let him run. Looking back I saw a New York reporter in a farmer's two-horse wagon tearing down the street after me. The farmer's wife, a fat woman in a red shawl, sat on the back seat, squealing every time the wheels hit a raised crossing. The road turned and ran parallel with the track, and behind me I heard the rumble and roar of an approaching train. The horse grew wild with fright. I tried to pull him in, for we were approaching the station. I could do nothing with him, and it looked as if we should go by the telegraph office on a dead run.

"'Are you afraid to be left alone with him?' I asked the boy.

"'Nope,' he said bravely.

"'When I give you the reins take them quick, and hold on,' I said.

"'This horse is going to smash things,' he observed.

"'Let him smash,' said I.

"I had seen a pile of sand beside the station platform, and I thought that would be a good place to light. 'Now, then!' I cried, and he seized the reins. With the horse still running, I gathered up my skirts and jumped. I lit all in a heap on the sand pile, and the boy and horse disappeared down the road. I was on my feet in an instant and threw a pile of copy in the window to the surprised operator.

"When the New York man dashed up my story had the wire, and I sat in the corner putting up my hair and fanning myself.

"'Warm day, isn't it?' said I, sweetly.

"'Yes, it is,' he snapped."—Lippincott's Magazine.

All Wounded in the Left Leg.

Thirteen G. A. R. veterans strangers to one another, sat one night side by side in a Philadelphia "light lunch cafe," devouring sandwiches, fishcakes, pies and milk. They got to talking together about wounds, amputations and battles, and it developed that each of these veterans had been hit in the left leg at Gettysburg. They talked awhile longer, and it appeared that each was a private from a different regiment, and that each of these regiments was from a different state. Returning to the subject of wounds again, the oldest veteran described the operation of probing, and showed the bullet, worn as a charm on his watch chain, that had been extracted from his wounded leg at Gettysburg. The 12 other veterans held up their watch chains, and behold, from each a bullet dangled, and this bullet in every case was the one that had lodged for awhile in its owner's left leg.

"I'll stand treat on the head of this," said the youngest veteran, excitedly, "ey, waiter, set 'em up! What'll ye take, boys, tea, coffee or milk?"—Philadelphia Record.

New York's Intellectual Policemen.

The discovery made the other day that Policeman George H. Quackenbos of the New York city police force was formerly a professor in Greek, Latin and rhetoric, is not at all surprising. An examination of the records of the men belonging to the department, which is kept at headquarters, shows there are more than 500 on the force who at one time belonged in the prominent walks of life. At one station alone there are two graduates of Cornell, one graduate from Oxford at another, while in greater New York there are more than forty men who passed the final examinations at far-famed universities. Fifty men were formerly merchants, one a former lieutenant in the United States army, two ex-officers of the British army, half a dozen from the Russian army and perhaps equally as many more from the other armies of the world. Three were formerly editors, five civil engineers, forty telegraph operators, one cowboy and two interpreters. One man was formerly a locomotive engineer, two druggists, three photographers, two mining engineers and one newspaper manager.

Would Not Eat His Cream.

Ice cream venders in London streets earn $15 to $20 a week during the season. One of these venders created much amusement in a London court the other day by the emphatic "No" with which he responded to the question whether he allowed his family to eat his "cream."

Dot's Prayer for Peace.

One evening little 4-year-old Dorothy had failed to remember her father in her prayer because he had scolded her. "You must pray for papa, too, Dot," said her mother. "But I don't want to," replied the little one. "But you must, Dot," said her mother. Dropping upon her knees again, Dot added: "And, for pity's sake, bless papa, too, and let us have peace in the family."

QUALITY AND NEWS.

Fame and Excellence Are Determining Factors in Successful Development.

ONE OF THE IMPORTANT FUNCTIONS OF HIGH-CLASS NEWSPAPERS.

In presenting interesting phases of scientific and economic problems, high-class newspapers frequently give information of as great value in their advertising columns as in those devoted to the publication of the principal events of the day, and when the fame of a product is extended beyond its natural limits into foreign lands, and a large demand created throughout Great Britain and her Colonies and the principal sea-ports and cities of Europe, Asia and Africa, it becomes a pleasant duty to note the fact and to tell of the points of excellence on which so great a success is based. We refer to the now world-famed laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, the product of the California Fig Syrup Company. The merits of this well-known excellent laxative were first made known to the world through the medical journals and newspapers of the United States; and is one of the distinct achievements of the press. It is now well known that Syrup of Figs is an ethical proprietary remedy, approved by the most eminent physicians everywhere, because it is simple and effective, yet pleasant to the taste and acceptable to the system, and not only prompt in its beneficial effects, but also wholly free from any unpleasant after-effects. It is frequently referred to as the remedy of the healthy, because it is used by people who enjoy good health and who live well and feel well and are well informed on all subjects generally, including laxatives. In order to get its beneficial effects, it is necessary to get the genuine Syrup of Figs, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

Foreigners in the Transvaal.

R. H. Redfern writes the Chicago Record as follows: As one who has lived for two years in South Africa I may be pardoned for clearing up some of the popular misapprehensions regarding foreigners in that country. The Transvaal is a republic only in name; it is dominated by a ring as effectively as New York was bossed in the days of Tweed. The great mass of the Dutch are densely ignorant and superstitious. They are opposed to all progress; they do not know how to use their sudden wealth. The gold produced by the energy and capital of foreigners would remain in the bowels of the earth as far as any effort on the part of the Dutch is concerned. The foreigners pay eight-tenths of the taxes, yet have no part in the government. Johannesburg is denied its own municipal laws. The whole situation is one of tyranny and oppression, revolting to liberty-loving Americans. The cry that foreigners who dislike the laws of the Transvaal need not stay there is idle and useless. The fact that these foreigners are Americans, English, Scotch, Germans and Australians is no reason why they should be singled out for unjust discrimination, especially so when they have made the country what it is. The government of the Transvaal medieval. If it refuses to keep pace with civilization let it get out of the way. The Anglo-Saxon must be supreme in South Africa. Dutch bravado will cut a sorry figure when once the British army settles down to the real business of war.

Kept Well His Faith.

An old man, a Buddhist, went to visit a Wesleyan missionary at Ceylon. He was bent with age, nearly blind, scarcely able to walk. After a little talk he told the missionary his expectations after death, which he knew must come to him soon. "I am 96," he said. "I have climbed Adam's peak (where Buddha is said to have left his footprints) twenty-six times; I have visited the 'Temple of the Tooth' in Kandy seven times; I have had a number of Buddhist books copied and given to Buddhist priests; I have never killed an animal, only on a few occasions have I caught some fish. So you see I have plenty of merit, and I shall be born well in my next life."

THE MANILA GIRL.

She Holds Her Body as Straight as the Walls of a House.

The carriage and walk of the native women of Manila are thus described by a returning traveler:

"As a rule the women of all classes are as straight as the walls of a house, if not straighter. A plum-line dropped from the nape of the neck would, in most instances, fall well behind the heels. But the gait is a peculiar swing which is quite noticeable. Some charge this, as well as the straightness, to their habit of carrying all burdens, from a cake of soap to a house and lot, on the top of the head. That is probably the cause of the erect bearing, but I think the peculiar gait due to a certain swing of the limbs required for keeping the shoes on the feet. The local woman's shoe consists usually of a flat sole with a toe-cap. Sometimes the cap has room for all the toes, sometimes not.

Often the sole is raised from the ground by wooden heels and soles—blocks like, but lower than those used by the Japanese. Stockings are not usually worn. Let my 'gentle reader' take a pair of her little slippers and cut away from the soles all of the superstructure except a cap that will just about cover her toes, and after sticking her toes into them try to walk around her boudoir, and see how many shoes she has on after the trip. Try it again with the little outward curving swing from the hip. After a few years of practice the slipper will stay on, and you will have acquired the gait of a Filipino. There is, perhaps, a certain grace in the movement, and there is also a good deal of 'shuffling' and a general appearance of being slipshod."

Deep Wells of the World.

The Forest Oil Company says it owns the deepest oil well in the world, in the Monongahala river valley. It has been drilled to a depth of 5,512 feet, but work has been suspended owing to a break in the 2¼ inch rope used. As a result, 1,000 feet of rope and a string of tools are at the bottom. Experts are at work on the fishing job, and hope to be able to resume drilling soon. It is proposed to sink the well to the 6,000 foot mark, which will be in the carboniferous limestone, where oil may be found. Some of the deep wells are as follows: Pass, France, 2,000 feet; Paris, 1,703; Neusalwerk, 2,288; Kissingen, 1,878; Sperenberg, near Berlin, 4,190; St. Louis, Mo., 3,843; Louisville, Ky., 2,086; Columbus, O., 3,775¼, and Charleston, S. C., 1,250 feet.

VOL. XIV. COLUMBIANA, SHELBY COUNTY, ALABAMA, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1899. NO. 48.

W. J. BRYAN GIVES HIS VIEWS

AS TO THE RESULT OF THE RECENT STATE ELECTIONS.

HE EXPRESSES SATISFACTION

Declares Republicans Have Nothing to Brag On, According to Figures.

A Lincoln, Neb., special says: W. J. Bryan Saturday evening gave to the press an extended statement summing up the results of the elections in different states. In Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, where the Democrats affirmed the Chicago platform, he finds that they have made gains, while in New York and New Jersey the Republican vote shows a falling off. Maryland, he declares, is now safely Democratic. On the Kentucky election, he says:

"The result in Kentucky does not give any encouragement to the Republicans. The latest returns show that the contest between Mr. Goebel and Mr. Taylor is very close. The Democrats claim the election of Goebel and the entire state ticket by small pluralities. The legislature is safely Democratic in both branches and the election of Blackburn to succeed Lindsay is assured. No one who has watched the contest will doubt that the Democracy, united on national issues, can be relied upon for a majority of 20,000 to 30,000.

Ohio is summed up as follows:

"What consolation can republicans draw from the Ohio election? Mr. Hanna secured the nomination of his candidate for governor upon a platform indorsing the republican administration. And while the returns indicate that Nash has a plurality of about fifty thousand over McLean, McLean and Jones together have a majority of something like fifty thousand over the republican candidate.

"McLean ran upon a platform emphatically indorsing the Chicago platform and condemning the trusts, militarism and imperialism, and he made a gallant fight against great odds. Ohio is the home of the president. It is the home of Mr. Hanna, chairman of the Republican national committee. Postmasters all over the United States were uged to contribute money to save Ohio.

"Mr. Hanna took the stump himself and called upon Republicans to support the ticket and indorse the policies of the administration. And yet in spite of all that could be done, Mr. Hanna's own county was carried by Mr. Jones, and the Republican party, which had a majority of nearly fifty thousand in 1896, is now overwhelmed by a majority approximating fifty thousand. The Jones vote is anti-Republican. Mr. Jones himself has made an open fight against Mr. Hanna and his methods and the Republican party has turned its batteries against Mr. Jones and his followers."

Nebraska Means Much.

Iowa, South Dakota and Kansas results are passed over with brief paragraphs as not of leading importance. In Nebraska he says:

"The Nebraska campaign was fought on national issues and the fusion candidate for judge received about 14,000 this year as against 3,000 last year for the fusion candidate for governor and 13,000 for the fusion electors in 1896 and the fusion candidate for judge in 1896. Assistant Secretary of War Meiklejohn came from Washington to plead with the voters to uphold the president's policies. Senator Thurston and Senator Hayward were on the stump warning the people not to repudiate the president.

"Senator Fairbanks and other prominent Republicans from outside the state lent their influence, but notwithstanding the efforts put forth by the Republicans the fusion forces gained a signal victory. Their candidate, Judge Holcomb, carried five of the congressional districts out of six and lost the remaining district (the fifth) by only a thousand. The fusionists made a net gain of three district judges and a large gain in county officers."

Mr. Bryan continues:

"Taken as a whole, the election returns from all the states give encouragement to those who hope for the overthrow of the Republican party in 1900. It is evident that those who believed in the Chicago platform in 1896 still believe in it. It is also evident that the hostility to the Chicago platform among those who oppose it is not as pronounced as it was in 1896.

"It is apparent that there is a growing hostility to the monopolies which have grown up under a Republican administration. It is safe to say that the American people would by a large majority pronounce against the attempt to raise the standing army to one hundred thousand, and it is equally certain that upon a direct vote upon the issue a large majority of the people would pronounce against an imperialistic policy which would develop here a colonial system after the patern of European governments.

"If the rebuke administered to the republicans at the polls had been more severe, the prospect of remedial legislation at the hands of the republicans would be brighter. While it was sufficient to indicate that the people are not satisfied with the republican policies, it may not have been sufficient to stay the course of the republican party toward plutocracy and toward the European idea of a government built upon force rather than upon the consent of the governed, a government relying for its safety upon a large standing army, rather than upon a citizen soldiery. W. J. BRYAN."

HOBART IMPROVES.

Vice President's Condition Is Now Very Hopeful.

A dispatch from Paterson, N. J., says: Vice President Hobart passed a favorable night and the improvement that has been observed for several days continued Sunday. He ate solid food with relish and it was promptly assimilated. With his meals he took milk and between meals was given milk punches.

This is a marked change from his condition ten days ago. At that time he was rapidly sinking and his stomach had refused food of all kinds. For several days he lived on grapes and the juice of grapefruit, but it soon appeared that his stomach was so congested that he could not even take these.

Mr. Hobart now spends most of his time in a reclining position and he sleeps without the aid of opiates. The most painful and alarming feature of his illness has been his attacks of nervousness at the approach of night. These attacks have decreased.

GRANDSON OF TAYLOR

And Nephew of Jefferson Davis Killed In British Army.

A dispatch from Lieutenant C. C. Wood, of the North Lancashire regiment, reported fatally wounded at Kimberley, and whose death was subsequently announced in Saturday evening's cable message, was a grand nephew of Jefferson Davis, president of the southern confederacy, and a great grandson of President Zachary Taylor.

His father is Captain J. Taylor Wood, who has resided in Halifax since the close of war between the north and south.

Young Lieutenant Wood was born in Halifax and educated in the Canadian Royal Military college, at Kingston, Ont. He is the first graduate of that college to die in battle and the first Canadian to fall in the present war in South Africa.

OLD PROPOSITION UP.

Atlanta Is In Fair Way of Getting the Long-Talked-of Depot.

The state of Georgia and city of Atlanta have gone back to the union station plan which was proposed by the railroads a year ago.

At Friday's conference, the state's commission suggested a surface station, with a viaduct on Whitehall and a subway at Pryor street.

When a similar proposition was submitted to the city a year ago, the council rejected it.

Realizing that the roads would not accept the city's conditions, the legislative commission went to work on another line and the suggestion of the surface depot was the result. The state's proposition in brief is as follows:

1. That the road build a union station extending from Loyd to Whitehall.

2. That a viaduct be built over Whitehall and Peachtree, and a subway be constructed at Pryor street. Loyd street to be left as it is.

3. That the state, the city and the roads adjust the damages, if any result to property on Pryor.

4. That the state reserves the right to buy the station from the roads in 1920, or the state will extend the lease on the terminal until 1950 at the same rental, or the state may take the station in 1920 and pay the roads 4 per cent. a year for thirty years on the cost of construction.

The roads could not at once give a definite answer to the state's proposition, but they seemed to be favorably disposed.

FIVE PRIVATES FIRED.

Governor Candler Issues Order For Their Dishonorable Discharge.

Five enlisted men of the Atlanta, Ga., battalion, Fifth regiment, which visited New York on the occasion of the Dewey celebration, have been dishonorably dismissed from the service for complicity in the looting of stores in North Carolina while the soldiers were enroute home.

The men whose names are dropped from the rolls "for the good of the service" are: Privates Christie Berlin Machine Gun battery; J. H. Bowen, Company B; E. S. Hurst, Company C; J. A. Baird, Company C, and James Kelley Company B.

These dismissals are the result of investigation conducted by the court of inquiry ordered by the governor when the disgraceful occurrences were reported to him. A large number of witnesses were examined and every effort was made to fix the responsibility where it properly belonged.

The report of the court was made to the governor several days ago, and the result of the investigation was an order issued by the adjutant general Friday dismissing the above named soldiers from the service.

GAMBLERS WIN POINT.

Birmingham Judge Decides That Pool Selling Is Legal.

At Birmingham, Ala., Friday, Judge Feagin, of the inferior caimiual court, pronounced the act of the general assembly of 1896, which forbids the sale of pools at horse races, as unconstitutional.

The decision was hailed with delight by the horsemen and sports gathered at the state fair grounds, and meant that pools could be sold on the races ad libitum and that a modern race track with all its gambling features is in operation.

The pool-sellers who were arrested by the chief of police on the charge of violating the law were dismissed from custody.

The various church bodies have already taken steps to protest against the races in public mass meetings.

BRISTOW'S FIGURES.

Report of Fourth Postmaster General An Interesting Document.

Fourth Assistant Postmaster General John L. Bristow in his annual report announces that during the past fiscal year 14,604 postmasters were appointed, 13,523 being fourth-class postmasters and the remainder presidential.

There were 2,953 postoffices established and 1,505 discontinued. At the close of the year the total number of postoffices in the country was an even 75,000. The department has discontinued a number of private postoffices which it has been advised were conducted for the sole benefit of some private institutions.

COSTLY FIRE IN MEMPHIS.

Warehouse Burned and Loss Placed At $200,000.

A Memphis special says: The total loss caused by the burning of the Planter's warehouse, the Woods-Chickasaw warehouse and the plant of the Louisiana Molasses company Thursday night is placed at $200,000. The insurance is $130,000.

Savannah Is Open.

The following telegram has been sent out by J. C. Haile, general passenger agent Central of Georgia railway: "Passengers for Savannah no longer required to hold health certificates."

OPERATIVES AGAIN STRIKE.

Weavers and Spinners In Woolen Mills Are Dissatisfied.

The strike of the weavers and spinners at the Stevens Woolen mills, in Franklin, which was begun early in the week, in support of a demand for an advance in wages and which, it was thought, was settled by a compromise is on again. The entire plant is idle and several hundred operatives are out of work.

BOMBARDMENT KILLED MANY

Venezuelan Forces Shell Puerto Cabello.

OVER SIX HUNDRED DEAD

Rebels Refused to Surrender the Town Town Without a Show of Force.

Advices from Puerto Cabello, Venezuela, state that General Paredes, a former commander in the army of ex-President Andrade, who had refused the demand made upon him by General Cipriano Castro and the de facto authorities to surrender the town, even when this was re-enforced by the request of the British, French, American, German and Dutch commanders, surrendered Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, after a terrible battle.

The aspect of the city is one of ruin and devastation, and it is estimated that upward of 650 persons were killed or wounded during the fighting.

Dr. Braisted, of the United States cruiser Detroit, and the other surgeons of the various warships in the harbor, are ministering to the wants of the wounded.

General Ramon Guerra began a land attack upon the town and the position of General Paredes on Friday night.

Desultory fighting continued until Saturday morning about 4 o'clock, and then a fierce struggle ensued. General Paredes made a stubborn defense but General Guerra forced an entrance into the town at 5 o'clock Sunday.

As early as 8 o'clock Sunday morning the fleet began a bombardment but the range was too great, and the firing proved ineffective.

General Paredes held the fort on the hill and Fort Liberator until Sunday morning.

"BEAUVOIR" FOR SALE.

The Davis Home May Be Secured For Confederate Veterans.

At Saturday's session of the convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy at Richmond, Va., the movement of several gentlemen to buy "Beauvoir" and turn it into a home for confederate soldiers and sailors was endorsed. Mrs. Davis offers to sell "Beauvoir" for that purpose for $25,000.

The idea of the promoters of the scheme of the purchase is at present to issue certificates of $1 each and sell them throughout the south. It is probable that General Fitzhugh Lee, General Joseph Wheeler, or some other distinguished Confederate will be asked to accept the position of president of the association, which will be known as the "Southern Home Association for Confederate Veterans," and that vice presidents will be appointed in each state.

BUTCHER BECKER HANGED.

Man Who Imitated Adolph Luetgert Expiates Horrible Crime.

Albert August Becker, the German butcher who, on January 27th last, murdered his wife, Rachael, and afterwards chopped up and boiled the remains in order to dispose of them, was hanged in the county jail at Chicago, Friday.

The case of August Becker in many ways bore a remarkable similarity to that of Adolph Luetgert. Both of the condemned men were butchers, and the motive for the crime was the same in both instances, the desire to get rid of the wife in order to marry a younger woman. The manner of committing the crimes was also much the same, both men, according to the testimony, being extremely brutal in the killing, and both using the same means to dispose of the body, by boiling and burning.

An Indianapolis dispatch says: A secret vote is being taken among the Big Four members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, with a view to deciding on strike.

ROOT IS TOO BUSY.

Cannot Attend Dedication of Illinois Monuments at Chickamauga.

Official notice was received in Chattanooga Friday from Secretary of War Root that he cannot accept the Illinois commissioners' invitation to visit Chickamauga Park November 23 at the time of the dedication of Illinois monuments on account of legal engagements in New York.

He promises, however, to visit and inspect the park in the near future. Commissioner of Pensions Evans has accepted an invitation to attend the dedication and probably Adjutant General Corbin will also be present.

OFFICIAL ESTIMATE

Of the Cotton Crop As Made By the Agricultural Department At Washington.

A Washington dispatch says: The monthly report of the statistician of the department of agriculture will state that the most thorough investigation of the cotton situation that has been made since 1895 has just been completed. Special agents in the Washington office have visited all the prominent points in the cotton belt, investigating both acreage and production.

Pending the receipt of the final reports as to picking, due December 1, no detailed statement will be issued, but this statistician states that on the basis of the highest estimate of the area under cultivation for which the department can find any warrant 23,500,000 acres. the crop cannot exceed 9,500,000 bales. This estimate is based on the most complete and trustworthy information.

UNIFORM TEXT BOOKS

The Provision of a Bill Passed In the Georgia Senate.

The Georgia senate by a unanimous vote Friday adopted a bill calling for the adoption in the state of a uniform system of textbooks for use in the common schools of Georgia. The bill is one of the most important that has come up for consideration during the present session of the legislature.

Under the provisions of the bill, which becomes effective on the first day of January, 1902, a commission, to be technically known as the Georgia book commission, is to be created, to be composed of the members of the state board of education and five other citizens of the state, and who shall serve without compensation for a period of five years.

The duty of the members of the commission shall be to diligently inquire into the needs of the common school system as to text-books and to determine, after a thorough examination of books submitted by publishers, those best suited to common school use.

After it has been decided which text-books may be successfully introduced and used in the schools of the state the commission shall notify publishers and request competitive bids.

The adoption for the state will be awarded to the publishers submitting the lowest prices for the various books desired, the right being reserved to the commission to reject any and all bids in case they should indicate a combination to prevent the securing of books at a low rate.

All contracts made with publishers will remain in force for five years, and provision is made that no existing contracts by counties, extending beyond January 1, 1902, shall be interfered with, but no new contracts shall be entered into after the passage of the bill.

The bill also provides that the publishers of the books adopted for use in the common schools of Georgia shall be required to execute a bond of $50,000, to be approved by the governor, as a guarantee of the faithful carrying out of the contract.

TO HONOR THEIR TUTOR.

Former Students of Professor Moore Will Erect Memorial.

At a recent meeting in Atlanta, Ga., of some of the former students of Moore's Business college, an institution in that city over which the late Professor B. F. Moore presided, it was unanimously decided to erect a memorial shaft in his honor in Atlanta.

There are a large number of old students of Professor Moore in the south, and these will be requested to subscribe to a fund for the purpose of erecting a shaft in honor of their former teacher.

At the meeting a committee, composed of F. J. Cooledge, chairman; B. F. Bennett, Jr., treasurer; John F. Bates, secretary, and others, were appointed to solicit the fund.

Professor Moore was one of the best known educators in the entire south. He had many students from all over the country, and many of them have since made great successes in the business world. An effort will be made to reach all and give them an opportunity to subscribe to the fund. Those desiring to contribute can remit to B. F. Bennett, Jr., in care of Atlanta Journal.

MINE TROUBLES THREATENED.

Affairs In Illinois Coal Fields Far From Being Settled.

The Chicago Record of Friday the following:

The situation in the coal mining fields in the southern and western section of Illinois has taken a serious turn, and it is said that many of the mines may be tied up within the next forty-eight hours as a result of the continued action of operators in sending coal to points west and southwest, where the miners are on strike.

HANNA TO ISSUE CALL

For Meeting of Republican National Committee In Washington.

Senator Mark Hanna states that a call will be issued within a few days for the meeting of the national Republican committee at Washington. The meeting will probably be held on December 13 or 14, although the exact date will not be decided upon for some days. The committee at this meeting will choose the date and place for holding the next national convention.

There are two vacancies on the committee and these will be filled.

TROOPS LANDED UNDER VOLLEYS

Filipinos Made Desperate But Useless Resistance.

OUR GUNBOATS DO SERVICE

Landing Was Made At San Fabian--Rebels Fled.

A special of Friday from Manila says: The landing of the American troops at San Fabian last Tuesday was the most spectacular affair of its kind since General Shafter's disembarkation at Dalquiri. The co-operation of the troops and the navy was complete. The gunboats maintained a terrific bombardment for an hour, while the troops rushed waist deep through the surf, under a heavy but badly aimed fire from the insurgent trenches, and charged right and left, pouring volley after volley at the fleeing rebels.

Forty Filipinos were captured, mostly non-commissioned officers. Several insurgent dead and five wounded were found in a building which had suffered considerably from the bombardment. The town was well fortified. The sand dunes were riveted with bamboo twenty feet thick, which afforded a fine cover.

When the transports arrived in the gulf they found the gunboats Princeton, Bennington and others waiting. After consultation with General Wheaton, Commander Knox, of the Princeton, and Commander Sherman of the Bennington, anchored on the shallow, two miles off shore. The gunboats formed a line inside, the Helena, Callao and Manila close in shore. With the first gun of the bombardment the small boats were filled rapidly, without confusion, by Major Cronite's battalion of the Twenty-third infantry and Captain Buck's battalion of the Thirteenth infantry.

While the lines of boats moved shoreward the gunboats poured the full force of their batteries into the trenches, soon forcing the insurgents to flee through the burrows dug back of the trenches. About 200 men held their places until the keels of the boats grated on the shore, when their Mauser bullets commenced to sing overhead.

The battalions formed in good order. Captain Buck, with six pieces, and Patton's companies pursued the insurgents on the left into the bamboo thickets. On the right was a frail foot bridge across the river, leading to the town, General Wheaton, personally commanding, ordered a charge across the bridge, and Captain Powell and his staff led Coleman's and Elliott's companies of the Thirteenth and Shields's company of the Twenty-third, who behaved splendidly under their first fire, into the town, which was found to be nearly deserted, except by the aged and some Spaniards who had hidden in the buffalo wallows, and who came shouting delightedly toward the Americans.

Two companies of the Twenty-third had a skirmish along the Dagupan road with retreating Filipinos.

Major Shields, of the staff, with his command, captured several insurgents.

The troops camped in the rain during the night and in the morning General Wheaton established his headquarters in a church, quartered his men in the house and sent the captured Filipinos beyond the outposts with orders not to return.

The inhabitants describe the roads as practically impassable, and say they believe Aguinaldo has secreted a yacht in the river Longapo, near Subig, for use in his flight when he finds his capture is inevitable.

Wednesday was devoted to reconnoissances. Major Logan went northward to Santo Tomas and burned the Filipino's barracks. Captain Buck's Thirteenth went to San Jocinto and disposed of small bands. Marsh's Twenty-third went northward to Magdalen, on the Dagupan road, and had several sharp fights with small parties. They killed eight men, brought in twenty prisoners and had five men wounded.

The Santo Tomas road seems to be the only possible means of retreat for a large body north from Tarlac and General Wheaton commands it. The insurgents are going to re-enforce Tarlac. The battleship Oregon arrived Friday from Hong Kong.

TOOK "FRENCH LEAVE."

Two Hundred Soldiers Desert at Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont.

A special from Burlington, Vt., says: Officers of the Forty-third infantry, at Fort Ethan Allen, were pertured Saturday morning when they found that a large part of the regiment had taken "French leave." The men were paid Friday and those contemplating desertion were waiting for the money.

The officers admit that 120 privates and non-commissioned officers ran away Saturday night and the number that deserted in the last four weeks will swell the list to 200.

FLOUR FOR ENGLAND.

Big Shipload of Export Stuff Goes From New Orleans.

The British steamship Meridian, Captain Wilson, was cleared at New Orleans Saturday for London with the largest cargo of flour in sacks ever carried out of that port or any other port in the United States, comprising 65,000 140-pound sacks and 1,000 280-pound sacks. The Meridian has also as cargo 24,000 bushels of wheat, a large lot of lumber and cotton seed products.

AGUINALDO IS SURROUNDED

The Rebel Leader and His Army Said to be Bottled Up.

INSURGENTS ARE AFRAID OF AMERICANS

And Run When They Hear the Terrible Yell of Their Opponents. Aguinaldo's Secretary Captured--Charleston Wrecked.

MANILA.—General Young is supposed to have reached San Nicolas, about thirty miles east of Dagupan, but his wagons are far behind.

Colonel Hayes has captured Aguinaldo's secretary, and Major Coleman is in Carranglan, with an escort of 175 Bolomen on his way to the province of Nueva Visaya.

The son of General Llaneras and his family are prisoners. The General barely escaped.

The correspondent of the Associated Press with General Young telegraphs from San Jose that Aguinaldo did not escape to the northeast. He and his army, the correspondent adds, are surrounded. His last orders to the Filipino commander at San Jose were to hold San Jose and Carranglan at all costs.

The recent encounters were too one-sided to be called fights. The insurgents are mortally afraid of the Americans, however strong their position. They make but brief and feeble resistance, and run when the terrible American yell reaches their ears, whereupon the Americans pursue them and slay many.

The moral effect of the news that 60,000 troops are on their way here has been unquestionably great.

The insurgents are suffering more from disease than are Americans, owing to poor food, lack of medicine and filthy hospitals, with the result that there is great mortality among them.

General Lawton has intercepted a telegram from a Filipino captain to a Filipino general: "How can you blame me for retreating when only two-thirds of my company were able to fight?"

THE CHARLESTON WRECKED.

All Those on Board of the Cruiser Were Saved.

A Tuesday's special from Manila says: The United States cruiser Charleston, which has been patrolling the northern coast of Luzon, was wrecked on a reef of the northwest coast Tuesday, November 7. All on board were saved.

The cruiser, which was built in San Francisco in 1888, had a displacement of 3,370 tons, was 317 feet 7 inches in length, 46 feet 2 inches in beam and 21 feet 8 inches in draught. She was of steel, having two propellers, one funnel and two masts with military tops.

She had the following armament: Two 8-inch guns, six 6-inch guns, four 6-pounders, two 3-pounders, six 1-pounders, two machine guns and one light gun, with four torpedo tubes. She had a complement of thirty-six men.

The Charleston has been in Asiatic waters more than a year. She was one of the first vessels to be sent to Manila after the destruction of the Spanish fleet by Admiral Dewey, the navy department utilizing her for the purpose of sending ammunition and other supplies for the Asiatic squadron.

A DOUBLE MURDER.

Charles Pearman Fires the Contents of a Shot Gun Into a Family.

A special from Carterville, Mo., says:

"Meagre details have been received here of a tragedy below Cottonwood Point, twelve miles from here at a levee camp.

"Charles Pearman had for some reasom become angry with a family named Poe and at night he came to Poe's tent with a double-barreled shot gun and fired both barrels into the tent, striking and dangerously wounding several out of the family of nine. The latest report says one small child was killed instantly, one has since died and the mother is not expected to live. Pearman was captured."

New Ice Company for Huntsville.

A new ice company, with a capital of $25,000, has decided to establish a plant in Huntsville, and also operate a mineral water department. The industry was secured through the chamber of commerce, which is also negotiating for the establishment of a large brewery by Illinois capitalists.

THE CHRONICLE

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana Ala., as second class matter.

REYNOLDS ON JOHNSTON AND PLOWMAN.

The Advertiser of Tuesday contains a lengthy statement from Capt. H. C. Reynolds concerning a great many things in connection with the appointment of the land commissioners and the division of the lands granted by Congress to the Montevallo and Tuskegee schools. This statement is too lengthy for our space, and we could not give an intelligent synopsis. Most of our readers will see it in the daily papers, and they should read it carefully.

Captain Reynolds charges in the first place that Governor Johnston, desiring to appoint W. W. Thompson, after promising to appoint Captain Plowman, offered the latter the positions of bank examiner and examiner of public accounts, respectively, and finally offered him $500 in money to get out of the way.

In the second place Mr. Reynolds charges that Captain Plowman was involved in a scheme to get the school lands at a low price, and that he offered W. B. Reynolds $20,000 to withhold a higher bid.

Captain Reynolds goes into detailed circumstances to show the truth of his charges, which can only be doubted by doubting his word entirely. The conclusions drawn from his statement are that Governor Johnston used his power of appointment to make political friends, and in order to do so offered an actual bribe to one who stood in his way; that Captain Plowman attempted to use his official position to enrich himself off these lands, and offered a money consideration to keep off interference with his plans; that other officials have used their positions of trust for personal gain. It shows a disgusting lot of trading, trickery and treachery in high places, and comes at a time when the truth is needed. Captain Reynolds is a truthful man, and he makes his charges boldly and to the point. They are charges that can not be disproved by subterfuge, but only by impeaching the veracity of the author. If not disproved Governor Johnston stands convicted of bribery pure and simple, and of perverting his office to political gain; Captain Plowman will be shown as a traitor to a most sacred trust, and of converting that trust to his financial profit.

Yesterday statements were given out by Governor Johnston, Captain Plowman and Mr. Pinckard. The Governor merely dismisses the charges against himself by saying, "They are not true." Captain Plowman denies that he offered any money consideration to W. B. Reynolds, and attempts to construe the Governor's offer to him into a trivial assertion, but does not deny that he was offered the other places. Mr. Pinckard confirms what Reynolds says as to his connection with the land deal. None of the cards disprove Reynold's charges, and until they are disproven the parties must rest under the implication put upon them. The question of veracity between Captain Plowman and W. B. Reynolds will doubtless be settled by proof. The Governor can not dismiss the charge of bribery; he must disprove it or rest under it.

WE are sorry that Morgan challenged Johnston to a joint debate. It will be like shooting a snowbird with a cannon.

MORGAN never asked a vote in all his career: he always got them on his merit. It seems that Johnston wants them bad enough to pay for them in cold cash.

IT seems that while Morgan has been at work for his people Johnston has been playing politics in the gubernatorial back room, offering bribery with both offices and money to help him reach his goal.

THE Governor would treat Reynold's charges with silent contempt. A great many good Democrats will treat the Governor's candidacy for the Senate the same way, though it may not be quite so silent.

GOVERNOR Johnston has formally announced his candidacy for the United States Senate. Nobody is surprised, but we are all glad to see him come out from under cover. From now on the race will be lively.

WHEN the grand moguls of the Populist party have disbanded its organization and turned over its effects to Johnston, then they will learn to their sorrow that these same moguls have been playing them for suckers.

A JOINT discussion will be held at Athens next Saturday between Senator Morgan and Governor Johnston, now opposing candidates for the Senate. This is the proper way to present their claims, so that the people may judge of their merits by hearing them. Morgan will confine himself to national issues involved, unless Johnston forces other issues. If he does he will find the old man amply able to defend himself.

HERE is one of the differences between Morgan and Johnston: Morgan refused a $25,000 retainer from C. P. Huntington because it might interfere with his duty to his people; Johnston tried to buy off a man with position and money because that man was interfering with his chances of making some votes of holdover senators. We prefer to be represented by the man whose political character is above reproach.

FOR FUTURE REFERENCE.

The Advocate, a Populist paper published in Shelby County, speaks as if it would stay in the middle of the road in 1900. We knew that the Shelby County boys had good nerve, but the efforts of the Johnston crowd to swallow up the Populites have been so great that we could not make a good guess as to what they would do. Now The Advocate talks rather sassy and to judge from what it says Johnston will have to enlarge his throat before swallowing the Populites of Shelby County.—Birmingham Times.

In its last guess The Times is nearly correct. A large element of the Populist party in this county will neither support fusion with the Republicans nor be swallowed by the Johnston whale. But The Times is mistaken in classing The Advocate with that element. The Populist organ in this county has always supported fusion, and as its proprietor has been the recipient of favors at the hands of the Governor that paper will of course transfer itself to the service of Johnston in any sort of scheme that may be proposed by him and his Populist allies in this county, who control The Advocate.

We merely make this statement for the information of The Times. When the deal now on tapis comes to light it will be found that the combination will be composed of Johnston's few Democratic followers, the Longshore element of the Populists (including The Advocate), and the Aldrich wing of the Republicans. The rank and file of the Populist party will stand aloof, the self-respecting Republicans will do likewise, and the attempted captors of the Democratic machinery will find themselves likened unto a mule—without pride of ancestry or hope of posterity. Really, The Times ought to know The Advocate better than to imagine that the latter will keep in the middle of the road. It will support everything that is undemocratic from the nominees of a negro convention to the red-head rooster from Jefferson.

WE hardly think that a man who tries to buy himself out of a political muddle is fit to fill the place of a man who had too much honor to accept a handsome retainer from a large corporation.

WE publish elsewhere the names of those who went through the mill of the State pension board and have warrants in the hands of the probate judge. Judging from results the State board shut their eyes and drew the lucky ones. In many instances those who were rejected are most worthy, and on their application there is nothing to indicate the cause of rejection. If the next legislature has no greater amount of practical sense than the last it ought to hire some country clodhopper to arrange the detailed workings of its laws.

ROUNDLAP BALE TESTED.

Georgia Farmer Gets $1.25 More for the Roundlap Bale.

Mr. James H. Camp, one of the most successful farmers of Floyd County, Ga., asked recently by a reporter of the Rome Georgian what he thought of the American Cotton Company's Roundlap bale, said: "The other day I put it to the severest test possible. I took cotton to Arnold's (square bale) gin in North Rome and the same day I carried some of the same lot of cotton to Hancock's Roundlap gin in Rome. I sold both lots of cotton in Rome the same day and after every item of expense was charged against each I cleared $1.25 a bale more on the Roundlap cotton."

The Eminent Kidney and Bladder Specialist.

The Discoverer of Swamp-Root at Work in His Laboratory.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Then the richness of the blood—the albumen—leaks out and the sufferer has Bright's Disease, the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the new discovery is the true specific for kidney, bladder and urinary troubles. It has cured thousands of apparently hopeless cases, after all other efforts have failed. At druggists in fifty-cent and dollar sizes. A sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling about Swamp-Root and its wonderful cures. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. and mention this paper.

THE CLOVEN HOOF

Showing Itself in the Populist Ranks.

EVIDENT ATTEMPT TO BETRAY

The Party into the Hands of Governor Johnston.

A number of Populist leaders and officeholders held a conference in Birmingham the other day, at which a second conference was called. The following from the Montgomery correspondent of the Age-Herald bears on the object of these meetings:

The announcement in the Age-Herald this morning that the Populists of the State are to hold a conference in Birmingham on the 24th of the present month has caused a great deal of comment and speculation in Montgomery to-day. The general opinion here is that this conference will endeavor to disband the Populist party in Alabama by the passage of resolutions advising the members of the party to go into the Democratic primaries and endeavor wherever possible to capture the Democratic machinery.

Capt. Frank Baltzell, one of the leading members of the party in Alabama, and formerly editor of the Alliance Herald, was seen by a representative of the Age-Herald this morning, and he was very free in expressing his opinion of the meeting. Captain Baltzell said that he knew nothing of the conference, and when shown a list of the names signed to the resolutions passed at the informal meeting held in Birmingham yesterday said that none save the followers of Governor Johnston had been invited to attend the conference. He said that it was nothing more than an effort to place the party in position where it could be used by Governor Johnston, and that the men who were present yesterday were only officeholders, and were from counties where it was thought that the Democratic machinery could be captured in a primary. He was severe in his arraignment of those present, and said that they could not carry the rank and file of the party with them.

Captain Baltzell's opinion is very generally accepted here as the true theory. It is known that Judge Gaston, Judge Adams, Representative Reynolds and others of those present yesterday are taken into the Governor's council and are among his chief advisers.

This county was represented by Judge Longshore and Senator Deans, who are recognized here as leaders of the fusion faction of the Populist party and who are also known to be in close touch with Johnston.

A story has come to light here that indicates the truth of Mr. Baltzell's conjecture set out above. This story is to the effect that after the death of Sheriff Vest certain Populist leaders in this county made an agreement with Governor Johnston that if he would appoint Captain Walthall sheriff with the understanding that H. M. Norris was to be his deputy, these leaders would secure control of the Populist organization and use it in Johnston's interest. The latter carried out his part of the agreement, ignoring the recommendation of the Democratic committee and prominent members of his party. His appointee made Norris deputy, and that side of the deal was effected. But when it came to the delivery of the goods, a little slip was made.

A meeting of the Populist committee was held, and Johnston men went in to perform their contract. On the day of the meeting somebody gave the game away, and when it came to a show-down the Johnston players only held one pair, while the others had all the balance of the deck. The committee is now in the hands of the middle-of-the-roaders, who will neither support Johnston nor agree to a continuation of fusion with the Republicans for county officers.

It seems that not daunted by their failure to accomplish the destruction of their party in this county, the leaders of this movement have joined with others in attempt to force a disorganization of the party in the State. If they can succeed in doing this they hope to force the disorganization in this county. But the straight Populists say that they will not be drawn into such a scheme. They have already been led into voting for the nominees of negro conventions and sacrifice of their principles, and that they will not be fooled again.

The Angels Took Her.

Last Friday morning little Ethel DuBose fell asleep to wake in heaven. She had been ill for several weeks, and passed out of much suffering into the sweet peace that follows the close of an innocent young life. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence DuBose, and was about 5 years old. Sympathy is cold comfort to the sorrowing parents, but such as it is we extend to them. It is but the fading of a pretty flower that after the frost of death will spring up a strong and healthy plant in the upper garden, where to the swaying of the zephyrs fanned by angels' wings it will beckon the others to come after life's trials shall be over.

The following resolutions were passed by the Sunday school of which little Ethel was a bright member:

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, to take from our Sunday school and circle one of our sweetest and brightest girls, little Ethel DuBose, and to transplant her as a flower in the garden of paradise above: therefore,

Resolved, That while we grieve on account of our loss, yet we bow in meek submission to His divine will and this dispensation of His providence, knowing that "He doeth all things well."

Resolved 2d, That we endeavor to imitate the bright example of cheerfulness and sunshine left us by this sweet child, so that when we come to die we too may not fear, but may enter the portals of death as sinking into a sweet sleep.

Resolved 3d, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the father, mother and little sisters of sweet little Ethel.

Resolved 4th, That a copy of these resolutions be sent the family of the deceased, and a copy to THE CHRONICLE for publication.

The honor roll for the public school published elsewhere contains the names of fifty-nine pupils, as against forty-one for the first month. One good feature of it is that certain pupils in one grade whose names were to be found in the reports throughout the last year are securing the same percentage this session. The school is making a good name for itself and is growing in popular esteem all the time.

This is not the only Columbiana in the universe, though a great many people are prone to the belief that it is. A letter was received by us Tuesday which had been sent to Columbiana, S. C., and received there. As THE CHRONICLE has no branch office or known relatives there the letter was forwarded to this place. There are at least a half dozen Shelby Counties in the United States, but this is the first instance where a town of similar name as this city has come to our notice.

Iron ore has been found in large quantities at Montevallo, and men are at work bringing it to the surface. If the quality and quantity of ore warrant it, a mine will be established and a regular force put to work. Shelby County has already demonstrated that it is one of the best counties in the State for the production of iron and coal of a superior grade, and limestone exists in abundance. When others see us as we don't happen to see ourselves just now and go to work on the county's resources, it will have as good a name as the State in which it is located.

For driving out dull, bilious feeling, strengthening the appetite and increasing the capacity of the body for work, Prickly Ash Bitters is a good remedy. Sold by Drs. Williams Bros.

Harpersville.

Dr. Teague is in town.

Cholera is playing havoc with hogs.

Cotton picking will soon be over with.

Thomas Borum, of Talladega County, visited his father's family last week.

Harpersville is well represented at the fair this week.

Earl Martin returned home from the Nashville Business College last week, having completed his course.

Quite a number of the Vincent people attended preaching here Sunday.

These beautiful nights now causes the fox hunters to be out almost every night, and occasionally they catch one.

Rev. O. P. Bentley, the newly-elected pastor of the Baptist church, preached here Saturday and Sunday last. He made a very favorable impression on all present as a preacher and christian gentleman, and we hope that much good will be accomplished by his work. His time of preaching will be on the first Saturday and Sunday in each month.

Judge Russell was called to Pratt City by telegram last week to see his daughter, Mrs. John Gardner, who was very sick, and who died Saturday. She was buried here Monday, Dr. Teague conducting the burial services. To the bereaved ones we extend our sympathy.

Well, "Sly" did come to Birmingham and they had a powerful big time on his day, so the Birmingham papers say, and if you wont call me an old fogy I will say that there was enough money spent foolishly during his time to buy every widow woman in Shelby County a barrel of flour and every orphan boy a suit of clothes and then have hundreds left.

Our beat has a man who is living on the same farm that he lived on 58 years ago; was married in 1859 and has 11 children. Ten of them are grown and married. Every one was born within one mile of the same place; nine of the ten were married within one mile of where they were born. He has 27 grandchildren, and has never lost a child or grandchild after it got large enough to talk. He is an opposer of the stock law, believes in free grass, free water, free people and a free country, and is also one of our best Democrats and wants Bryan elected president and Joe Wheeler vice president. He wants Shelby County to buy homes near the courthouse for the commissioners, so their mileage may be saved to the county, and then they could be close to their work when they meet to get their pay and tax the people.

Below we give the honor roll of Harpersville Free School:

Stedham Prince, Paul Rowe, Hugh Butler, Annie May Walthall, Ola Bird, Edward Jones, Willie Caldwell, Hansel Caldwell, Lizzie Weathers, Benjamin Weathers, Delia Bowman, Solon Everette McGraw, Charles Florey, Clifton Borum, W. W. Wheeler.

Ten of these are "little tots." This means perfect in recitations and deportment. Professor Spinks and his assistant, Miss Mattie Kidd, are doing good and faithful work.

We wish to correct a mistake we made in our last communication. We stated that W. J. Wheeler was driving Uncle Jake's ox team to Jackson's saw mill. He is foreman on the lumber run.

J. W. Hall has employed Bloomer Miner to carry the mail for him, and he can now be found between the plow handles.

We understand that Joe Blackerby, of Fourmile, contemplates moving near our little town in the near future.

Advice to Consumptives

There are three great remedies that every person with weak lungs, or with consumption itself, should understand.

These remedies will cure about every case in its first stages; and many of those more advanced. It is only the most advanced that are hopeless. Even these are wonderfully relieved and life itself greatly prolonged.

What are these remedies? Fresh air, proper food and

of Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. Be afraid of draughts but not of fresh air. Eat nutritious food and drink plenty of milk. Do not forget that Scott's Emulsion is the oldest, the most thoroughly tested and the highest endorsed of all remedies for weak throats, weak lungs and consumption in all its stages.

They Should Know it.

Many women suffer untold agony and misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood. They have been led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for the many ills that beset womankind.

Neuralgia, nervousness, headache, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, rheumatism, a dragging pain or dull ache in the back, weakness or bearing-down sensation, profuse or scanty supply of urine with strong odor, frequent desire to pass it with scalding or burning sensation, sediment in it after standing in bottle or common glass for 24 hours are signs of kidney and bladder trouble.

The above symptoms are often attributed by the patient herself or by her physician to female weakness or womb trouble. Hence, so many fail to obtain relief, because they are treating, not the disease itself, but a reflection of the primary cause, which is kidney trouble.

In fact, women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same remedy.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is the great discovery of the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is easy to get at any drug store for 50 cents or $1.

To prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and book telling all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Kindly mention THE CHRONICLE, and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

A PLEA FOR THE BIRDS.

By Alfred Austin, Poet Laureate of England.

I heard the skylark's heavenward note,
The throstle greet the day,
And watched the white gulls wheel and float
About the bright blue bay;
The kinglet flicker round the rose,
The woodpecker alight
A moment where the woodbine blows,
Then ripple out of sight.

And then another sight I saw,
Tossed plumage, crimson streak,
The shattered wing, the crippled claw,
Mute breast and drooping beak;
And round this havoc, creatures fair,
Not sad, but eager now
With the dead spoil to deck their hair
And ornament their brow.

O, tender maiden, trustful wife,
Nurtured in bliss and ease,
The selfsame heaven that lent you life,
Gave life no less to these.
And when, 'mid wintry frost and rime
To Yule-log hearth you cling,
Remember, in the sweet springtime,
The birds again will sing.

They with their lays your love will thank,
If you will only spare,
And once again to willowy bank
The kingfisher repair.
O, let the tern complete the nest
Its tenderness begun,
And oriole plume and egret crest,
Gleam, sacred, in the sun!

LOVE'S STRATAGEM.

I.

IT was the old hackneyed story of two young creatures, secure in their mutual love, going forth hand in hand to fight the grim, hard world. And they had been worsted—that was all! As the girl stared into the embers, thoughts of what might have been flooded her brain; and then her love for the man seeking his bread outside flamed up afresh.

A low knock on the door brought her wandering thoughts back with a rush to the sordid present.

The door opened and a tired looking woman came in with a deprecating manner.

"I'm sorry to trouble you, my dear," she began, "but the water rate is over-due, and—and—could you let me have a little money?"

It was a strange and apologetic speech from a landlady to her debtor, but it was Mrs. Jones' way. Her lodgers loved her for many an act of unselfish kindness.

"I'm so sorry, Mrs. Jones," said the girl, hesitatingly, for she was not yet inured to poverty and its necessities, "but my husband is trying even now to get some money. The paper he works for has taken his drawings, but they will not pay. I wish I had something to give you; but unless he brings back his money we shall not know where to get to-morrow's dinner from."

Mrs. Jones stared in surprise.

"What! no dinner? My poor dear! Why, surely you weren't going to go without? Lord love you, why didn't you tell me before? Why, there is Mr. Carstairs coming up now. I'm sure that's his step. Don't tell him I came for the rent, but let it bide—let it bide."

And so she bustled off.

With her heart beating wildly, Ellen Carstairs went to the door and stood watching for her husband. He came slowly up the dark, carpetless stairs, and, hearing him sigh and pant as he walked, her hopes fell to zero. With the tact of her sex she crept back into the room.

"Well, my darling, how have you got on?" she cried, coming to his side as he entered, and kissing him. "Why, how hot and burning you are! Are you ill, darling?" she asked, anxiously.

"Don't light the candle," he said, huskily. "I think I'm going to be bad, little one. I'll go to bed now, if you don't mind."

"And the money, George?—did the editor pay?" Do what she would, she couldn't keep the griping anxiety from her tones.

"No; they told me to call again, after the holidays. I said I wanted the money, and the clerk showed me the door. After the holidays—ha, ha, ha!"

He shook with ghastly merriment while steadying himself by the door.

Quickly she lit a candle and half led, half carried him into the tiny bedroom.

"Did you have any food to-day, George—tell me?"

He looked at her with the smile of delirium still on his face and said:

"But I want the money, sir; the pictures were published two months ago, and we owe for rent and for food. Can not you pay me? What? After the holidays! Why, heaven! we may be starved before then. I tell you I haven't touched food to-day. Curse you for a thief!"

The voice died away into a husky whisper. Biting her lips to keep down her tears she undressed him, and with gentle force pushed him into bed.

Then she opened the door and ran downstairs to Mrs. Jones' room.

"Well, my dear!" the landlady exclaimed. Then, catching sight of the tear-stained face she laid down her work. "What's the matter? Tell me at once!"

"He's ill, Mrs. Jones, and talking so dreadfully. Do come up?" To her in her dire distress the landlady seemed a tower of strength, and she sighed with relief as the good woman heavily began to mount the long flight of stairs. "It is good of you—it is good of you," she said brokenly.

Mrs. Jones having lit the candle, looked down at the pinched, wan face lying on the pillow and put her hand on the unconscious man's chest. "Lord save us!" she muttered; "he's nought but skin and bone—starved, I expect!"

Then she led the way to the front room and sat down.

"I ain't more curious than most, my dear," she began; "but it don't need half an eye to see that you and the poor thing yonder weren't born to live in Redman's Row, Whitechapel. Who are you, and where do you come from, eh?"

The shrewd, kindly bead-like eyes seemed to read the girl's very soul, and she said half-defiantly:

"My father's name is Chesham—Lord Chesham—and he lives in Grosvenor Square. What then?"

Mrs. Jones felt a sense of exultation that she actually had a lodger—nay, a debtor—amongst the highest in the land. Yet was her voice not one whit less stern.

"And why are you here, then?"

"Oh, Mrs. Jones, don't speak unkindly to me, for I'm miserable enough already! My husband and I met at a soiree, and—and I don't quite know how it happened, but we met several times after that. Then—it was all my fault—I showed him that I loved him, and I tried to get my father's consent to our marriage. He wouldn't hear of it, and so——" The voice suddenly broke into a deep sob.

"And so you ran away. Well, now, put on your hat and things, and ask your father for help."

"And do you think I'd go back and ask for help? Never!"

"For yourself, no," said the landlady; "but for him, if you love him, yes. Come, don't hesitate; go and put your pride behind you. It's for him to be hard, not you. Go! I'll see to this poor, half-starved chap. Go, and bring back a doctor and help with you."

With extraordinary energy she helped the still undecided wife into her jacket, and almost hustled her downstairs.

"See your father if you have to stay till to-morrow, and trust me to nurse your husband. Law, I've had one of my own, and so I know." The deceased Jones' very existence was somewhat apocryphal, and in spite of her distress Ellen Carstairs was smiling as the front door slammed behind her.

At length, worn out with fatigue, she stood in front of her old home. The constable looked intently at her as she passed and wondered whether he ought to move her on or not. Then, with a flush of shame, she knocked at the servants' door and felt nervously at her heavy veil.

"Can I see Mrs. Edwards?" she asked timidly, of a servant.

"She's busy now. What name shall I say?" was the question, and like a flash the baby name her old nurse had given her came to her memory.

"Say Mrs. 'Toddles' wants to see her."

The servant grinned broadly and left her standing at the door for what seemed a long, long time.

"You're to come up to the housekeeper's room please, mum." The words recalled her to herself, for she was leaning tired out against the wall, and she stumbled blindly through the servants' quarters.

"My honey! My bonnie bairn!" cried the housekeeper, as she took the exhausted woman into her arms. "Why haven't you been here before? How is it with you?"

Pitifully she noticed the faded jacket and the haggard face of her young mistress.

"Oh, nurse, my husband is ill! And, nurse, we are nearly starving, and——"

But Mrs. Edwards had gone, and, with shaking hands, was trying to hurry on the preparation of some food.

"And my father, nurse—do you think he'll forgive me?"

"He's very bitter against you both—mainly because you haven't written to him or asked him to take you back again. He is out to dinner to-night, but is coming home at 11 o'clock."

And it was now barely 9, and her husband was lying needing the food so bountifully spread on the tray beside her.

To divert her attention Mrs. Edwards said:

"Come and look at your old room, my dear—you'll find nothing moved, for such was your father's wish. Come, now, dry your eyes, and hope for the best."

And so Ellen Carstairs walked once more in her father's house and contrasted its luxury and wealth with her own shabby garret.

"Nurse, where's my statue gone?" she suddenly asked, pointing to an empty pedestal at the head of the main staircase.

It had been a whim of Lord Chesham's to have his daughter's form sculptured by a great artist, and, clad in flowing Grecian robes, with a lamp in its hand, the statue had been universally admired for its beauty and its grace of outline.

"Yes," replied the woman. "It was taken down when you went away. Such a pity, too, I thought, for I hoped it would have softened him after a awhile."

But the girl was not listening. She was thinking of a daring scheme by which to play for her husband and herself.

"Nurse, where are those clothes I wore for that statue? They were in my wardrobe."

Mrs. Edwards turned suddenly round.

"You don't mean to say——" she began.

"Yes, I do mean to dress up as the statue, and trust to God for the rest. Quick! let me have the clothes and keep the servants away when my father comes back."

Trembling with their eagerness the two women hurried upstairs and entered the bedroom. Ellen's eyes filled with tears as she noticed her belongings just as she had left them.

In a few minutes she stood looking like a vision from another world, so unearthly was the effect of her pallor. Then, as the hour drew near for Lord Chesham's return she moved quickly down the stairs and stood on the marble pedestal, imitating in every way, save for the lamp, the disgraced statue.

The house was quite still, and the loud, sonorous ticking of the great hall clock was the only sound that could be heard.

Then there was a noise as of wheels, and the bell rang. A flunkey, magnificent in plush and silk, flung open the door, and the master of the house came in.

He walked to the library, and as he crossed the hall, from sheer force of habit, he looked up the stairway.

"Heavens!" he muttered, frowning, "who has dared to put that statue back?"

The light was shining brilliantly on the motionless figure as he stared up at it with a flood of varying emotions surging across his brain.

As he gazed to his amazement tears began to trickle down the cheeks of the statue. Then he understood, and slowly and half-unwillingly he walked up the stairs.

Still no movement of the figure until he came quite close and held out his arms. She crept into their encircling embrace and clung to him as though fearful to once more lose him.

The Rubicon was passed, and no word of forgiveness or reproach ever passed his lips; only he felt a great thankfulness for her return.

"And where is he?" he whispered, still holding her tight.

"Starving and ill, father. Quick! Come to him ere he dies!" she panted, looking up at him with her mother's eyes.

"Come downstairs, Helen, child. We will go to him at once."

Together they walked down the stairs and he struck a gong. The footman who came stared in affright at the girl in her long draperies.

"Telephone to the stable to send up my carriage at once—do you hear, at once!" The man vanished.

"Where to, sir?" asked the footman, when the father and daughter were in the carriage.

"Redman's Row, Whitechapel, High street," said Lord Chesham.

"You could have knocked me down with a blooming feather," said the man to the coachman, as they drove away.

The thundering knock at the door of No. 27 brought Mrs. Jones trembling to the door. In silent ecstasy she saw, as she afterward declared, "a real live lord, blue ribbon and all," walk up her bare staircase, while Mrs. Carstairs ran on ahead as though all her fatigue had gone.

Lord Chesham said nothing as he saw the tiny rooms, but his hawklike vision was strangely blurred for a moment.

"I've given him some hot soup, mum," wheezed Mrs. Jones, "and he's quite sensible now."

And so he was; for they found Carstairs weak, it is true, but in his right mind.

"Wrap him up in the blankets," the old man said, and I'll send up John to carry him down."

"But, father——" she began.

"Don't talk to me, Ellen. I'm going to take him home—eh, Carstairs?"

When the invalid was safely ensconced in the carriage with his wife, Lord Chesham spoke a few words to Mrs. Jones.

"I'm a man of few words, madame," he began, "but I wish to tell you that I am your debtor for your kindness to my daughter. Your future will be my charge, and to the end of my life I shall thank you for your consideration to a couple of——"

"Mere children, my lord," said Mrs. Jones.

"Quite so. Good night."

And he held out his hand.

One wonders which of the four was most happy on that eventful night. The lodgers of Redman's row thought that Mrs. Jones was; but—who knows? —Answers.

Leading a Blind Rat.

"One day not long ago," said a brick manufacturer, "one of my workmen saw three rats carrying a long straw across the brickyard. It seemed such an unusual sort of proceeding that he stopped his work to watch them. Two of the rats held the straw at opposite ends, while the third supported the centre. They were making straight for the river which flowed by one side of the yard. When they arrived at the bank they laid down the straw and took a long drink. Then they proceeded to take up the straw again in the same manner as before, and returned by the same way they had come.

"This so interested the workman that he determined to watch if they would come again. And sure enough, at about the same time the next day they appeared, carrying the straw exactly as before. Having provided himself with a gun, he shot all three, to see if possibly he might thereby solve the mystery. He discovered that the rat in the centre was blind, and therefore concluded that this was the animals' kind method of leading their afflicted comrade to the water to drink."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Legend of Lace-Making.

A very interesting story is told of the origin of the famous guipure lace in the Home Needlework Magazine. It is that of a sailor lad from the Indian seas, who, returning to his home in Venice, brought to his betrothed, a worker in needlepoint, a bunch of the delicate, pretty coraline, telling her it was lace that the mermaids made in the coral caverns under the waters of the Indian seas. "Pretty as it is," said the needleworker, "I will make something with my needle far prettier. My bridal veil shall be of the mermaid's lace." The sailor lad sailed away and was gone for months. Day by day the young girl worked with her needle, forming white knots and tiny stars and uniting them all by delicate "brides" until an exquisite long scarf of guipure was produced, so marvelously beautiful that when she wore it as her bridal veil all Venice went wild with admiration, and many noble ladies, princesses and queens became the patrons of the young laceworker.

Big Bait Business.

Charley Schuler had the finest display of minnows the other day that has been seen in St. Louis for years. His reservoirs contained about 18,000. Most of these beautiful chubs were just the right size for big bass bait. The cool weather makes it an easy matter to keep the minnows alive. It is no easy task to get together 75,000 to 100,000 minnows a week, which Schuler requires to supply the anglers. He manages to get them, however. It requires several men and wagons to haul the chubs when they are caught.

Some of the minnows come in by train from remote points, but Mr. Schuler gets nearly all his supply from ponds he stocked a year and a half ago. He says that minnows grow very fast, and multiply at a most astonishing rate. He put 10,000 in one pond a year last spring, and has taken a million out since.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

THE STORY OF JUDAS

The Decoy of the Chicago Cattle Yards.

One of the great cattle yards of Chicago is an old white ox named Judas. An ox may rise to eminence by his cunning and wisdom as well as a man, and Judas has risen. He came to the yards a good many years ago, while he was yet a frisky steer and he was immediately purchased by one of the great packing houses and driven from the train, which brought him from his Iowa home to a distant yard.

The life of most animals at the cattle yards is very short—a week at the very most. A few days after the arrival of Judas the herd of cattle which occupied the pen with him was selected for killing. The way to the packing house led down a long alleyway with high fences on each side, then up a narrow chute and into the building. For some reason the cattle seem to know what is coming, for they always object to being driven up the chute. Judas was no exception. He plunged madly about among the herd, and the cattlemen had more trouble with him than with any other animal. At last, however, he seemed to realize that, sooner or later, he must go, and he made a virtue of necessity, trotted quietly up the chute, and the other cattle followed rapidly after him. Thus he ran until he had just reached the door of the packing house. Then, quick as a wink, he turned and galloped down a side passage and escaped, while the other cattle went onward into the building.

Judas has been so very clever that the good natured cattlemen let him go for that day, for genius is to be appreciated in a steer as well as in a man. The next day, however, they drove him up again with another herd. This time he made not the slightest objection, but trotted forward quietly and the other steers, having a confident leader, behaved admirably. But just as Judas reached the door of the building he dodged again, so suddenly that the men couldn't turn him, and escaped as he had done before while the herd behind him went careering into the killing room.

Since then Judas has been a regular employe of the cattle yards. Every day he leads up a herd of cattle and every day he dodges just at the door of the building. He has saved the cattlemen no end of trouble and delay with riotous herds since he began his service. He has grown fat and sleek on the good living of the yards, and so highly are his services regarded that the cattlemen provide him with a white blanket on cold days to keep him comfortable.

And thus he is living to a green old age, but he bears the disrespectful name of Judas, the betrayer.—Chattanooga Times.

TRUE STORY TOLD BY MOUTH.

Best Feature for Betraying the Woman's Personality.

There is no feature of the face so apt to tell tales of the owner's personality as the mouth, especially the personality of a woman.

A certain philosopher declared that a woman is known by her mouth—not by the words that issue therefrom, but by the shape and color of the lips and the lines and dimples that gather about this important feature. He is supported in his theory by physiognomists, who try to impress us with the fact that no woman with the small, red-lipped "Cupid-bow" mouth, so praised in song and story, was ever intellectual or generous of heart. He says further that "it is consoling to those whose mouths are not in accordance with the lines of beauty laid down by the poets to be told that a 'wide, straight mouth, with strong, white teeth,' denotes the woman of superior intelligence, goodness of heart, strength of mind, and a thousand and one sterling qualities which we all like to think we possess." It is the fashion at present for women to hold their lips slightly apart. This is supposed to give that innocent, wistful, wondering expression which was the peculiar property of the heroines of old-fashioned novels, but which bicycle riding and the kindred modern amusements have caused to vanish. It is difficult for the thin-lipped determined woman to acquire this trick, but perseverance works wonders.

Old Case of Tetter in Toes.

"CRAWFORDVILLE, FLA.: Tetterine is worth more than its weight in gold to me. One application cured me of tetter in my toes of seven (7) years' standing. John M. Towles." It cures all skin diseases. At druggists 50 cents a box, or by mail postpaid from J. T. Shuptrine, Savannah, Ga.

Filipino Method of Execution.

Perhaps the most horrible form of capital punishment practiced in any part of the world is that still in vogue among the Negritos of the Phillippine islands. It seems to be a native adaptation of the well-known turn screw of the early Spaniard, the victim being tied down in a strong seat and his neck surrounded by a stout iron collar. He is then slowly strangled to death by the executioner, who, by means of a screw at the back of the crude mechanism, slowly tightens the collar on the throat of the unfortunate criminal to whom barbaric justice is being dealt out.

BOERS ARE A RACE OF GIANTS.

Average Height Declared to Be Six Feet and Two Inches.

Aside from the Patagonians, the Boers are probably the tallest race of men in the world, and they are stalwart besides—men of strength, with no useless flesh. It would be difficult to find anywhere an entire race of such physical giants as the Boers of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State. The roving existence, the life in the open air and the freedom from disturbing cares have combined to make the Boers a race that is almost physically perfect. If an average height of all the full grown males in the country were taken it would be found to be not less than 6 feet 2 inches, and probably more. Their physique, notwithstanding their comparatively idle mode of living, is magnificently developed. With action of the almost abnormally developed muscles of the arms and legs, discerned through their closely fitting garments, gives an idea of the remarkable powers of endurance which the Boers have displayed on many occasions when engaged in native and other campaigns. They can withstand almost any amount of physical pain and discomfort and can live a remarkably long time on the smallest quantity of food.

It is a matter of common knowledge that a Boer can subsist on a five-pound slice of "biltong"—beef that has been dried in the sun until it is almost as hard as a stone—for ten to fifteen days without suffering any pangs of hunger. In time of war "biltong" is the principal item in the army rations, and in peace when he is following his flocks; it is also the Boer shepherd's chief article of diet.

"Pathometer" for Wheelmen.

Of the inventing of long-felt cycling wants there seems to be no end. The latest of these is an instrument by which it is easy to record automatically not only the distance traveled by a bicycle, but also the various directions followed during the journey, and the hills ascended and descended. The record of direction is obtained by means of a compass. The needle is suspended at the top of the "pathometer," as the apparatus is called, directly above the tape on which the records are taken.

A novel argument for a retrial was recently made by an English lawyer. He demanded a new trial of the case on the ground that the opposing lawyer was so eloquent that he had swayed the minds of the jury, even against their will. This argument was not successful.

USELESSNESS OF HURRY.

Things to Be Well Done Must Not Be Hurriedly Done.

Time was given man to use and not to waste; it is for rational use, not foolish abuses. At times it appears to the reflective mind that we are mistaken in our endeavors to crowd into half an hour what should occupy half a day. Reference is not made to our hurried habits of eating, so frequently made the subject of medical and lay lectures, but to the general haste which characterizes the everyday movements of our people.

In traveling we habitually give preference to the fastest lines, speed being the one grand recommendation to one competing line over another. The annihilation of time and space is a modern boast, of which, perhaps, altogether too much is made. It is to be questioned whether this tendency is a correct and safe one. It is a public demand that everything shall be done in the shortest possible time, but the demand is often a wasteful and suicidal one. The oft-quoted phrase to the effect that we do not "live out half our days" has more of truth than of fiction. But laying aside all considerations affecting the general welfare of the race, the element of hurry—not judicious employment of time, but meaningless haste—is of itself really injurious. Men and organizations are entrusted with the building and completion of a work of great magnitude, which is to remain for the use of future generations as a monument to the skill and labor of the decade which brought it forth; but instead of priding themselves upon the task well done, they not infrequently boast primarily of the speed with which it is performed.—Church Standard.

Rather a One-Sided Division.

Two small London boys, walking down a street of the city, passed a tobacconist's shop. The bigger remarked: "I say, bill, I've got a ha'penny, and if you've got one, too, we'll have a penny smoke between us." Bill produced his copper, and Tommy, diving into the shop, promptly reappeared with a penny cigar in his mouth. The boys walked side by side for a few minutes, when the smaller mildly said: "I say, Tom, when am I to have a puff? The weed's half mine." "Oh, you shut up!" was the business-like reply. "I'm the chairman of this company, and you are only a shareholder. You can spit!"

Where Dogs Have Many Duties.

The American visitor in Amsterdam or Rotterdam must often have noticed the extent to which dogs are used as beasts of burden. At all times of the day, and in all parts of the country one can see barrows and milk wagons being hauled about by large mastiffs. Sometimes, too, one may see a dog and a woman hitched together hauling the same cart, while the self-satisfied male owner of the entire property may be seen wielding a whip impartially over his harnessed wife and dog. As a rule, however, girls and young women are the drivers of these carts, though often enough these gentle creatures cruelly ill-treat their poor canines, who do the hauling.

Quaint Servian Customs.

A quaint custom obtains in Servia where in some towns it is usual for the inhabitants to hang a dressed doll, and sometimes two or even three of them in the principal window of the house. This indicates that there is living there a marriageable woman, sometimes more than one, who is willing and anxious to become a bride.

Another Servian custom is that of hanging a small sheaf of grain outside the house. The supposition is that if the grain is stolen there will soon be a wedding in the house; if the lady dwelling within is anxious to wed, the leaf is hung low, quite within reach of the suitor, who may possibly be as anxious to steal it as she is to have it stolen.

PROGRESS IN THE PHILIPPINES

AMERICAN TROOPS ARE ADVANCING INTO NEW TERRITORY.

THEIR MARCH IS UNHINDERED

Many of the Natives Appear Friendly and Seem To Be Reassured.

The following dispatches have been received at Manila from correspondents of the Associated Press accompanying the American advance northward:

"GERONA, November 18.—General MacArthur entered Gerona, as already cabled, this afternoon. The insurgents had fled last Monday, after burning the depot. Nothing else was destroyed by them. Gerona is the first town along the Manila-Dagupan railway line where the natives did not run at the approach of the Americans. The padres offered quarters in the church and convent. The town has one good house. Gerona is the seat of heavy English sugar interests.

"The trip here was a hard one and occupied six hours in covering seven miles and a half, most of the time having been spent in fording a quarter of a mile flood running of the Rio Tarlac. We have no wagons, and pack mules and native bearers carry all our supplies.

"The natives here say that Bayombong was occupied last Sunday by mounted troops, probably General Young's brigade of General Lawton's division. The people here are of a better class than we have usually found, and they welcomed the Americans, as they evidently realize that their agricultural interests will revive. General MacArthur said this afternoon:

"'We seem to be entering a different political atmosphere. The people here seem to be less attached to Aguinaldo's cause than those in many towns we have entered on the railroad line.

"'The command will move northward at baybreak tomorrow, toward Bayombong. Gerona will be garrisoned with two companies of the Thirty-sixth.'

"Immediately on entering Gerona Slaven's scouts moved up the track toward Panique. On the way they encountered an intrenched party of insurgents, whom they drove back, then entering the town, and capturing four locomotives and thirteen guns as already cabled. They learned that 500 insurgents had left the town in the course of the afternoon.

MacArthur Advances.

"PANIQUE, November 18.—General MacArthur's troops arrived from Gerona in the course of the morning. The railroad beyond this point has not been destroyed. The captured railway stock is being repaired to handle supplies. The expedition will go north toward Bayombong. The signal corps is constructing lines with great rapidity.

"A native courier from Bayombong reports that the American troops left the town soon after they entered and that many natives remain, although no insurgents.

"General MacArthur discovered here Major Jones, formerly chief surgeon. He resides at Bacolor, and is about to return there to resume his practice. Major Jones says that all respectable Filipinos are disgusted with the behavior of the insurgents and are glad that the Americans have the upper hand.

"A continuous procession of refugees is entering Panique from the north, indicating the proximity of other American troops probably of the railroad line. These refugees say that the insurgents have not known which way to turn with the Americans occupying so many places in the north. Panique is a rich sugar town.

"Some of the wealthy Chinese and the poorer natives fled at the approach of our troops, but they are now confidently returning. The rain has ceased, the weather is fine and the country is drying rapidly.

Natives Friendly.

"MONACADA, November 19, 12:30 a. m.—Advancing through the enemy's country by train from Panique, a distance of five miles, the Americans reached Monacada, where the natives have displayed a friendly disposition. The train is stalled here by the wreck of two locomotives and fifty-four cars—evidently intentional--on the main track. The freighthouse and depot had been burned. No attempt will be made to save the wrecked rolling stock, but the track will be cleared, and as soon as the two small breaks have been repaired, the expedition will continued northward. Thus far the advance has been a complete success. Captain Carr, of the signal corps, has laid a wire from Panique."

FAVORED TAYLOR.

Kentucky Judge Renders Decision In Regard To Alleged Illegal Votes.

A special from Louisville says: General Taylor gained 1,193 votes through a decision of Judge Jones at Glasgow, Ky., in the Nelson county case.

The Courier-Journal reports from the official count in 118 of the 119 counties give Taylor a plurality of 261. This, with the Nelson county vote, makes Taylor's plurality 1,450, according to Democratic newspaper figures, which are less favorable to him than those received from Republican newspaper sources and at the Republican state headquarters. In addition the official count in Louisville has shown gains of several hundred votes for Taylor over the unofficial returns, which are not yet included in The Courier-Journal's estimates, the count in Louisville and the county being still unfinished. Republican estimates of Taylor's plurality are now about 2,600.

Judge Jones decision in Glasgow involved 1,198 votes, which, though cast for W. S. Taylor, were certified for W. P. Taylor by the precinct officers because of an error in printing the forms. Judge Jones, on application of Taylor, granted a writ directing the precinct election officer of Nelson county to correct the error in their certificates and certify the vote for W. S. Taylor.

Over twenty indictments were returned by the federal grand jury against alleged violators of election laws, but pending the arrest of the persons wanted no names will be made public.

JOUBERT STILL LIVES.

Belated Transvaal Advices Are Received Via Delagoa Bay.

Censored and belated dipatches from a correspondent near Ladysmith up to Tuesday, November 14th, are arriving at Lorenzo Marques.

Commandant Weilback captured a man who reported that General White was wounded and had gone to Pietermaritzburg, leaving General French in command. This, however does not tally with the Transvaal's information. The prisoner also reported that the British forces were hiding in underground chambers in order to avoid the shells, and said there were about one thousand wounded in the hospitals.

He further states that General Joubert had been indisposed, but is better.

A METEORIC SHOWER

Observed By People of Birmingham. Negroes Greatly Excited.

A strange phenomena, supposed to be a part of the tri-centenary meteoric disturbance scheduled by the astronomers, was observed in Birmingham, Ala., Sunday night between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock.

The fiery messengers made their appearance directly overhead, attracted much attention and caused no little fear among the negroes.

As many as ten meteors were seen, all of which were in the nebulae form, resembling comets. They first appeared as patches of light and at times would glow a fiery red and then fade away, repeating the operation a number of times before they finally disappeared.

RECEIVERSHIP DENIED.

Injunction Against Southern Home B. and L. Association Refused.

At Atlanta, Ga., Judge J. H. Lumpkin, presiding officer of the Fulton superior court, refused to grant an injunction against the Southern Home Building and Loan Association.

It will be remembered that some time ago F. M. Tuttle and others, claiming to be stockholders in the loan company, filed a petition in the superior court asking that the association be enjoined from transacting further business and that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the affairs, claim being made that the company was insolvent.

HOBART GROWS WEAKER.

Vice President's Condition Is Not Very Reassuring.

A special of Sunday from Patterson, N. J., says: While the doctors and watchers see no change as far as general appearance is concerned in the condition of Vice President Hobart, they cannot help noticing that his strength is gradually failing. It requires more effort to remove him from the bed to the window than it did a week ago.

CORBETT WANTS A GO.

Match Arranged Between the Champion and Ex-Champion.

A New York dispatch says: A match between Jim Jeffries, the champion heavy-weight pugilist, and Jim Corbett, ex-champion, has been arranged between Corbett personally and W. A. Brady for Jeffries. Champion Jeffries will have the fixing of the date.

Reports Being Investigated.

The board of managers of the New York cotton exchange is investigating the reports that persons interested in the cotton exchanges received advance information from the government's latest estimate of the cotton crop.

DEMOCRATS DISHEARTENED

Over Decision Made By Circuit Judge At Glasgow, Ky.

The decision of Circuit Judge Jones, giving to W. S. Taylor 1,1988 votes in Nelson county, Ky., erroneously cast for W. P. Taylor, was a surprise at democratic headquarters and the news somewhat disheartened the democratic leaders for a time. It is said the court of appeals is certain to advance the case and hear arguments on appeal at once.

MANY ARTICLES ARE ADULTERATED

Expert Testifies Before Senate Pure Food Committee.

DECLARATIONS STARTLING

Much of What We Eat and Drink Contains Adulterants.

The United States senate committee, represented by Senator Mason, of Illinois, resumed its investigation at Washington, Friday, into food adulteration.

Dr. Edward H. Jenkins, vice director of the Connecticut agricultural experiment station, declared that the general adulteration of food products had increased with the business competition and the demand for cheap wares.

In his five years' experience Dr. Jenkins said he had found only one adulterant that was poisonous and that was a coloring matter in a temperance drink. Cocoa shells, prune stones and the like, he said, were sold as spices. More than half the jellies examined were made of glucose and starch paste, colored with artificial coloring, flavored with artificial flavoring and preserved with salicylic acid. The cheaper grades of coffee were found to contain a large proportion of Canada peas, pea pellets, wheat middlings and chicory.

Dr. Jenkins presented for the instruction of Senator Mason a number of small bottles containing the coffee adulterants and imitation coffee beans, adulterated mustard which is 20 per cent plaster of paris, pepper that is 75 per cent charcoal, sawdust and flour, and cayenne pepper that is less that 10 per cent pure pepper.

Tomato catsup, the witness said, is made from the cores of the tomato artificially colored and preserved with salicylic acid. Of thirty samples of olive oil, twenty-six were adulterated with cotton seed oil. Of forty samples of beer tasted eleven contained salicylic acid, while of seven samples of ale, six were pure.

Speaking of the dyes used in the temperance drinks, Dr. Jenkins said experiments had shown that one glass of raspberry soda had sufficient analine die to color a piece of flannel five inches square.

BISHOP TURNER AGAIN.

Colored Prelate Continues To Roast the Hardwick Bill.

Bishop H. M. Turner, while attending the annual conference of the African Methodist church at Macon, made a sensational address before that body Friday morning. He denounced the Hardwick bill, which is now pending before the legislature, and touched on the race question generally.

He urged every possible opposition by Georgia negroes to the Hardwick bill to limit the suffrage now before the legislature.

He said he proposed taking the stump himself, and implored every minister present to do likewise. He said the law would reduce every negro to the ignoble status of a free slave, and that condition would be worse than before the war. It would outlaw every black man and woman.

He said the author was merely seeking notoriety, and was backed by the "poor white man" element. The address created quite a sensation.

WILSON MAKES DECISION.

Says What Life Insurance Companies Are Exempt From War Tax.

Commissioner Wilson, of the internal revenue bureau at Washington, has rendered an important decision in which he holds in effect that the policies of life insurance companies which are exempt from taxation under the war revenue act are only such as are issued by fraternal societies or orders; beneficiary societies or orders; farmers' purely local co-operative companies or associations and employes' relief associations operated on the lodge system or local co-perative plan, and that the exemption does not apply to the policies of life insurance issued by mutual insurance companies per se, although they may have features of mutuality. A further restriction imposed by the law upon the exempted companies is that they "shall not be conducted for profit."

AIMED AT SOUTH.

Indiana Congressman Has a Bill To Reduce Representation.

The New York World publishes the following:

"Representative Crumpacker, of Indiana, gives notice that he shall press at the coming session of congress a bill looking to a reduction of the representation of certain southern states in the house and in the electoral college because of alleged disfranchisement of negroes. As the first step toward this end he will introduce an amendment to the census law requiring the director of census to ascertain and report the voting population of the several states in a separate table.

PROF. SHOCKLEY GIVES BOND.

Bound Over On the Charge of Larceny After Trust.

Professor H. S. Shockley, head of the Rome Business college at Rome, Ga., was given a preliminary hearing Friday afternoon on the charges brought by a former pupil, J. A. Crane, of larceny after trust. Shockley was bound over to the superior court under a $150 bond, which he furnished.

SENATORIAL TILT IN ALABAMA

Johnston and Morgan Have Their First Passage At Arms.

CRITICISM IS INDULGED IN Both Speakers Rip Up Each Other's Record.

Practically the entire population of Limestone county, as well as nearly all the notable Democratic leaders of of the state were present at Athens, Alabama, Saturday, to attend the joint debate between Senator Morgan and Governor Johnston, which marks the opening of what is expected to be the most notable campaign in Alabama since the civil war.

It was the first time that the governor has from the stump announced his candidacy for this high office and Senator Morgan came down from Washington to meet him and to give an account of the people of his stewardship.

The fact that the meeting was expected to line up the campaign between these two favored and favorite sons of the state, defining the issues between them, drew politicians from all parts of the state and naturally the deepest interest was manifested in all the proceedings. The governor had scheduled four meetings for Limestone county, because it is one of the earliest to make its nomination for the legislature.

Senator Morgan, as soon as he heard of this engagement, wired the governor, asking for a division of time. The usual sparring back and forth has followed.

There was no trouble about the first debate, but it was not until his concluding speech that Governor Johnston's position with regard to the others was known. Then he challenged the senator to join him in all his appointments and the challenge was promptly accepted.

The real feature of Saturday's debate was the vigor of Senator Morgan's attacks upon the governor. It was evident from the beginning of his speech that the senator had lost none of his love for a fight, and he was merciless in some of his criticisms. On the governor's side he attacked the senator particularly for what he termed his disloyalty to Bryan, quoting from some of the published interviews, and for the part he had played in the constitutional convention fight.

The close friends of Governor Johnston figure that a point has been gained in the governor's favor by Senator Morgan's acceptance of the challenge to accompany the governor at all his appointments. They did not attempt to conceal their delight over this, and while they would deny such a motive, it is no secret that they believe the result of such hard campaigning will be Senator Morgan's physical breakdown.

BOMBARDMENT INEFFECTIVE.

Boer Guns Do Little Damage At Ladysmith, According To Reports.

A runner arrived at Estcourt, Natal, November 17th, from Ladysmith, bearing dispatches from General White, who reported all well there. He adds that the Boers' shells have no effect. General White recently made a sortie and drove the boers from their guns' position. The British did not lose a man. The town in healthy.

The bombardment of Ladysmith was continued almost daily with big guns. The Boers endeavored on Tuesday, November 14th, to make a closer investment, but were repulsed, General White following this up with a sortie which drove the Boers from all their positions, with considerable loss.

CHAMBERS' RESIGNATION

Accepted By the President On the Part of This Government.

Chief Justice Chambers, of Samoa, resigned and his resignation has been accepted for the United States, one of the three parties to the Berlin treaty, by the president. The resignation also will be made to great Britain and Germany. The latest official act of Mr. Chambers was the submission of a report upon his administration of the office of chief justice up to the time of his departure from Apia.

STAR GAZERS DISAPPOINTED.

Yale Astronomers Give Up Prospect of Seeing the Leonids.

The astronomers of Yale college, New Haven, Conn., decided, Friday afternoon, to give up further observations on the shower of Leonids. Dr. F. L. Chase, of the observatory, said:

"We have made several pictures during our observation of the meteors, but are not sure that we have been able to photograph any meteors whatever. We think that the shower must be over and we shall take no more observations at present. We have observed a large number of sporadic meteors, but have apparently caught no glimpse of the Leonids.

SUFFRAGISTS SNUBBED.

Georgia Solons Refused To Hear Addresses By Women.

The Georgia house of representatives Friday snubbed a proposition that that body should listen to the speeches on woman's suffrage which will be delivered on the evening of the 28th. The members were willing to allow the use of the hall by the ladies but they declined to promise their attendance.

STATE FAIR CLOSED.

The Most Successful Exhibition the State Has Ever Had.

The Alabama State Fair was brought to a successful close at 9 o'clock Friday night with a beautiful pyrotechnical display by the Due Fireworks company.

Friday was a grand success for the fair association, and though it was the last day the grounds were crowded from early morning until late at night. It was Governor's Day, and the chief executive of the state and his entire staff were present as the guests of the fair association. Many prominent Alabamians were in the city, and when Governor Johnston and his party arrived at the grounds a brilliant and lively scene was presented.

Shortly after his arrival at the grounds Governor Johnston was introduced to the crowd and delivered an address.

At 4 o'clock the governor walked up the steps of the reviewing stand, and hundreds gathered near to see the presentation of the handsome victoria and pair of horses to the most popular woman in Alabama. Mrs. Hardman had won by an overwhelming majority, and was seated in her proud possession, accompanied by her husband, Governor Johnston made a happy talk, and said that he was proud to have the honor of presenting the turnout to so deserving a woman; that he was doubly proud that it would be given to one whose husband was not in the higher walks of life, but occupied the honorable position of a mechanic who worked six days in the week. Mrs. Hardman is the wife of James Hardman, a machinist at the shops of the Southern railway in Birmingham.

The contest for the pony and phaeton offered to the woman selling the largest number of fair tickets was won by Mrs. Dr. R. A. Jones by several dollars. During the week Mrs. Jones sold $2,056 worth of tickets.

The board of examiners and judges have carefully looked over all the exhibits and will award the different prizes Monday.

From start to finish the Alabama State Fair was a great success and sheds much luster on the able board of managers.

Within a few months the plans will be laid for another fair next year and many changes will take place in the grounds. It is said that the present exhibition hall will be given the women and that a handsome exhibition hall will be erected where the tent of the negro department now stands.

Owing to the great success of the races, the track has been leased by the Birmingham Union Jockey club, and the sport will continue until December 1.

Sold Whiskers for Whiskey.

It remains for a Madison county man to choose the most novel method of raising money to buy whiskey. A man named Pylant, of Rep, was in Huntsville Saturday and his money gave out when he was only about half drunk. Pylant had a fine suit of whiskers more than a foot long, and some of the habitues of a saloon suggested that he trade his whiskers for whiskey. Pylant did this and sold them for 5 cents a bunch, the entire crop bringing 30 cents.

INSANE FATHER SLAYS BABIES

Shoots Four of His Children and Then Himself.

DEED WAS WELL PLANNED

Three of the Little Ones Were Killed Instantly, While a Fourth Was Mortally Wounded.

Carrying out a plot he had apparently planned with deliberation, Cornelius Corcoran, a Chicago maniac, shot four of his children, killing three of them, and ended his own life. The tragedy occurred Friday at his home, 5401 Dearborn street. The dead are:

Cornelius Corcoran, 49 years old.
Margaret Corcoran, 5 years old.
John Corcoran, 7 years old.
Lizzie Corcoran, 3 years old.

Kate Corcoran, fourteen years old, may die, and if she recovers she will lose her left eye.

The police are convinced the man was insane. Corcoran had lived with his seven children in a flat building at 5401 Dearborn street for a month past. To all outward appearances he was a kind and considerate parent. For some days he had plotted for the death of his children, and he nearly accomplished his purpose Tuesday night. Hearing the children cough, he arose and in the dark administered laudanum to five of them, Clifford, Timothy, John, Margaret and Lizzie. The first two were removed to the Mercy hospital, where Timothy died the next day.

Corcoran exhibited such profound grief over the affair that the police and coroner thought the giving of the laudanum was a mistake. Balked in his purpose to end the lives of the young ones, Corcoran, it is thought, made deliberate plans for his act of Friday. About 10 o'clock the grandmother of the children, Mrs. Margaret Wrenn, accompanied by her niece, Mrs. Mamie Corbett, called at the Corcoran home. When they rang the bell Corcoran called out from the inside:

"Whose there?"

"It's Mamie and your mother," replied Mrs. Corbett.

Corcoran thrust his head out of the door, disclosing the fact that he was attired for the night and closed the door again, saying:

"Wait just a minute, Mamie."

The two women opened the door and stepped into the hallway. Just then three shots were heard, followed by a succession of screams. In the panic the two women started out the door way and ran down the street screaming at the top of their voices.

"It's murder! It's murder!" shouted Mrs. Corbett frantically, and hurrying to an adjacent drug store, word was sent to the Fiftieth street and Hyde park police station.

An appalling sight greeted the eyes of Lieutenant Clancy, Sergeant Ryan and other officers when they entered the Corcoran flat. In the first bedroom just off the parlor was the body of Margaret lying in a pool of blood at the head of the bed, while at the foot lay John, unconscious and breathing heavily. In the room to the rear Corcoran's dead body was found on the floor, while that of the baby, Lizzie, reclined on a pillow. A revolver lay near Corcoran's right hand. Five of the chambers were empty.

Every one of the wounds with the exception of Kate's was inflicted behind the ear. Kate was shot in the left temple. The police removed Kate and John to the Mercy hospital and later the baby, Lizzie, who was still breathing, was taken there. John died within a half hour after his arrival at the hospital and no hopes were held out for the recovery of the others.

Gave Them Whisky.

Evidence of Corcoran's intention to kill his children were seen in the house. In one room empty whisky and wine bottles showed he had given the children liberally of liquor and stupefied them.

Corcoran was injured about three years ago in a collision with a cable car while driving a mail wagon. His leg was broken and his brain was affected, it is said. Six months ago Corcoran's wife, the daughter of Mrs. Wenn, became insane and since that time she has been an inmate of an asylum at Kankakee.

The only child to escape injury was Marion, sixteen years old, who is at the hospital nursing her brother Clifford.

THE CHRONICLE

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Entered in the post-office at Columbiana Ala., as second class matter.

We are afraid that our Montevallo friends who have rushed into print to impeach the testimony of the Messrs. Reynolds have proven their own malice rather than disproven the charges.

The Governor spent Sunday in a house-to-house canvass of Limestone County, in company with a banker by the name of Allen; the Senator spent the same day in rest at the house of his friend, Luke Pryor, the grand old man of Limestone.

When the main facts are admitted, as they are admitted by Captain Plowman and Mr. Pinckard, the impeachment of the prosecuting witnesses is not sufficient to acquit the defendant. When direct testimony is at hand, but not used, character witnesses will not convict or acquit.

The Advocate of this week was evidently in charge of the middle-of-the-road editor. When the Republican editor gets home there will be a row, and the fusion editor will have to take hold and straighten out the muddle by declaring for fusion with Johnston, Aldrich and any old thing for office.

In his Athens speech Governor Johnston asked if Mr. Bryan were in Alabama whom he would vote for as between the Governor and the Senator. We have not heard Mr. Bryan say, but if he has sense enough to be President he would prefer the support in the Senate of a statesman rather than the incubus of a coattail politician.

Common gratitude would prevent Johnston from opposing Morgan; but he has none of that sentiment which stirs the hearts of most men. He would ride into office over the body of a friend as complacently as over a fallen foe. Vaulting ambition knows not gratitude nor respect; it makes men traitors, tyrants, ingrates—anything necessary to success.

We heard a Populist—one of those who have been doing the voting while others got the offices—asking what was being done with all the money now being collected out of the people in taxes. We could not tell him, and referred him to the commissioners. They will probably refer him to the political editor of the Advocate, and that astute individual will inform him that the Democratic legislature is compelling them to chunk it away at snowbirds.

We learn that Captain Walthall has tried to justify his appointment of a Populist deputy on the ground that he could find no Democrat in the county who was competent who would have the place; that court was coming on, and not being familiar with the duties of the office he was compelled to have a deputy conversant with the routine of the position; that he offered the place to S. W. Nelson, and that the latter declined it. Not desiring to do any injustice in the matter, a representative of this paper asked Mr. Nelson about the facts in the case. That gentleman said that he had never been offered the place, nor had Captain Walthall ever spoken to him on the subject. The Democrats of this county are very great sticklers for party loyalty, and the Captain will have a hard time explaining his appointment. The Governor will also have some trouble explaining his.

In Clanton yesterday a Populist meeting was held, at which delegates were elected to go to the conference tomorrow. Speeches were made by Sam Adams and Lewis Reynolds in favor of Johnston. A. T. Goodwin a few days since confirmed the report that the conference tomorrow will advise the disbanding of the party and the support of Johnston in the Democratic primaries. Senator Deans was in this city today and tried to prevail on the Populist chairman and the member of the State committee to attend the conference. They both declined, on the ground that the meeting was not an official one. The Advocate is out this week in strong opposition to the Populists going into Democratic primaries, denouncing in harsh terms the efforts to lead them there. It looks as if Messrs. Longshore and Deans will not be able to deliver the goods. The Democrats are disappointed, as they hoped to get the Populists committed in the primaries. Tomorrow's conference is awaited with interest.

THE SENATORSHIP.

The two principal candidates for the United States Senatorship from this State are Gov. Joseph F. Johnston and Senator John T. Morgan. There are two other candidates announced for this high office, but the general impression is that a choice is necessary between the two gentlemen named above. We are for Morgan; we are against Johnston. We always believe in giving a reason for the faith that is in us, and we are always ready to do so. We give our reasons this early in the race, because the records of both men are before us.

We are against Johnston—

Because we do not think he is capable of filling the position with that degree of ability and honor to the State with which it has been filled for the past twenty-three years. No act of his has shown Johnston to be a statesman above the point of mere executive ability, and that only in the line of financial matters with which a Senator has nothing to do.

Because he is a politician of the shrewdest and most agressive type. It is beyond question that he has used his present office and the appointive power that goes with it to build up a machine for the furtherance of his own political ends. The Senate of the United States has much more need of statesmen than of politicians, and this State has no need of the latter class in that body.

Because we do not believe that he is a loyal Democrat. All Democrats believe in white supremacy, and Governor Johnston prevented the perpetuation of white rule in this State, except by unlawful methods, and did it because he could not control the men his party had nominated to revise the Constitution. He appointed in this county a sheriff in opposition to the recommendation of the Democratic committee and of prominent Democrats, and the succeeding facts show that he was carrying out a deal made with the open enemies of his party. He is now engaged in a scheme to deliver the Democrats of this senatorial district into the hands of the Populists, so as to make himself a vote out of a man who has been high in the ranks of our political enemies.

Because we do not believe that he is sincere in his position on public questions. We must look with suspicion upon the conversion of a national bank president and agent of mortgage loan companies to the free-silver idea, especially when the convert is a politician seeking office. Governor Johnston can not work for the promulgation of the Chicago platform with safety to his own business interests, and he has not shown himself above the temptation of financial gain to that extent necessary to make him a safe representative of the common people.

Because we do not believe that he is an honest man. Recent developments convince us that he has used his present office to put through financial schemes that will enrich himself at the expense of more than one of the State's institutions. In this we may be mistaken, but we can not support a man for so high an office against whom there are unanswered charges.

Because these things all lead us to the inevitable conclusion that he is a demagogue, and above all things a demagogue in the United States Senate would be a calamity to this State and to the South.

We are for Morgan because his long years of service in the United States Senate bear witness that—

He is able. His friends and enemies alike acknowledge him to be easily the best-informed man upon public questions in that great body, and that he is to a superior degree well equipped for the duties of his position.

He is sound upon all questions of state. He has worked and talked and voted for the very essential principles of Democracy and good government, in many instances when his party faltered under the leadership of unfaithful men.

He is a loyal Democrat. His voice loudest and most untiring in the great struggle for relief from carpetbag rule, and it has never faltered in his party's defense. He has ever been willing to stand or fall with Alabama's organized Democracy, and he is now only seeking the support of loyal Democrats in his race for reelection. Others may and will support him for his great worth, but he is not seeking to betray his own party for his own advancement.

He is not a politician. No man in Alabama can say that Morgan has ever asked his support; and he is only meeting his opponent on the stump now in defense of himself against the attacks of an unscrupulous politician. His time has been too valuable for his people's good to be spent in political intrigue.

He is a friend of the South and of Alabama. He has done both valuable service in days that called for patriotic action, and he is still engaged in the establishment of public improvements for the peculiar interest of his State and section.

He is distinctively an American. His efforts in foreign affairs have always been toward the protection of American interests, and he has been wonderfully successful against heavy odds.

He is an honest man. That after twenty-three years of exposure to bribes and opportunities to acquire fortune, he is still a poor man, proves his honesty. Even his enemies have not dared to attack him on this point, and they will not.

These are our reasons for opposing Johnston and favoring Morgan. Along these lines we shall fight the one and support the other. The action of the Democratic party of this county in its nomination of a candidate for the legislature will be our reward.

A story comes to us from Calera that the Populists are going to capture the Democratic party, and that the Advocate is to be the organ of the rejuvenated party. The Advocate would look well with a Democratic ticket at its masthead.

Admitting Captain Plowman's version of the $500 episode to be true, it strikes us as an ugly attitude for the Governor to get himself into that he would "rather lose $500 than be in such a predicament." He had promised the place to Plowman, and there must have been some peculiar reason for his wanting to appoint the other man that put him in such "a straight betwixt two."

The Advocate of last week contains an editorial in which we find these words: "The officials of Shelby County are no more responsible for the present tax rate than they are for the sun which lights the Universe." This was in reply to a charge of ours that the Populists had forced a 60-cent tax rate on the people of this county. Does the Advocate pretend to deny that the county officers make the expenses of the county; that the commissioners authorize the expenditures and provide for the revenues of the county; that they levied a tax of 20 cents for public roads in obedience to a law passed at the instance of Mr. Sturdivant, and that they adopted the maximum instead of the minimum limit provided by that act; that they levied a tax of 40 cents for general purposes? Does the Advocate tell its readers that the legislature compelled the officers of Shelby County to so conduct the affairs of the county that 35 cents will not pay the expenses as it did under Democratic rule? Does it tell its readers that its own representative did not have the county put into the road law? Does the Advocate expect any of its readers to believe that the officers of the county have nothing to do with the finances of the county? Are they mere figureheads, this probate and these commissioners of ours? If so they are rather expensive ornaments, as it takes about $800 a year to pay for their sittings. If they are having nothing to do with the finances of the county we had better put in some officers who will.

The gates of the Alabama State Fair at Birmingham were closed Friday night, proving quite a success. The financial success of the enterprise reflects great credit upon those who had it in hand.

The windows to the courthouse have been removed and given a thorough cleansing. The heavy dust this summer has covered everything, and there will no doubt be more of this kind of work now that the heavy rains of late have settled the dust.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church held a very interesting meeting in the church at this place last Thursday. This society was represented at the annual conference in Tuscaloosa a few weeks ago, and made a good showing, standing almost at the head of the list. They will observe the week of prayer next week, holding meetings daily throughout the week.

The barn of Tom Atchison, in the Kingdom neighborhood, was destroyed by fire one night last week, together with the contents. A wagon under the shed loaded with corn was burned before enough people could get there to remove it. Two mules and two horses which were in the building were cremated. The fire was discovered while the family were at supper. The origin of the fire is unknown, though some entertain the belief that it was the work of incendiaries.

Admiral Dewey married about a month ago, and this week he was hissed on the streets by his home people because he permitted his wife to take charge and dispose of the property loyal Americans had given him. This is a severe blow to the ardent hero-worshippers, but shows that human nature is the same all the world round when it comes to being henpecked. He hadn't orter done it.

Deputy Norris returned Saturday from Birmingham with Joe Walker, colored, wanted in this county on several charges. The negro proved quite obstreperous on the way and made an effort to escape. Mr. Norris received quite a bruise on his head by a blow delivered by the handcuffed negro. Joe is a bad character and has been in jail here and elsewhere previous to this. As there are several cases docketed against him the county stands a fair showing to secure his services in the coal beds in the near future.

A little negro with a bruised head and gory shirt was seen on our streets last Sunday following in the footsteps of his mother to Justice Moore's office. The little chap had been in a fracas, and had come out minus a handfull of hair and a quantity of blood. He took the incident very philosophically, but submitted to an examination of the wounds and obeyed the instructions of his mother without never a whimper.

The young men of this city are attempting the organization of a military company to act, so we have been informed, as an auxiliary to the old veterans when their reunions are held. The project is headed by those with experience, and the military spirit is quite strong here. The enthusiasts will no doubt receive good encouragement from the people. They held a meeting last week and another a few nights ago to discuss the plan and method of their organization.

In a wreck which occurred on the Saginaw Lumber Co's. railway last week Mr. Bill Whitfield was killed, and several other parties seriously injured. The engine was derailed, and several of the cars were thrown from the track and considerably shaken up. The wreck occurred near Ganadarque, and a dead tree across the track was the cause. Mr. Whitfield, who was an employee of the company, was a married man, and leaves a wife and several children. This is the second death to occur on that road since its establishment.

An old cow with a blazed face and considerable inexperience came into our city last Tuesday from the rural districts and proceeded to take in the city. After promenading the various streets it walked into the drugstore of Williams Bros., ostensibly to purchase some cattle powders, but did not tarry long therein. Perhaps it was the artistically arranged portraits, in lithographic colors, of Lilian Russel, Fitzhugh Lee and Gen. Steadman that caused such an inglorious retreat. The ways of a city are many and devious.

Rev. J. S. Marston, claiming to be a member of the Red Cross Society and the representative of an orphanage in Cuba, was found guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses in Illinois recently, and sentenced to the State penitentiary for a year and a half. He will be remembered as the one who lectured at the Baptist church in this city sometime ago in the interest of the orphan children of Cuba. He is a good lecturer and understands how to make his appeal to the people. He received a fine collection on the occasion of his visit to this place, but there was some unpleasant talk about him even then. He lectured at Calera also, and at Centreville conducted a series of meetings. The news of his conviction will no doubt prove some little satisfaction to those who were taken in by his slick tongue and induced to give their money to an impostor.

CALERA CULLINGS.

A Wedding and Other Things of Interest.

One of the happiest marriages that has occurred in this section for many days was solemnized at the Methodist church on last Wednesday at 3 o'clock, the contracting parties being Mr. L. N. Bowden, of Montevallo, and Miss Emma Wilson, of Calera. The church was tastefully decorated with cullings from the forest of the glorious Indian Summer. The arch and canopy under which the groom and bride stood was covered in wreathes of fern and smilax, dotted with chrysanthemums. The organ was placed in the pulpit, and entirely covered with banks of flowers, geraniums, lilac, and smilax, that reached down the chancel to the foot of the arch. The mellow light in the darkened church and the beaming faces that filled its seats made altogether a happy scene. The ushers, followed by the attendants, then the bride and groom, glided up the aisles to the chancel, where T. M. Wilson, father of the bride, performed the ceremony most impressively. The ushers were Mr. W. B. McCluney, of Montevallo, and Mr. Will Wilson, of Birmingham. Miss Sue Wilson, of Birmingham, cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor, and Mr. Pat McConaughy, of Montevallo, best man. Miss Sue Self, of Wilsonville, was the organist. The wedding party left immediately in carriages for Montevallo. The bride was gowned in a handsome gray cloth dress, with white satin, and carried a boquet of chrysanthemums. She is well known and beloved in this county, possessing the many beautful attributes that make up the womanly young woman. Mr. Bowden, the groom, was reared in this county and when quite a youth became an employee of H. C. & W. B. Reynolds; he was for several years the efficient and trusted head clerk of that firm; later he became a stockholder, and is now a partner in the Montevallo Furniture Co. His sterling business qualities and high christian character have won for him the best wishes of a host of friends, who congratulate him on the priceless jewel he has won for a life partner. The happy couple will reside at Montevallo, and are "at home" to their friends.

Rev. Mr. Wilson preached his farewell sermon on Sunday night, it being his last before the convening of conference.

Dr. J. H. Gann has moved up in town, and occupies the large two-story Wright house on Orchard Street.

Rev. A. E. Burns made a most impressive and appropriate talk to the students of the Calera High School on Monday.

Rev. Mr. Wilson and wife left Tuesday for Birmingham to attend conference.

Mr. Pattison, of Maplesville, an enterprising merchant of that place, was in town prospecting for a desirable location for business. He was very much impressed with the churches and High School of Calera.

Rev. J. P. Word, one of the most estimable citizens who ever resided in this county, has returned from Quitman, Ga., to take up permanent abode at Calera. He is welcomed by a host of friends.

D. W. Boyd, the fat ticket agent, has leased the Wagner residence, and with his father and mother will occupy the same.

Mr. Geo. Bradley, with his interesting little family, are keeping house in the Watson residence.

Joe Aldrich has built a handsome residence on South Street, and Mr. Day is putting the finishing touch of the painter's brush on same.

Calera High School has registered 102 pupils. Miss Parker, as principal, is a thorough success.

J. R. Hill left Sunday night for Mississippi in the interest of the Pratt Lumber Co.

Frank McCall, of the Montgomery Journal, passed through here Monday enroute to Montevallo.

Rev. Mr. Chastine preached Sunday and Sunday night at the Cumberland church.

There were eight accessions to the Methodist church on Sunday last. This, with the eight recent accessions to the Presbyterian church, shows a moving up in the right direction.

City Cotton Crop 6,000 Bales.

Hon. J. M. Kirk writes from Moravia, Texas, to the Schulenberg Sticker under date of April 19th last: "My farmer friends, look at every cotton platform as you pass by and you will see the present (square) bale standing on its head with from two to four great gaping wounds at the mercy of those who want to pilfer. The number of bales in Texas taken from the original runs up into the thousands. I remember during the session of the last legislature when the bill known as the Compress Bill was being discussed in the committee room a gentleman from Galveston, who was opposing the measure, in answer to a question asked by me (one of the committee) how many bales of cotton were made by the compresses in Galveston that were taken from the original bales compressed there. He answered, 'About six thousand bales.'" And yet there are those who decry the American Cotton Co's. Roundlap bale, from which there is not one ounce of waste and which reaches the mill exactly as it leaves the press.

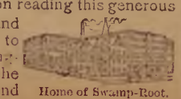
DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty cent and dollar sizes are sold by all good druggists.



Home of Swamp-Root.

They Should Know it.

Many women suffer untold agony and misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood. They have been led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for the many ills that beset womankind.

Neuralgia, nervousness, headache, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, rheumatism, a dragging pain or dull ache in the back, weakness or bearing-down sensation, profuse or scanty supply of urine with strong odor, frequent desire to pass it with scalding or burning sensation, sediment in it after standing in bottle or common glass for 24 hours are signs of kidney and bladder trouble.

The above symptoms are often attributed by the patient herself or by her physician to female weakness or womb trouble. Hence, so many fail to obtain relief, because they are treating, not the disease itself, but a reflection of the primary cause, which is kidney trouble.

In fact, women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same remedy.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is the great discovery of the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is easy to get at any drug store for 50 cents or $1.

To prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and book telling all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Kindly mention THE CHRONICLE, and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Flemish philologists have introduced a new term into their language. In Flemish an automobile is a snelpaardeloooszoondeerspoorwegpetroolrijtuig.

Several months ago a man attempted to put a mustard plaster on a horse. The man is nearly well now, but he wants $25,000 from the horse's owner. There is a veterinary moral in this item.

Chicago juries are continuing to give verdicts for large amounts to persons injured by street cars. One has just awarded $12,500 to a woman hurt by the car starting while she was attempting to alight. She sued for $40,000.

The connection between bees and silk may not be obvious to ordinary mortals, but Germany has an association called the Bienen und Seidenzucht Verein, which has existed fifty years and now has 6,135 members.

The Criminal Evidence Act, which allows defendants in criminal cases to give evidence on oath if they wish to do so, has now been in force for a year in England. Those who opposed this measure did so on the ground that the innocent prisoner in the witness box would "hang himself." The prediction does not seem to have been fulfilled.

Many weekly publications which have heretofore been designated as religious papers have shown a decided tendency to abandon religion as their distinctive feature and give place to a greater number and variety of secular topics for discussion and comment.

The white population of the Transvaal is about 250,000, or half that of Boston, with two important towns, one of more than 50,000, the other of less than 10,000 inhabitants. The annual revenue is $20,000,000 in round numbers, of which there is paid in salaries a little over $6,000,000. In 1886, the year of the discovery of the Rand goldfields, the salaries amounted to $250,000.

The latest estimate of the year's American corn crop is 2,000,000,000 bushels. This alone would give nearly 4½ pounds of food per day for a year to every one of our 70,000,000 people, men, women and children, while the utmost need of an adult is for three pounds a day.

According the Lewiston (Me.) Journal, Professor Carl Braun, of Bangor, is about to try the experiment of starting a silk worm farm. He is expecting a shipment of 150,000 eggs from Japan, the worms to be hatched from which will be fed on oak leaves. The attempt to raise silk in Maine has been tried before and with ill success, but it may be that this new venture will prove more successful.

It is a strange stroke of fate that has given two of the most distinguished regiments in the British army into the hands of an army of untrained yoemen. The Royal Irish Fusiliers, formerly known as the Eighty-seventh Royal Irish Fusiliers, was one of the two British regiments that captured the eagles of two French regiments. The Eighty-seventh performed that feat at Barrosa in Spain, The Gloucestershire, formerly the Twenty-eighth Foot, earned the privilege in the Peninsula war under Wellington in one of the battles when, with the rear rank faced about, it received a French charge from front and rear, of wearing a special badge on the back of their shakos, in addition to the usual ornament, with the number in front.

According to a dispatch from Baltimore a new method of making the dry goods store furnish free service to the public has been discovered, says the Dry Goods Economist. It appears that in the Monumental City young ladies visit the stores, accompanied by a friend with a kodak, try on rich and elaborate costumes, and after being "snapped" in this expensive attire leave with the time-honored remark, "Only looking to-day." The merchants are said to be contemplating a fixed rate of charges for the use of costumes for this purpose. Maybe we shall see ads. reading: "Lowest prices in the city for use of our imported gowns for photograph purposes." Or possibly the cloak and suit department may be required to loan some of its goods as a stimulus for the department store's photographic gallery.

Louis Windmuller in the November issue of the North American Review discusses the question of food products and food adulteration in an instructive manner. In the course of his remarks he says: We find that verdigris colors our pickles; that oil of vitriol is often substituted for acetic acid to acidify vinegar; in short that frauds by which unscrupulous persons try to enrich themselves at the expense of the ignorant poor are too numerous to mention here. Experts recently have testified before the Pure Food Investigating Committee of the United States Senate that a large portion of all articles of food and drink used in our country is adulterated. "They include butter and cheese, coffee and spices, molasses and honey. Fish and fowl, meat and vegetables are more wholesome fresh than preserved. Boracic acid generally used for preservation retards digestion, and prevents it when too much comes into a weak stomach. One of the worst impositions is the admixture of alum in the manufacture of yeast cakes and baking powders."

A Massachusetts law relative to non-support cases provides for the payment of the amount of the fine imposed on the husband to the wife, when the court so directs. Theoretically the law is a good one, in its recognition of justice both to the recreant husband and to the neglected family. But it fails often in practice. In many cases the complaining wife repents when she sees her husband in danger of jail detention for lack of ability to pay the fine imposed. Then she borrows the amount of the fine from some accommodating person and pays it to the court. Under the law the husband is then discharged and the wife receives back the money, with which she repays the loan. She is no poorer by the transaction, but gains nothing for support, and the farcical operation of the law leads to the early return to the court of the unwhipped and unreformed husband.

A very interesting instance of the working of conscience in the vegetable world is brought to the notice of Harper's Weekly by a correspondent in Eastport, Maine, who reports that a neighboring farmer of his acquaintance—Mr. Rice—in digging potatoes the other day, found one of an unusual shape. Examining it more closely, he discovered around its most contracted part a little gold ring ornamented by a pair of hearts. This ring, it seems, had been lost fifteen years before by the farmer's wife, whose supposition at the time had been that she lost it in a straw bed. The straw presumably found its way to the stable, thence to the manure-pile, and finally to the potato field. There it remained for years, until finally it attracted the attention of this intelligent and conscientious young potato, who devoted his life to its restitution to its lawful owner.

Keen and general interest will be felt in the party of Chicago University students who are soon to seek sociological information in the mountain regions of Kentucky. Beyond question the field is a rich one, and if the boys learn all there is to be learned there their wisdom will be most impressive, but we gravely suspect that their investigations will be brief and more exciting than productive. The Kentucky mountaineer knows and observes the laws of hospitality; coming for any other purpose—for any other, that is, except the collection of internal revenue—the students would be cordially received and generously entertained; but we are much mistaken if the hillmen do not resort to harsh measures the moment they discover that their visitors are noting down the sociological peculiarities of the native population. observes the New York Times. For that is something to try the patience of a saint, and the mountaineers are—not saints. The would-be student of Kentucky feuds should have a company of militiamen at his back, or, preferably, formed in a hollow square around him. Even then he would be none too safe.

Venango County is making a success in the application of a new Pennsylvania law permitting the public employment of short-term prisoners. It has experimented with the law for a month, and the net results are an eighth of a mile of rebuilt road, a new water-drain, and a wide-reaching moral effect, which lessens petty crime in the county and keeps the vagrants at a distance. Although the public working of the prisoners is distasteful to them, it is no hardship. In Venango County the men work from eight o'clock until four, with thirty minutes for dinner. They wear ordinary working clothes, furnished by the county, and retained by them after expiration of sentence. They eat as good food as the officers over them—being given meat three times a day, eggs, milk, butter, and other articles not usually found in a prison diet. They are in charge of a deputy who works as hard as they do, and who exercises no more authority than the average road-boss—very much less than some pipe-line contractors. This deputy is armed only with a revolver. His prisoners are not shackled in any way. While en route from jail to place of duty they straggle along in a crowd like other laborers, without semblance of marching order or lockstep. They pass through the town twice a day, yet hardly a dozen people know that they are prisoners.

The Death's Head Moth.

Butterflies may mean much in the way of auguries. The variegated ones, of bright coloring, are fortunate, especially if fluttering near the wayfarer. But the bronze butterfly, or moth, is not lucky. Of all the race, however, the most dreaded, as an augury is what is commonly known as the "death's head moth." This moth is a very large one, and, flying into cottage rooms, and making for the candle, often extinguishes it, which doubles the terror of omen. It is worth recalling to mind, in view of the gloomy auguries which in many places accompany this moth's appearance, the fear it excited in parts of Poland in 1824. It swarmed in the potatoe fields—these and jasmine plants being its favorite haunts—and at dusk into open cottage windows.

The noise peculiar to the moth became to the terrified peasantry a voice of anguish, and when it flew into the light and extinguished it they anticipated war, pestilence, hunger and death to man and beast; in fact, the wildest horror, as described in contemporary accounts, overspread in that year a very wide district. Even now, however, so many decades later, and in much less impressionable rural England, the aspect of the moth and its sound are seen and heard with dread. From the yellow and brown-tailed moths, too, similar, though less terrible, omens are deduced. Possibly the markings on the back of the death's head moth, which are sufficiently startling to a nervous person or invalid when unexpectedly seen, account in come degree for the ill omen which its appearance is deemed to be.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Vice Versa.

When Miss Caroline Hazard was installed President of Wellesley the other day, Dr. Hadley, of Yale, met President Eliot, of Harvard. "I hope you are coming to the inauguration at Yale," said Dr. Hadley.

"I expect to," replied President Eliot.

It suddenly occurred to President Hadley that as President Eliot had received his degree of LL.D. from Yale, the Harvard president might properly appear at the inauguration as a son of Yale, so he said: "I hope you will wear your hood of Yale blue."

President Eliot grasped the situation instantly. He remembered that President Hadley had received his degree of LL.D. from Harvard, and he said: "I'll wear my Yale-blue hood if you'll wear yours of Harvard crimson."

"Agreed," said President Hadley.

Soundings and divings are taking place near the island of Terschelling, in the north of Holland, at the spot where a French warship sunk just 100 years ago. She was loaded with silver and gold to the amount of 40,000,000 francs, or $8,000,000. The captain's log mentions the amount, and as early as 1800 French sailors succeeded in bringing to the surface a box containing 1,500,000 francs' worth of gold and silver ingots. In 1856 and 1860 a private undertaking succeeded in raising another 1,250,000 francs value. The warship sunk in 230 feet of water, and divers have great difficulty in working at such a depth. Dynamite is now being used to break up the iron cases.

NEW REPUBLIC FOUNDED.

Evolution of a South American No Man's Land.

A republic of 200,000 square miles (one and a half times the size of Great Britain and Ireland) has suddenly arisen in the heart of South America, writes a Buenos Ayres correspondent of the London Daily Mail. This is the republic of Acre, so called from the river of the same name (a tributary of the Amazon) which flows through it.

The circumstances which gave rise to this new state are somewhat novel. The territory of which the republic of Acre is composed has long been disputed by Bolivia and Brazil without being effectively occupied by either. It was a thinly peopled region, inhabited by less than 50,000 souls, who made a living principally by the collection of rubber, which grows wild in the forest in great abundance.

An adventurer named Rodriguez Aries took it into his head to proclaim himself president of this no-man's land. The new government was formally created, ministers of state appointed and the capital fixed at Antimairi, a small hamlet which is a depot for the shipment of rubber. The new state of Acre contains no large cities; indeed, it contains no town larger than a small village.

The new president is a man who has seen much of the world. He is a Spaniard, and was formerly a banker in his own country, then theatrical impresario in the United States, clerk of works in Paris, and merchant broker in Brazil, settling down later as a broker in Buenos Ayres, where he made the acquaintance of the gentlemen who today are his ministers.

The new government is no mere fiction, for it has caused no small consternation among the neighboring states. Bolivia in particular being concerned and about to send an armed force to cause her flag to be respected in the new republic.

The Argentine papers are full of accounts of Acre, some of them giving maps and illustrations.

The new president of Acre does not reckon upon raising a revenue by the sale of titles nor yet by the establishment of public gaming tables, methods which were adopted under like circumstances by Baron Harder Hickey, erstwhile monarch of the barren island of Trinidad, but expects to fill the public exchequer by levying export duties on rubber, which at present is the sole source of wealth of the country.

Whether the new republic of Acre will have a more lasting existence than the government of Trinidad remains to be seen.

COST OF THE DREYFUS CASE.

Amount Spent by His Family in Attempts at Vindication.

One feature of the Dreyfus case has not been fully touched upon—the exceedingly large sum of money which the Dreyfus family has been forced to spend. The trial of 1894 cost a very fair sum, limited chiefly, however, to lawyers' fees. The large outlay was caused by the efforts of the family to discover the real culprit after the departure of the unfortunate prisoner for Devil's Island. M. Mathieu Dreyfus employed two sets of detectives, and the family, of course, footed the bill in both instances.

This work went on for two or three years, until the discovery of the famous petit-blue designating Esterhazy as the culprit. Then came the expenses leading to a revision of the case, the lawyers and the memoirs and other documents which had to be published. But the deserved compensation given M. Mornard, M. Demange and M. Labori was not the only outlay which the Drefus family had to support at Rennes. As they lost their suit they had to pay all the witnesses, a round sum of nearly $10,000. Thus Dreyfus was placed in the curious position of paying the car fare and board bills of his deadliest enemies. It is estimated that up to the present more than $200,000 has been employed in this brave fight.

Atheism Encourages Suicide.

The figures taken from the official records of three Bohemian fraternal benefit societies, for periods of from three to five years, show that in every 1,000 deaths there were in the first 100 suicides, in the second 200 and in the third 333. The circular calls attention to the fact that along with this remarkable prevalence of suicide in these societies there exists a general infidelity, and argues that there is a connection of cause and effect between them.

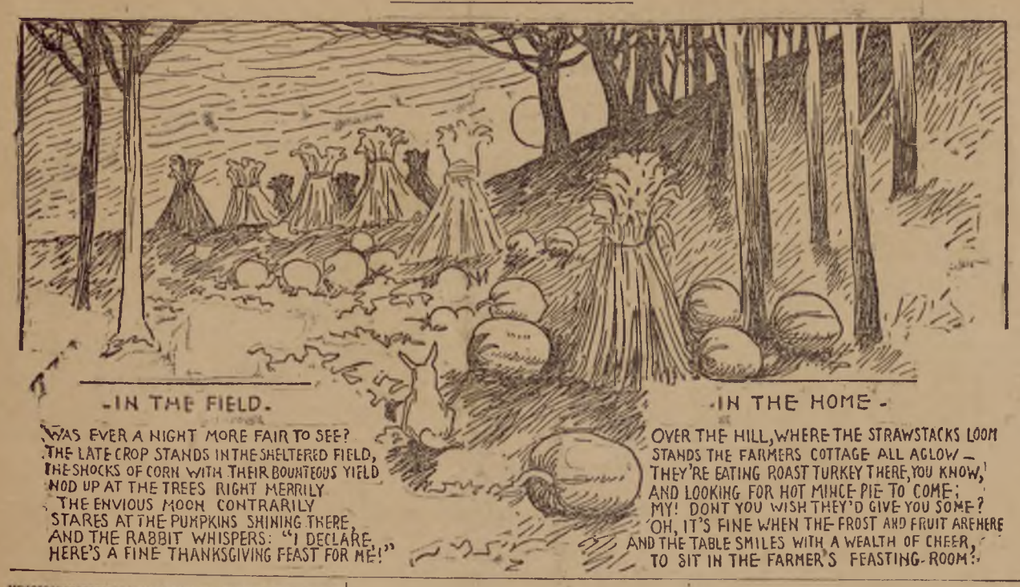
THANKSGIVING IN FIELD AND HOME.



-IN THE FIELD.
WAS EVER A NIGHT MORE FAIR TO SEE?
THE LATE CROP STANDS IN THE SHELTERED FIELD,
THE SHOCKS OF CORN WITH THEIR BOUNTEOUS YIELD
NOD UP AT THE TREES RIGHT MERRILY
THE ENVIOUS MOON CONTRARILY
STARES AT THE PUMPKINS SHINING THERE,
AND THE RABBIT WHISPERS: "I DECLARE HERE'S A FINE THANKSGIVING FEAST FOR ME!"
-IN THE HOME-
OVER THE HILL, WHERE THE STRAWSTACKS LOOM
STANDS THE FARMERS COTTAGE ALL AGLOW—
THEY'RE EATING ROAST TURKEY THERE, YOU KNOW, AND LOOKING FOR HOT MINCE PIE TO COME;
MY! DONT YOU WISH THEY'D GIVE YOU SOME?
OH, IT'S FINE WHEN THE FROST AND FRUIT ARE HERE AND THE TABLE SMILES WITH A WEALTH OF CHEER, TO SIT IN THE FARMER'S FEASTING-ROOM!

JAMIE'S DINNER.

BY COFFYN MOODY.

I.

IN sore perplexity Jamie Dugin stood on the platform of a little railroad station far out in the farming regions of New Jersey. He was a pale, thin little fellow of fourteen years, although he looked much younger than that. And he had come from New York in order to buy a turkey for Thanksgiving Day. Of course he could have purchased one in New York, but he had very little money—less than a dollar—and a big policeman had told him he could get a turkey very much cheaper on a farm than in a great city market.

Jamie lived with his mother and his sister Mary, and the baby Sunshine, in one of the great, high tenements on the East Side, where poor people have their homes, and where they crowd in such great numbers that they never yet have been counted. His father had been drowned at sea two years previous, and to make matters worse his mother was sick in a hospital, and there was nobody to take care of the little girls but himself. There was nobody else at the railroad station, but the conductor of the train had told him that a man named Peter kept a farm down the road, and that he sold turkeys and chickens.

It was a long walk, a very long walk, to Peter's farm, where the turkeys were kept, and Jamie's feet were blistered and sore by the time he arrived. Hardly had he walked in the front gate, however, when a great black dog, growling and snapping and showing his teeth, came bounding across the dooryard. Of course Jamie was frightened, and he climbed into the branches of an apple tree as quickly as if he were a monkey. The little boy, trembling with terror above in the branches, was so intently watching the dog that he did not notice the approach of a short, heavily built man with bushy hair and a thick, red beard, who kicked the dog until the poor animal howled with pain and slunk away. When the dog really had gone, however, Jamie was not so frightened, and he called out:

"Are you Mister Peter?"

"Yes, I am," the red-bearded man answered, looking up in the tree. Then he caught sight of the boy's torn clothing and old shoes, and he flew into a passion, shouting:

"Come out o' that, you young tramp! Git down here quick, or I'll tear the tree up by the roots and slam ye down!"

"Is—is this the way you treat all of your customers?"

"What's that?" said Peter.

"Is this the way you treat all of your customers? I came here to buy a turkey."

"Oh, you did?"

"Yes."

"More like to sneak in the house and steal something, you young villain. Anyhow, there ain't no turkeys for sale."

"Can't you let me have one?" asked the boy.

"No," said Peter.

Jamie slid down to the ground and stood silent for a moment, thinking deeply. Then he spoke again:

"Does that lake out there in the big field back of the trees belong to you?"

"Yes," said Peter; "but it ain't no lake—it's a duck pond."

"Well, if I can't buy a turkey, can I go fishin' there?"

"Fishin'!" roared Peter, throwing back his head and laughing until his face was redder than his beard. "Fishin' in the duck pond! Oh, dear, yes! You're welcome to all the fish you ketch there, and to all the turkeys that bite your bait, too!"

"Can I, really?" the boy asked again, and Peter replied:

"Yes, indeed!"

II.

Jamie went from the farm straight to a store near the railroad, where he bought six fishhooks and a long line and a bamboo rod. Then he purchased some crackers and cheese for supper, and before it was fairly dark he lay fast asleep in the haymow of a barn near by. Half an hour after he awoke next morning he was sitting in the branches of a tree on Peter's farm. He had cut the fishing line into five pieces, and on one end of each piece had fastened a hook baited, not with worm or grub, but with two or three kernels of corn. And the other ends of the five lines were tied hard and fast to the pole, the butt of which Jamie held firmly as he sat up there in the tree. Jamie happened to look far across the fields and saw Peter and his wife and his son drive off down the road before he had dared to try his plan. They were taking the black dog with them, too, and nobody was left at home.

There was a sudden tug at his pole, so heavy that he was almost pulled out of the tree. Then there was another and another, until three turkeys and two chickens were squawking and flapping around on the ground, as if they had suddenly gone crazy—for in swallowing a kernel of corn each one of them had swallowed a fishhook. Jamie improved the opportunity to slide down to the ground, still holding fast to his pole. Then he wrung the neck of one fowl after another and tied them together, and, putting the heavy weight on his back, started for the nearest railroad station as fast as he could go.

It was not very long after this that a carriage pulled by two splendid bay horses came down the road from the opposite direction. A coachman sat on the box, and within the carriage was a lady dressed in black, which made the gray streaks in her hair look almost white. Her right hand held a single white rosebud. She had just placed others on a little grave. Her only child—her boy with golden hair and blue eyes—had been laid to rest the day before Thanksgiving of the preceding year.

Suddenly her carriage stopped with such force that the horses reared, and she heard her coachman cry out:

"Quit, Peter! Leave him alone!"

The lady hurriedly looked out of her carriage and saw the chickens and turkeys lying near the wheels. Yonder a red-bearded man—his face bloodshot with rage, his lips moving involuntarily, his great hands working nervously—stooped toward the road, where lay a thin, pale, little lad, ragged, dirty, motionless; his eyes were closed, his face was white, and above his left temple was a mark getting more and more purplish.

All this the lady saw in a single instant. Then she sprang from her carriage, and with one bound was by the boy's side. Her hand quickly tore open his coat and shirt and felt his heart beating.

"He's alive," she said quietly, looking up into the man's face, as he straightened and trembled under her steady gaze. "So it's probably a long term in the penitentiary you will get instead of being executed. I will inform my husband, the Judge, when he returns home this evening."

Peter, for he was the man, shivered and choked as he tried to reply. But the Judge's wife spoke first.

"Quick!" she commanded, "lift the child into my carriage, and lay him on the rear seat where I can steady him!"

III.

When Jamie opened his eyes he was somewhat surprised, for he lay on a couch in a room filled with sunshine and pictures and curtains, and a beautiful lady was sitting beside him, while two other ladies (only they wore white caps and spotless cuffs) were doing this and that about the room. The boy's head was still somewhat dizzy from Peter's cruel blow, so the beautiful lady only smiled when he said faintly, and asked anxiously:

"Where are they? Where are the turkeys an' chickens? Oh, Mary and Baby Sunshine won't have no Thanksgiving after all!"

Weak and half sick, Jamie sank to the couch, and buried his head so the beautiful lady wouldn't see him "crying tears down his cheeks," as he would have said. The beautiful lady stroked his hair with her soft, white hand, and spoke to him soothingly, so pretty soon he ceased sobbing, and told her all about himself, and about Mary and Baby Sunshine waiting for their Thanksgiving dinner, and about his mother sick in the hospital uptown.

Now, the beautiful lady was a very wise lady, and almost before Jamie had finished she had ordered her carriage in haste. Then she directed one of the maid servants to make ready to start with her at once for New York, and she ordered a man to accompany them.

When they stepped out of the ferry-house in New York Jamie and the beautiful lady and the maid stepped inside a carriage, while the man sat outside next to the coachman, and thus they were driven to the tenement in Eldridge street, where Mary and Baby Sunshine were waiting. Soon after, the children sat down to such a meal as the children had not eaten for a long time. Before they had finished the lady had found out just where Jamie's mother was, and she wrote her a letter saying she was going to take the little folks out to her home that night to spend Thanksgiving Day and would bring them in town to see her at the hospital the day following.

She did all this, and more, too, for Mrs. Dugin grew strong and well in a few weeks, and as she had been a fine butter-maker in England before she married her sailor husband the beautiful lady took her out to New Jersey and gave her a little cottage to live in on one part of her great estate. During the summer Jamie helps take care of the poultry there, but in the winter he and Mary attend the school which the beautiful lady has started for the children of her tenants. And you may be sure that they and Little Sunshine are having a much happier Thanksgiving week this year than last.

Thanksgiving Celebration Programme.

How may Thanksgiving be celebrated? We will suggest a very simple programme. It may be improved by the leader of the exercise. First—Song, "The Breaking Waves Dashed High." (Mrs. Hemans' words to the music of her sister, Miss Browne) (Mrs. Arkwright). (Quartet or chorus.) Second—Prayer. Third—Reading of the compact on the Mayflower. Fourth—Song, Keller's "American Hymn." Fifth—Reading, "That Gray, Cold Christmas Day," December 25, 1620.

Roast Turkey of Auld Lang Syne.

In the early days, when the "great store of wilde fowle" was the Indian contribution to the festival of Thanksgiving, roasting was not baking, as it is now. Over a big fireplace, such as the first settlers built to accommodate the huge logs the virgin forest supplied, was driven a great nail, or spike, from which the turkey was suspended by a string. A stick with a notched end was placed against the mantel front and the string held in the notch. Careful adjustment of stick and string kept the turkey at the proper distance from the fire. Underneath was placed a great iron pan to catch the juicy fat that dripped during the roasting. An occasional twist of the string kept the turkey slowly spinning, so that all parts received equal heat. Slices of salt pork slowly frizzling below in the dripping pan furnished a rich fluid for the basting, which was a constant process. In the general rejoicings where so many whites and Indians indulged in prolonged Thanksgiving feasting the venison and turkeys were roasted in the open at temporary fireplaces built of massive logs.

After Thanksgiving.

In what spirit do we take up the activities of life after Thanksgiving Day, so widely observed throughout the nation? Have our minds been awakened to a new sense of obligation to the Giver of all blessings? Has this new experience resulted in a more complete surrender of self to Him? Has it induced a full recognition of His innumerable gifts? Is the determination greater than ever before to honor Him with our lips and in the use of all our powers? In a word, do we enter upon our lifework with higher aims and with a deeper conviction that all we now are or ever expect to be is through the infinite love of Him "with whom there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning?"

Thanksgiving Memories.

"My mother always had a generous 'boiled dish'—all kinds of vegetables and a fowl boiled," says a New England matron. "It always graced the dinner table in an important place in a big pewter platter, though generally there was little of it eaten, but mother said she always wanted something in the house to live on the rest of the week. Before cooking stoves invaded the land all the cooking was done by the fireplace, with a dish below to catch the drip, and the twisting cord caused the browning of all sides of the bird. Even after the stove appeared in the kitchen the tin kitchen did Thanksgiving duty by the open fire in the foreroom."

A Patriotic Observance.

This season the national colors will be abundantly used on Thanksgiving Day. A caterer says that all his warmoulds for ices will be in demand on Thanksgiving Day, particularly the American eagle rampant. This seems to be a favorite device, and the frozen cream in this form with a tiny flag thrust into the head of the eagle, is invariably greeted with enthusiasm. It must not be forgotten, however, that the waving of the stars and stripes this autumn means anguish to some bereft hearts. If any such are to gather with the family about the Thanksgiving board, it will be a kindly forethought to omit the warlike decorations.

A Thanksgiving Pumpkin Pie.

Cut a slice off the top of a large pumpkin, scrape out the inside, and when dry fill the pumpkin shell with bran or fine sawdust. Wrap in paper a number of trifling gifts, as many as there are children to be entertained. Tie each packet with yellow ribbon, having one long end terminated in a bow. Bury the packages in the bran, arranging the bows on the surface. Each child or person present chooses a bow and draws out the gift attached to it.

Artistic Decorations.

A judicious use of the homely vegetables is admissible in decorating the Thanksgiving board, and can often be made artistic. Golden ears of corn, small squashes, carrots, and other vegetables may be levied upon to supplement the centre-piece of fruits and leaves.

A Young Pessimist.

"I wish, my dear, you would try to be a better child." "What's the use? We've all got to roast, anyway."

REBELS' POWER IS CRUSHED

Gen. Otis Reports That the Fight Is Whipped.

INSURGENTS SCATTERED

Part of Aguinaldo's Cabinet Are Prisoners and Others, Including the Chief, Are In Hiding.

A Washington special says: General Otis summarizes the situation in Luzon in a dispatch to the war department Friday in which he says that the insurgent government can no longer claim to exist, its troops and officials are scattered and Aguinaldo in hiding. The dispatch follows:

"MANILA, November 24—Claim to government by insurgents can be made no longer under any fiction; its treasurer, secretary of interior and president of congress in our hands; its president and remaining cabinet officers are in hiding, evidently in different central Luzon provinces; its generals and troops in small bands scattered through these provinces acting as banditti or dispersed playing the role of 'amigos,' with arms concealed.

"Indications are that Aguinaldo did not escape through the lines of Lawton or Wheaton, but fled westward from Bayambang railway station. Telegraphic communication to Dagupan established, probably to San Fabian today; by relaying nine miles of track with material at hand, railway communication to that point re-established; labor of troops must attend maintenance."

Fuller details of the sharp engagement between Carpenter and the insurgents in Iloilo reached the war department Friday in the following dispatch from General Otis dated Manila:

"In Panay, 21st instant, when Dickman drove enemy in vicinity of Jaro, Carpenter, with two battalions of the Eighteenth infantry and Bridgeman's battery, had severe engagement at Pavia, north of Iloilo. His casualties were five killed, twenty wounded, now in Iloilo hospital; others, slightly wounded, with command. Enemy driven northwest; reported very heavy loss. Particulars not received. Carpenter passed on to insurgent's stronghold, Santa Barbara, which he captured on the 22nd instant without loss. Nothing received from column under the immediate command of Hughes, which is moving rapidly and operating north and west of Santa Barbara. Apparently the Visayans are friendly, not taking active part; enemy consists of 2,000 Tagalos."

A later dispatch from General Otis gives the result of the fighting at Iloilo as follows:

"Hughes, Iloilo, reports enemy driven back into mountains; insurgent capital, Cobatuan, captured. Only serious action that of Carpenter at Pavia; total casualties five killed, or since dead of wounds; twenty-seven wounded; captured ten prisoners, eighteen cannon, six rifles, quantities of ammunition. Enemy's casualties not stated."

BOER LOSSES HEAVY.

Killed Estimated at Heavy Figure and Many Wounded.

Unconfirmed reports continue to arrive at Cape Town to the effect that General White recently caught the Boers in a trap at Ladysmith, inducing detachments of the beleaguering force to venture into the open country, when sortie parties from the British camp captured them.

Late arrivals from Pretoria estimate the Boer casualties at 1,000 men, half of whom were killed. They also say the race course there is being prepared for a laager, in the event of a siege, and the guns of the fort are trained on it in case the prisoners attempt to escape.

From President Kruger down, every one is in favor of fighting. They believe they will succeed in annexing all the beleaguered towns. The flag of the united republic, now ready, bears the orange cross.

CALL CHARGES UNFAIRNESS.

Alleges That Standard Oil Company Helped to Elect Taliaferro.

A Washington dispatch says: Former Senator Call, of Florida, has prepared a statment for presentation to the senate committee on privileges and elections, asking that the manner of the election of Senator-elect Taliaferro, of Florida, be investigated.

He charges that undue means were used to secure Mr. Taliaferro's election, and asks that he be not seated. He asserts that the election was due to the unfair influence of the Standard Oil Company, which, he says, used money to accomplish its purpose.

AGENT FROM LIVERPOOL

Visits Cotton States On a Still Hunt For the Truth.

F. P. Maxwell, of the firm of Maxwell & Jones, oil cake and general merchants of Liverpool, is among the visitors to New Orleans for the purpose of investigating the cotton estimates. He is one of a dozen English and German merchants, who, doubting the truth of the cotton reports circulated in Liverpool, Bremen and Hamburg, have come to investigate.

REBELS CHANGE FIGHTING TACTICS

They Will Now Resort to a Vigorous Guerrilla Warfare.

ARE BADLY SCATTERED.

Friendly Filipinos Murdered For Showing Loyaly to Americans.

A Manila special under date of Nov. 26, stated that the last Filipino council of war was held by the retreating leaders at Bayambang on November 13th in the house now occupied by General MacArthur. It was attended by Aguinaldo, Pio del Pilar, Garcia, Alejandriona and some members of the so-called cabinet.

Information has reached General MacArthur from several sources to the effect that the council recognized the futility of attempting further resistance to the Americans with united forces, and agreed that the Filipino treoss should scatter and should hereafter follow guerrilla methods.

Reports of ambuscades and skirmishes come from every section of the country along the railroads. Those districts seem to be filled with small bands. Saturday four men of company D, Ninth infantry, were foraging beyond Bambau, when twenty Filipinos took them in ambush, killing one and capturing the other three. The Americans resisted for half an hour, the firing being heard at Bamban.

Lieutenant Frazer, with a squad, followed the retreating Filipinos several miles. The Americans found the bodies of several American soldiers. They burned the hamlet where the fight took place.

Three Filipino riflemen ambushed an American surgeon near Capas. He shot one and the others fled. Between Bamban and Angeles a mule train was fired upon by the insurgents and a Spaniard, a former prisoner of the Filipinos, who was with the train, was shot.

Friendly Filipinos Murdered.

At Malasiqqui, the officials who welcomed the Americans were murdered. This was the only railroad town which the Americans did not garrison, and on the night the troops withdrew a band of insurgents entered, dragged Antonio Mejia, president of the town, into the street and cut his throat. The murderers then assassinated the vice president and five members of the town council in the same manner and told the frightened natives who witnessed the slaughter to spread the news that a similar fate awaited all friends of the Americans.

MILES VISITS ATLANTA.

General Inspects Fort McPherson and Is Well Pleased.

General Nelson A. Miles, commander of the army of the United States, and his party, spent the day Saturday in Atlanta, Ga., and left at 11:50 o'clock, p. m. for Washington.

The party arrived from New Orleans Friday night, and early Saturday morning, during the steady downpour of rain, General Miles drove out to the post at McPherson.

He spent only a short time at the fort, looking about the grounds in company with several of the officers stationed there, and returned to the city nearly an hour before noon. While at the post he questioned those in authority as to the number of men, equipment and general health at the post and seemed to be pleased with both what he saw and heard.

DESTRUCTION OF MAINE

Again Brought to Public Attention Through Secret Investigation.

Some interest has been created in official circles at Washington, particularly among naval officers, by the publication of the results of what purported to be a secret investigation regarding the destruction of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor, which the story said, was blown up by gun cotton torpedoes planted in the bay for that purpose.

Diligent inquiry, however, fails to show that any official investigation has been made at the direction of the Washington authorities, although it is suggested that the officials at Havana have discretionary powers to make an investigation should they see fit.

PROTEST AGAINST ROBERTS.

Anti-Polygamy Resolution Adopted By Alabama Presbyterian Synod.

Before the Presbyterian synod of Alabama adjourned finally at Birmingham the past week the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That the synod emphatically condemns polygamy in all places, high and low, and expresses sympathy with all proper and lawful efforts to prevent the sitting in our national congress of any one who is himself a polygamist in politics and a defender of that system, and that our state clerk place a copy of this action in the hands of our representatives from Alabama."

MILLER LEVANTED.

Authorities Fail to Arrest Franklin Syndicate President.

A New York dispatch of Monday says: William F. Miller and his secretary and chief boomer, Cecil Leslie, of the Brooklyn syndicate, the 10 per cent a week concern of Brooklyn, have not been arrested. The entensive operations of the Franklin Syndicate and exhaustless credulity of the American people are shown by the number of dividend drafts which are held by the different city banks.

VICE PRESIDENT LAID TO REST

Funeral Services at Paterson Largely Attended.

ALL PARTIES PRESENT.

President McKinley and Cabinett Officers Were Deeply Affected--City Was In Mourning.

With the impressive religious services of the Presbyterian church, and with the dignity due to his high office, all that is mortal of the vice president, Garret A. Hobart, was committed to the earth at Paterson, New Jersey, Saturday afternoon. The president, Secretary of State John Hay, Chief Justice Fuller, former Vice President Levi P. Morton, former Secretary of War Alger, Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock, the supreme court justices, members of the senate, members of congress and the vice president's personal friends filled the beautiful Church of the Redeemer, and with moistened eyes and bowed heads testified intensely and eloquently as to his worth as a statesman, friend and neighbor.

The chief magistrate of the country bowed his head in his hand. He was visibly agitated. There was scarcely a dry cheek in the crowded edifice, and the widow was apparently the most composed.

The city wore its most somber garb in mourning. All the mills, big business houses and stores were closed.

All the pomp of an official pageant, which was omitted in deference to the wishes of the deceased, could not have equaled in impressiveness the scene in the church.

The imposing and solemn strains of Chopin's funeral march filled the edifice with its solemn melody as the casket was borne up the aisle on the shoulders of the stalwart members of the capitol police and placed upon the bier prepared for it in front of the pulpit. Following it came the pallbearers, members of the senate. Following them came the family, the widow and her son, President McKinley, the government dignitaries and intimate friends. They all sat close around the casket. On every side of it the floral offerings were banked in a wreath of beauty and color.

The funeral services were opened by Rev. Charles R. Shaw, who read a portion of the ninth psalm, verses 1-6 and 10-12. This was followed by a selection from Job 14, verses 1-11, and 7-12, and concluded by a reading from the xvth chapter of Corinthians i. After a prayer sixty male voices filled the church with the beautiful melody of "Nearer My God to Thee."

After the sermon, in which the business, statesmanlike and social qualities of the deceased were extolled, Dr. Magie pronounced the benediction, and in the same order that it arrived the funeral procession left the church. Through a long lane of thousands of uncovered heads the cortege wended its way to Cedar Lawn cemetery, where the body was placed in the receiving vault.

Service At the House.

The service at the house was brief and simple. It was held in the library, which was banked with flowers sent by friends of the dead vice president. Mrs. Hobart, with her son, Garrett A. Hobart, Jr., sat near the head of the casket, while near her were grouped the president and his cabinet, judges of the supreme court, the honorary pallbearers and the immediate friends of the family and family servants. The Rev. David D. Magie offered prayer and read a passage of scripture. The president, cabinet and supreme court judges and those present took a last look at the face of the dead, the casket was closed and all that was mortal of Vice President Hobart was carried out to the hearse and thence to the church.

There were never gathered in New Jersey, and seldom in any part of the United States, so many mourners of eminence in the nation. They represented distinct stages of our national life, combining the history of tremendous civil strife, now buried with the marvelous record of progress following the days of Lincoln, and marking the epochs that came with the lamented Garfield and the living President McKinley. In the throng were senators from states that were territories before the war and for years after. There were Hoar, of Massachusetts, representing the old, and Beveridge, of Indiana, representing the new in national life. There were John W. Daniel, of Virginia, representing the confederate soldier, and Hawley, of Connecticut, standing as a type of the Union veteran, each of them mourning the loss of their presiding officer.

BOERS WERE SURPRISED.

They Claim For Once the British Red Coats Whipped Them.

A special dispatch received at London from Belmont says that General Methuen's force numbered 1,000 men and that the Boers had 5,000 men.

The engagement was really a series of battles, during which the Boers were constantly carrying off ther dead and wounded. The Boers say that the attack was a surprise and that it is the only beating they have had.

THE CHRONICLE.

F. W. GIST, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

THE State of Alabama doesn't owe Senator Morgan anything—it owes it to itself and its people to keep him in the Senate because he excels any of his opponents in ability, experience and honesty of purpose.

SENATOR Morgan declares himself in favor of disfranchising the negro—the only thing that will prevent ballot-box stuffing in the black belt and secure genuine white supremacy in the white counties. Now we will see how many men in the Populist party really want honest elections and white rule.

THE Populist conference the other day did not disband the State organization of that party, but left it to the county committees to say whether they will go into the Democratic primaries to help Johnston. A certain element in this county are pledged to do this, and will make an effort to lead the party into that position. Another element is opposed to having anything to do with the Senatorial fight, and will not go into the scheme. It remains to be seen which is the stronger element, and there will likely be some lively scrapping over the matter.

IT seems to us that Treasurer Fitts, of the University Board, has run the Governor up a tree. The Governor asserted that it was impracticable and impossible to lease the University lands. Treasurer Fitts proves by the records that a lease was arranged that would have netted an income of $3,000 a year for the very landse which have been sold, and that the Governor prevented the consummation of that lease. Other testimony is offered to show that the Governor is personally connected with the company that purchased the lands. If the Governor gets the University alumni against him he had as well go to.

The Populist who would black himself in such miserable disgrace as to even mention the disbanding of his party should not receive the merit of the slightest respect. We are not at all suspicious that the trusted leaders of the party would think of such a thing, but should such an intimation be breathed by a pretended Populist, then the true men should brand him as a sneaking traitor.—The Advocate.

That is pretty hard language to use against the "trusted leaders." At the conference the other day Sam Adams and Lewis Reynolds, of Chilton; A. T. Goodwin, of Elmore; G. B. Deans, of Shelby, and others certainly put themselves under the ban of The Advocate's wrath. Judge Longshore did not get in on time, but we are afraid he is in the class by intention. We are afraid our neighbor will find more "sneaking traitors" than it can say grace over.

CANDIDATE Johnston and his followers say they want white supremacy, and want the negro vote limited and regulated, but they are not in favor of disfranchising the negro. In other words they are afraid not to be for white rule, and they are afraid to make the negro voters mad by favoring their disfranchisement. This is the position of political cowards. They are also very afraid of encroaching upon the Federal Constitution, but they suggest no way by which the negro vote can be limited without limiting the white vote. They either want to continue ballot-box stuffing, or else they want to bar the ignorant whites. In truth they don't know what they want except office, and they are afraid to take any position that will interfere with their main desires.

IN his speeches Governor Johnston declared that we have white supremacy, and that so long as that is not endangered there is no need for disfranchising the negro. We deny his assertion. In our county the conditions disprove it. White supremacy does not consist alone in having white officers in a county. Where the negroes control nominations and elections there is not white supremacy. In this county we have four officers who were nominated by negro conventions, and one other at least who did not receive a majority of the white vote cast. If this is the kind of white rule that Governor Johnston believes in we beg to be excused. It doesn't suit the Democrats of this county, and a large proportion of Populists do not like it, as they showed by staying at home last election. As long as the negro is to have a vote, so long will it be influenced by money by the privilege of dictating nominations, or it will be stolen. Nobody knows that better than Governor Johnston.

Harpersville.

Winter rains have set in.
Look out for counterfeit money.
Cotton has about all been picked.
Sheriff Norris was here Saturday.
There is but very little sickness around Harpersville.

Mr. Mack Seale, one of the best citizens of the county, died at his home on Kelley's creek last week.

J. P. Rowe has sold his interest in the store here to M. W. Borum, who will continue to sell goods at the same old stand.

Assessor Pitts and Collector Robertson were here last Saturday looking after the tax-payers.

Clem Butler had the misfortune to get a dry kiln of lumber burned up a few nights ago; loss $550.

Thomas Borum, of Talladega county, has moved here, and can now be found in the store of M. W. Borum.

Mrs. Walthall was buried at the Wallace family burying ground Sunday. She was an estimable lady, loved and respected by all who knew her for her many traits of womanly character. To the bereaved ones we extend our sympathy.

A few of our farmers, with the agents, railroad companies and syndicate companies are trying for a stock law again in this beat. The majority of the farmers don't want and will use all honorable means to defeat it.

We spent last Friday at the growing, booming town of Vincent, in the interest of THE CHRONICLE, and was really surprised to see the amount of business done there. Vincent has seven stores, one drug store, two churches, two gins, two mills, one blacksmith and wood shop, one hotel, one livery stable, and one of the best schools in the county. THE CHRONICLE has a large list of subscribers there, and no better democrats can be found in the State than there is at Vincent.

Six have already announced for Governor and only one is needed. The man chosen must be the best of them all, the one who can do the most good for the State and its people, not only within its borders, but who may extend its influence beyond its limits. While they may all be good men, let us have the best. So far Col. Sanford is my choice, and unless some one is "trotted" out better than I think he is he will get my vote. JAKE.

Geo. Austin, a negro brakeman on the Southern Railway, fell between the couplings of a train last Saturday and one limb was run over. Dr. Gunn was summoned and amputated the leg, and he is doing well.

The Methodist and Presbyterian juvenile societies are doing a splendid work. The Presbyterian juveniles have raised more than $10 for their library in the past seven weeks. This society will entertain the public at the Presbyterian church Thanksgiving evening. Let everybody attend and encourage the little ones.

Rev. W. I. Sinnott will preach the Thanksgiving sermon Thursday at the Presbyterian church.

Every store in town is crowded this week with shoppers.

Pratt Lumber Co. will move their saw mill in a few days to Biloxi, Miss.

Miss Emma Hines is visiting friends in Attalla and Anniston.

C. L. O'Neal, J. B. Adams and J. R. Hill attended the lime meeting at Chattanooga Saturday. Mr. Sperry, of Baltimore, the millionare who is backing the Consolidated Lime Company, and Mr. Baldwin, of Montgomery, who will be president of said company, were in attendance. The Shelby lime men were very favorably impressed with Mr. Sperry, and if he is inclined to "tote fair" he will find no trouble in making a deal with the manufacturers here.

Major W. D. Huggins, who has been confined to his room by illness, is again at his office dispensing business.

N. J. Pilgreen is in Selma, with a view to locating there.

Shelby.

The Shelby Iron Company has been shipping iron of late while still warm from the furnace. The old stock is low and would soon be cleared from the yard if cars could be obtained for shipment.

Our merchants report a large increase in business. The farmers appear to be in a prosperous condition, and are purchasing more heavily than usual this fall.

Santa Claus seems to have established a branch shop in Shelby. Our merchants are already beginning to bring out an unusually attractive display of holiday goods.

Clarence Abbett has been added to the force of clerks at the Company's store. Allie Smith at Averyt & Averyt's, and Abe Harrell at A. H. Averyt's.

Miss Kittie Averyt, who taught in Troy Normal College last year, began as assistant in our public school last Monday.

Teacher Dowell, principal of our school, is radiant—it's a boy and weighs thirteen pounds.

Mr. Rhodes, formerly of Columbiana, who has been in ill health for some time, is still in a serious condition.

Our entire community has been glad to learn that Mrs. Arnold Sturdevant, who has been critically ill, is in a convalescent condition.

The cordial relations existing among the churches of our town had further illustration last Sunday night when Rev. A. T. Clarke conducted services in the Baptist church. One candidate for church membership was baptized by immersion.

Thanksgiving services will be held next Thursday morning in the house of worship of the Covenant Congregational church.

The lad, A. T. Harvey Clarke, in his eighth year, has been about town soliciting subscribers for "his grandpa's paper." We are informed that in the town from which he came, in his seventh year, he made up a good sized purse from his profits as a newsboy selling daily papers, and thus obtained a handsome bicycle.

Those wedding bells—can you not hear them? The most popular knot now is not not but "yes"—it's the knot that sets the bells a-ringing.

Attorney John C. Eyster, of Decatur, was in the city yesterday. He states that the Eighth district is practically solid for Morgan.

Dr. J. M. Lovett, representing the firm of Lovett Bros., Dentists, Bessemer, will be at Columbiana December 4 to 9. First-class work—charges reasonable.

"Appropriate Judge," was the address upon a letter received by the probate judge last Sunday. The writer of the epistle was evidently one of those persons who believes in absolute precision in all things.

G. E. Brasher, of Vandiver, is attending court this week, and while here came into see us, bringing two new subscriptions. Jake, of Harpersville, sends five, and from another source fifteen come rolling in; which all goes to prove that THE CHRONICLE readers are the cleverest of people.

The postoffice at this place was closed last Saturday afternoon between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock, through respect to the memory of the late Vice-president Hobart, whose funeral occurred during those hours.

The White House received a new boarder Friday last, a young lady, but her name was not placed on the general register. Instead she will make that hostelry her future home and will take the family name also.

W. G. Parker has placed a large part of the property to the rear of his residence on Main street inside of a picket fence. He has made considerable improvements about the place since the transfer.

W. B. Hubbard, of Texas, was in the city last week and this. He conducts a general mercantile business on the line of Texas and Mexico, doing a greater part of his business with the natives of the latter country. He speaks Spanish well, and says a negro would be a curiosity where he lives.

A petition for divorce was filed this week by Lillian A. Pratt, pro ami W. F. Aldrich, against John W. Pratt. Dr. Pratt a few years ago married Miss Lillian Aldrich, the adopted daughter of Hon. W. F. Aldrich. In November, 1897, he left for the Klondike, and has not been heard of in some time. The petition sets out desertion as a ground for divorce and was filed by Attorney J. H. Parsons. Mrs. Pratt is at present in Washington City with her adopted parents.

The sheriff received a telegram Saturday from W. E. Brinkerhoff, of the Montevallo Coal and Railway Co., stating that the miners at Dogwood had instituted a strike, and to send aid in keeping them down. Mr. Norris with P. G. Trent went over to the scene, but found the miners quiet and the situation not threatening. Their services were not needed, and they returned, leaving the men to settle their disputes among themselves.

A telegram was received here a short while ago from the authorities in St. Louis, Mo., saying that L. T. Grant was in custody at that place and could be furnished the officers here if wanted. As no one here cared to make direct charges against Mr. Grant requisition for him was not made. He will be remembered as the deputy sheriff under W. R. Carter during the latter's administration as sheriff, about eight or ten years ago. He made a good officer doubtless, but there was plenty of nasty talk about him previous to his departure, and when he left the city a very bad name was likewise left. Considerable wrongdoing committed during his residence at this place was attributed to Mr. Grant by parties who had suffered, but no direct charges were made.

By the time you have reached this little notice you will have seen and read the large display advertisement of Loveman, Joseph & Loeb, of Birmingham. This firm is too well known in this section to require an indorsement on our part, and is recognized the State over as standing foremost among the many department stores of its character in the South. It is strictly modern in all its equipments, and everything is carried that the people want. Parties visiting Birmingham would find it to their advantage to give them a call.

Mrs. Jackson, on Main street, has quite a curiosity in the way of an orange tree. The tree, or bush, which is only about eighteen inches high, contains more than ninety oranges, and this is the second year it has produced fruit, it containing less than a half dozen last year. The oranges are about the size of a lemon, are like the tropical fruit in appearance, are well developed and have an excellent taste. They are just beginning to ripen.

Rev. S. N. Burns, pastor of the Methodist church, goes to Harpersville for the next year. He has labored with the people of this city for two years, and has won many good opinions for himself and family. He is one of the strongest ministers that has filled the pulpit in the church at this place for many years, and will be given up with some reluctance by the members of his church, as well as by others of the city. The well-wishes of the community will go with him to his new field of labor.

Rev. T. P. Roberts, now stationed at Easonville, is to be pastor of the Methodist church at this place, and of the circuit, for the next conference year. When the year is completed Mr. Roberts will have been the paster at this place, from time to time, for eleven years. The time limit for a minister's stay is four years, but he has served that time here twice, and with two more years to his credit. The larger part of his family reside here, and a hearty welcome will no doubt be given him by all the people.

Price, McCormick & Co., of New York, one of the largest cotton brokerage firms in the country, are sending out each week telegrams received from different sections of the cotton States about the condition of the cotton crop. The general estimates indicate that the crop will not exceed nine million bales, and some think it will hardly reach that mark. The farmers in either event will have received a fair price for the fleecy staple and everything points to something better next year.

"BILL RAISER" CAUGHT.

Uncle Sam's Agent Brings Grief to an Artist.

The following from the Age-Herald gives the main facts concerning an arrest made in this county last week:

"A young man giving the name of C. H. Burroughs was before United States Commissioner Cornish yesterday on the charge of "raising" the value of bills and then attempting to pass them.

"It seems that Burroughs, not content with the face value of greenbacks as issued by Uncle Sam, sought to improve on the latter's method, and by his operations has come to grief.

"He was arrested in Shelby County by Secret Service Agent E. P. McAdams, and pleaded guilty when arraigned of attempting to pass a bill raised to $20 and also to having a raised $10 bill in his possession.

"Burroughs is charged with attempting to pass a raised $20 bill at a store in Vincent, Ala. He was located in Shelby County by Agent McAdams and subsequently arrested. On his person when apprehended was found one $2 bill raised to $20; one $1 bill raised to $10, and one $2 bill raised to $10.

"The work of raising the bills was poorly executed; any experienced person being able at a glance to detect the fraud. He was bound over under $1,000 bond to await the action of the grand jury."

Deputy Sheriff Norris went out with the government officer and helped to make the arrest. Burroughs was found at his father's house, and confessed his crime when arrested. He has lived in the neighborhood of Harpersville for several years.

Death of Mrs. Walthall.

On November 24 at 4 p. m. Mrs. Annie Walthall died at the residence of Mr. J. R. Beavers, of this place. She had been ill for more than twelve months, and was brought here from the Wilson & Brown Infirmary, of Birmingham, where the utmost skill had been exhausted for her recovery. She grew rapidly worse after she arrived here, and died last Friday. She was the wife of Capt. J. L. Walthall, sheriff of this county. Her husband and eight children were with her at the last dark hour, and they with a host of relatives and friends mourn her loss. Her christian fortitude never forsook her, and she died strong in the faith that saves to eternity. Her remains were interred at Harpersville, which was her home for many years. The bereaved family have the sympathy of all in their sad loss.

In view of the demise of our esteemed and worthy brother, J. P. Givhan, the Shelby County Medical Society will hold its next meeting at Calera on Tuesday, the 5th day of December next. In connection with the usual monthly exercises, there will be given a biographical sketch of the deceased brother by a member of the society; and tributes of respect may be pronounced by others who may wish to give expression to feelings of kindness to his memory. Therefore our next meeting will be one of more than usual interest. All members of the society are especially requested to attend, and all friends of the faithful and devoted physician in this community are respectfully invited.

"Have Ye Received The Holy Ghost" is the title of a book being published by this office for J. R. White and Rev. T. K. Roberts. The book is the subject matter of a sermon delivered by Mr. Roberts during his pastorate of the Dexter Avenue Methodist church in Montgomery several years ago, and is an attempt to show that the Holy Ghost is a person. The author cites the statements of others and uses passages from the Scriptures to bear out his contention, and shows the necessity for a baptism of the Holy Spirit, how it is to be obtained and realized. As "Bro. Tom" is practically a Columbiana boy and is now a shut-in, the book will no doubt be read with general interest by the people of his community.

MILLER WORKED "ENDLESS CHAIN"

Got Rich Rapidly By a New Fangled Method.

PROMISED BIG DIVIDENDS

Depositors Rush In By the Thousands to Tackle the Bait.

A New York dispatch says: William F. Miller, head of the Franklin syndicate, which has accepted the deposits of thousands of persons in Brooklyn under promise of paying dividends of 10 per cent a week, or 520 per cent per annum, and Cecil Leslie, his secretary, were indicted by the Kings county grand jury. Bench warrants were issued for the arrest of these two men, but up to quite a late hour Friday night neither had been found, the police saying that they had disappeared in the afternoon.

Friday night the police raided the premises occupied by the Franklin syndicate on Floyd street. There was a great crowd of people around the building and the police surrounded it. Inspector Brennan arrested Louis Miller, brother of the head of the syndicate and cashier of the concern, and took possession of $15,000 in cash.

There were forty employes engaged at work in the offices and these were allowed to go.

William F. Miller began the Franklin syndicate in a very small way, locating his office among the poorer classes of Brooklyn, and making one feature of his business the acceptance of very small sums of money and the alleged investment of them for the poor people. He claimed that by inside tips on the stock market he was able to reap large and quick profits, of which he was willing to pay a large percentage to his clients.

He paid the interest on the principal each week, and his business increased. Within the past few months he advertised extensively and in all parts of Booklyn could be found men who could tell wonderful stories of the weekly dividends. Then some of the financial concerns in New York began to look into the business of the Franklin syndicate and not only did many of the prominent financiers denounce as preposterous the offer of 10 per cent. interest on money invested, but some of the banks refused to accept Miller's account or to do business with him.

It is claimed that Miller was simply the representative of a syndicate of men who had been engaged in conducting blind pools for years. The very fact that the newspapers and financial circles began to make investigations aroused the public interest to such an extent and at the same time in some quarters the public cupidity that, it is said, within the last week, Miller has received deposits of hundreds of people, aggregating a daily amount of from $30,000 to $40,000. It is easy to see, under these circumstances, how the Franklin syndicate could readily pay 10 per cent of this amount a week and still make money.

Not only were the people living within the limits of Greater New York large depositors with the Franklin syndicate, but cities all over the country contributed the earnings of scores of their residents to swell the wealth of the syndicate. The mail delivery daily at Miller's office amounted to about three wagon loads and most of the letters contained money.

Miller had a faculty of displaying a large amount of his wealth and the offices on Floyd street were piled high with greenbacks of all denominations and heaps of gold. This seemed to lend confidence to those who came with their subscriptions, and it is impossible to even estimate where the "endless chain" would have ended. The principle of the endless chain as developed by Miller depended upon the fact that his old customers brought him additional members and were allowed a commission of 5 per cent upon all money invested. Those who were drawing this income of 5 per cent became walking advertisements for the Franklin syndicate.

Ask Extension of Limit.

Secretary Gage is in receipt of a large number of requests from financial circles to extend the bond offering limit beyond November 30.

THE KENTUCKY TESTED.

Big Battleship Made a Highly Satisfactory Record.

A Boston dispatch says: Against tide, wind and a heavy head sea for at least half her course, the new battleship Kentucky made a record of 16.877 knots an hour Friday on her official speed trial over the government course from Cape Ann to Boone island, and by her work showed that she is a little faster than her sister ship Kearsage, which recently was sent over the same course. The trial satisfied her builders, that she can justly be rated as a 17-knot vessel, although her contract calls for only 16 knots.

CARNEGIE IS LIBERAL.

Raises Sum For Atlanta's New Library to $125,000.

Andrew Carnegie has given $25,000 additional to the building fund of the Atlanta, Ga., library.

This means a total of $125,000 to be expended on a handsome new library and its furnishings.

The increasing of this fund to still larger proportions is the direct result of the visit of Miss Anne Wallace to New York city last week.

GOEBEL'S CASE TAKEN UP.

Hearing Begins at Frankfort on Appeal From Jones' Decision.

Goebel's attorneys arrived at Frankfort, Ky., Friday with an appeal from the decision of Judge Jones, in which he held that 1,193 votes in Nelson county, erroneously certified for W. P. Taylor, should be counted for W. S. Taylor.

The case was argued before the whole court during the afternoon. Both sides were represented by eminent counsel.

ZAMBOANGA SURRENDERS

The Province Gives Up Unconditionally to the Americans.

Secretary of Navy Long received a cablegram Sunday from Amiral Watson informing him that the entire province of Zamboanga, island of Mindanao, had surrendered unconditionally to Commander Very of the Castine. The surrender was made on the 18th instant. Admiral Watson's dispatch follows.

"CAVITE, Nov. 26—Secretary Navy, Washington—November 18 entire province Zamboanga surrendered to Very unconditionally. Delivered all guns promised. Numerous local chiefs declared loyalty. WATSON."

The information contained in Admiral Watson's dispatch was received by the president and his advisers with unconcealed satisfaction. The surrender of the province of Zamboanga is regarded as the beginning of the end of the revolution in the island of Mandanao, and it is believed will be a hard blow to those who are still endeavoring to maintain the insurrection in the island of Luzon.

BLACKSMITH AFFIRMS

That He Made Steel Breastplates For Dudley Hasenden.

A special from Columbia, S.C., says: As has been reported, it was charged that J. Dudley Haselden, of the state board of control, and others of his party, wore breastplates at the time of the shooting scrape with the sellers some days ago. For several days after the charges were made there were no denials.

Affidavits have since been made by J. F. Speer, head blacksmith of the Marion iron works, that he made two plates for Hazelden.

EXTRADITION REFUSED.

Mexican Is Wanted In Texas For an Alleged Murder.

A special from Eagle Pass, Texas, says:

Ambassador Clayton telegraphs from the City of Mexico to Maverick county, Texas, that the Mexican government refuses extradition of Leonardo Gonzales, a Mexican citizen, accused of the rape and murder of an American woman at Sanders, on the Texas side, some months ago, on the ground of insufficient evidence.

TWO RAPISTS HANGED.

Negroes Who Assaulted White Girl Swing From Same Gallows.

At Darlington, S. D., Friday, Tom Mitchell and Ed Luckie, two negroes, were hanged for an assault on a young white woman named Josephine Lafferty last month. At the time the crime was committed a lynching was narrowly averted. The trial came off in about two weeks and the men were convicted and sentenced.

Both men were hanged simultaneously from the same trap and their necks were broken.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY SAILS.

Leaves New York Amid Much Cheering and Many Salutes.

Rear Admiral Schley, of the South Atlantic squadron, sailed from New York Saturday on his flagship Chicago for Santa Lucia, Windward group, where he will coal. Thence he will sail to Bahia and Buenos Ayres. In the Platte he will pick up the Montgomery and the Wilmington. When asked if he had anything to say to the public, Rear Admiral Schley held up both hands and exclaimed: "Absolutely nothing!"

With cheers from her crew, music by the ship's band and the acknowledgement of salutes by the dipping of her flag, the Chicago steamed out through the narrows.

SHOWS CENSOR'S HAND.

Reports of Belmont Battle Are Very Obscure In Detail.

Thus far the special dispathes describing the battle of Belmont bear a stereotyped character, proving that the hand of the censor had been at work upon them.

They are too incoherent to enable the reader to form an accurate idea of the event or to place a proper estimate upon the value of the victory. All the accounts agree respecting the splendid fighting qualities exhibited on both sides.

TAYLOR GOT DECISION.

Kentucky Court of Appeals Affirms Judge Jones' Order.

A Frankfort, Ky., dispatch says: The court of appeals has clinched Taylor's right to 1,197 Nelson county votes. The court, all the judges concurring, refused to dissolve the injunction as asked by Goebel's attorneys. The votes in controversy were certified for W. P. instead of W. S. Taylor.

Judge Jones, of Nelson county, ordered these votes counted for W. S. Taylor, and this order is affirmed.

MINERS USE DYNAMITE.

Not For Blasting But to Exterminate Non-Union Men.

The houses at which non-union miners are boarding were blown up with dynamite at Huntington, Ark., Thursday night. Ten deputy United States marshals were sent there from Jerry Lind Friday morning. The strikers are growing desperate and trouble is believed to be imminent.

Invitation to Dewey and Brumby.

The committee in charge of the Confederate reunion to be held in Louisville next May have invited Admiral Dewey and Lieutenant Brumby to attend.

Many Kansas Banks Robbed.

Saturday night robbers wrecked with dynamite the safe and the front end of the State bank at Bluff City, Kan., and escaped with $1,000 in gold besides some silver and bills. This is the eighth Kansas bank to be robbed by safe crackers within three weeks.

Three Killed In Wreck.

A bad wreck took place Saturday three miles east of Coshocton, O., on the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad, in which three persons were killed and over twenty injured.

POLYGAMY CONDEMED.

Paesbyterian Synod Adopts Resolutions Aimed at Roberts.

Before the Presbyterian Synod of Alabama adjourned in Birmingham the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That the synod emphatically condemn polygamy in all places, high and low, and expresses sympathy with all proper and lawful efforts to prevent the sitting in our national congress of any one who is himself a polygamist in politics and a defender of that system, and that our stated clerk place a copy of this action in the hands of our representatives from Alabama."

This resolution was adopted only after a long debate, an effort having been made to secure the passage of a more sweeping declaration. Some ministers, however, contended that the matter was not within the jurisdiction of the synod.

Demand For Alabama Coal.

Large quantities of Alabama coal is being shipped down the Mississippi river from Greenville, Miss., to points in lower Mississippi and Louisiana, and the traffic bids fair to be maintained throughout the winter. During the past ten days a tow of twelve barges, averaging 500 tons to the barge, has gone to New Orleans and been distributed from that market. The demand for Alabama coal in that section is greater than ever before, many preferring it to the Pittsburg product. Coal operators in Walker county are preparing to meet this growing demand and the railroads are arranging to handle all that the operators desire moved.

Four Brigades for Alabama.

Gen. John B. Gordon, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, has issued an order dividing the Alabama division into four brigades, instead of three, to be commanded as follows:

First Brigade—Brigadier-General John W. A. Sanford, of Montgomery.

Second Brigade—Brigadier-General E. B. Vaughan, of Mobile.

Third Brigade—Brigadier-General William Richardson, of Huntsville.

Fourth Brigade—Brigadier-General Addison F. McGehee, of Anniston.

The new division was made on the request of General George P. Harrison, commanding the Alabama division.

Seeking a New Field.

The Huntsville chamber of commerce has received a proposition for the location of a large cotton mill of the East which is seeking a new field in the south. W. S. Wells, T. W. Pratt and J. R. Boyd have been appointed to work the matter up. The mill wants a free site of fifty acres and this will probably be secured at once by popular subscription.

The farmers of Madison county are devoting an increased acreage to wheat this fall. Good prices and a ready market for the product are assured by the flouring mills here and another at Gurley.

Birmingham's Bank Clearings.

Birmingham bank clearings for the week ending Saturday almost reached the million dollar mark, the exact figures being $925,486.29. The clearings for the corresponding week in 1898 being $494,693.12, showing an increase of $430,993.17. The clearings for the week ending November 18 were $836,330.04.

Accidental Killing.

Scott Tinker, a highly respected citizen of Bridgeport, was killed by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Lum Runyan. The gun carried by Mr. Runyan was caught by an over-hanging branch in such a way as to cause the discharge.

CONDENSED STATE NEWS.

Marion's cotton receipts are ahead of last year. This is a better record than other Black Belt towns have made.

The construction of the forty new cottages by the Coosa Manufacturing Company, at Piedmont, is progressing very satsfactorily.

Work has opened on the new McDonald cotton mills at Sylacauga, which is being pushed rapidly. A large number of houses are being erected for the operators.

William Dowling, of Chattanooga, will repair the Government building at Huntsville for $5,000.

The material for the new iron bridge, which will span the Cahaba river at Fike's ferry, Perry county, arrived and is now being carried out to be placed in position. The bridge will cost about $7,000, and the contract calls for its completion in December.

The library of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn has received from Dr. P. C. Candidus, of Mobile a donation of 110 volumes of work on chemistry, botany and pharmacy.

The executive committee of the democratic and conservative party of Dallas county is called to meet in Selma on Friday. December 1, for the purpose of transacting any business that may be brought before it.

HOW MUMMIES WERE MADE.

Different Methods the Egyptians Practiced for Preserving Bodies.

There were three different ways of mummifying the body practiced by the ancient Egyptians, the price being the chief mark of distinction and cause for the differences. In the first and most expensive method the brain was extracted through the nose by means of an iron probe, and the intestines were removed entirely from the body through an incision made in the side with a sharp Ethiopian stone. The intestines were cleansed and washed in palm wine, and, after being covered with powdered aromatic gums, were placed in Canopic jars. The body was then filled up with myrrh and cassia and other fragrant and astringent substances, and was laid in natron for seventy days. It was then carefully washed and wrapped up in strips of fine linen smeared with gum. The cost of mummifying a body in this fashion was a talent of silver, about $1,200.

In the second method the brain was not removed at all, and the intestines were simply dissolved and removed in a fluid state. The body was also laid in salt or natron, which, it is said, dissolved everything, except the skin and bones. The cost of mummifying in this manner was 22 minae, or $450. The third method was employed for the poor only. It consisted simply of cleansing the body by injecting some astringent and then salting it for 70 days. The cost was very small.

If the friends of the dead were too poor to go to the expense of even the cheapest of these methods, the body was soaked in salt and bitumen or in salt only. In the salt and bitumen process every cavity of the body was filled with bitumen, and the hair disappeared. Clearly it is to the bodies which were preserved in this way that the name "mummy" (derived from the Arabic mumia or bitumen) was first applied. The salted and dried body is easily distinguishable. The skin is like paper, the features and hair have disappeared, and the bones are very brittle and white. It may be noted that the eyes were sometimes removed and their places supplied by others of ivory or obsidian. The hair was also removed and made into a packet covered with linen and bitumen. At a late period the flank incision was covered with a metal plate, on which a symbolic eye was engraved. The linen bandages employed to swathe the body were three or four inches wide; the length was sometimes as great as 400 yards.—Levy.

Big Tunnels in the Alps.

At present the two greatest railway tunnels of the world are those piercing the St. Gothard and Mont Cenis. It will not now be many years before that other great mountain of the Alpine range, the Simpleton, will also be pierced, so that men may pass to and fro in trains beneath its mighty summit. The work is at present progressing at the rate of five yards a day at each end. It is impossible to foretell the probable date of completion, owing to the changing nature of the strata, but when the two gangs of workmen meet in the middle they will have completed the longest tunnel in the world, for they will have cut through thirteen miles of tunnel.

The Same Old Circus.

I wandered to the circus, John; I sat beneath the tent and saw the man from Borneo, likewise the tattooed gent. I heard the toothless lion's howl, while men in spangled clothes stepped fearlessly into their dens and whacked them on the nose. I saw the sacred elephant spout water through his trunk, the salamander eating lead and other melted junk; I heard the merry clown get off the jokes we used to know when we were boys together, John, some twenty years ago. The same old horses waddled 'round the same old kind of ring; the same old comic vocalists proved that they couldn't sing; the same old hippotamus was grunting with disgust; the same old Persian ox was kicking up the dust; the same old rheumatic acrobats crawled painfully around, and the ossified contortionist was crawling on the ground, and ladies rode bare-backed steeds to music sad and slow—the same old girls we used to see some twenty years ago.—Minneapolis Messenger.

Some Staggering Computations.

A well known astronomer calculates that if an express train running sixty miles an hour day and night without stopping, kept it up for 350 years it would just about complete the diameter of the circle made by the earth in its yearly journey around the sun. Now let this immense circle be represented by a lady's finger ring, and, taking that as the standard of measurement, the nearest fixed star would be a mile distant and the farthest visible through the telescope at least twenty miles.

A TYROLEAN SENSE OF HUMOR.

Unconscious Jests Carved on Tombstones of Departed Friends.

That the Tyrolese are possessed of quaint humor has been long reported, but the best proofs come from the reports of a German traveler who examined some of the epitaphs which he found in a cemetery in the Tyrol. That the humor is sometimes unconscious does not diminish its value, but rather heightens it. On a tombstone in the Valley of the Tux was this inscription: "In pious remembrance of the honest widow Ann Kreidl, 40 years long." A miller is thus remembered: "In Christian memory of ———, who departed this life without human assistance." A farmer, whose initials only are given, and appears to have been the author of his own epitaph, has this memorial: "Here rest in God F. K. He lived 26 years as man and 37 years as husband." On the tomb of a man who fell from a roof and was killed are these words: "Here fell Jacob Hosenknopf from the roof into eternity." This wail of a desolate husband caps the climax: "Tears cannot bring thee back to life; therefore I weep."

Women's inventions relating to articles of attire, their fastening or manufacture, and to household utensils and appliances are no longer a rarity. The rotary oven plate, the invention of Olinda G. Naquin, of Rockport, Tex., is nevertheless novel and interesting. It is made of stamped sheet metal, having two series of corrugations, one set arranged like the spokes in a wheel and the other set parallel to the rim. In the center of the plate is a depressed portion, which extends below the surface of the plate so as to form a pivot on which the plate can be easily turned. The advantage of this arrangement is that it permits of the easy turning of food that is being baked, so that should one side be better done than the other, the latter part may be placed in the sphere of the greatest heat.

Rapid Mail Collection and Delivery.

Uncle Sam's novel letter carriers' mail collecting wagons, although but recently introduced, have conclusively proved their great value as an adjunct to rapid mail collection and delivery. One of the latest, a very novel form of letter carriers' wagon, is the scheme of an Alabama man. It consists essentially of a truck or vehicle, having at its lower end a small wheel and a framework to carry the postman's heavy mail pouch. Such a pouch undoubtedly represents a considerable weight, and a truck of this form, which could be wheeled along, the propelling power being applied by the postman's shoulder, would certainly be less tiring and burdensome than carrying the pouch. Granting this is a fact, the carrier could, of course, cover a given section in less time, the great desideratum in all postal affairs. Legs are provided to enable the truck to be stood up conveniently and easily when desired. Naturally, the truck could be utilized for carrying and delivering parcels as well.

M'KINLEY'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Strong Grounds Taken in Favor of Securing the Gold Standard as a Permanency.

A STRONG ARGUMENT IN FAVOR OF HOLDING ISLANDS

Touches on Trusts, but Makes No Specific Suggestions. Urges the Early Fixing of the Status of Porto Rico and Hawaii. Not Ready to Outline a Plan of Government for the Philippines Until Peace is Restored.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The following is the President's message delivered to Congress today:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

At the threshold of your deliberations, you are called to mourn with your countrymen the death of Vice President Hobart, who passed from this life on the morning of November 21 last. His great soul now rests in eternal peace. His private life was pure and elevated, while his public career was ever distinguished by large capacity, stainless integrity and exalted motives. He has been removed from the high office which he honored and dignified, but his lofty character, his devotion to duty, his honesty of purpose and noble virtues remain with us as a priceless legacy and example.

THE COUNTRY'S PROSPERITY.

The Fifty-sixth Congress convenes in its first regular session with the country in a condition of unusual prosperity, of universal good will among the people at home, and in relations of peace and friendship with every government of the world. Our foreign commerce has shown great increase in volume and value. The combined imports and exports for the year are the largest ever shown by a single year in all our history.

Our exports for 1899 alone exceeded by more than a billion dollars our imports and exports combined in 1870. The imports per capita are 20 per cent. less than in 1870, while the exports per capita are 58 per cent. more than in 1870, showing the enlarged capacity of the United States to satisfy the wants of its own increasing population as well as to contribute to those of the peoples of other nations.

Exports of agricultural products were $784,776,142. Of manufactured products we exported in value $339,592,146, being larger than any previous year. It is a noteworthy fact that the only years in all our history when the products of our manufactories sold abroad exceeded those bought abroad were 1898 and 1899.

FINANCES.

Government receipts from all sources for the fiscal year, ended June 30, 1899, including $11,798,314.14 part payment of the Central Pacific Railroad indebtedness, aggregated $610,982,004.36. Customs receipts were $206,128,481.75, and those from internal revenue, $273,437,161.51. For the fiscal year, the expenditures were $700,093,564.02, leaving a deficit of $89,111,559.67.

The Secretary of the Treasury estimates that the receipts for the current fiscal year will aggregate $660,958,112, and upon the basis of present appropriations the expenditures will aggregate $600,958,112, leaving a surplus of $49,000,000.

The present gratifying strength of the Treasury is shown by the fact that on December 1, 1899, the available cash balance was $278,004,837.72, of which $239,744,905.36 was in gold coin and bullion.

POWER TO SELL BONDS.

I urgently recommend that to support the existing gold standard and to maintain "the parity invalue of the coins of the two metals (gold and silver) and the equal of power of every dollar at all times in the market and in payment of debts" the Secretary of Treasury be given additional power and charged with the duty to sell United States bonds and to employ such other effective means as may be necessary to these ends. The authority should include the power to sell bonds on long and short time, as conditions may require, and should provide for rate of interest lower than that fixed by the act of January 14, 1875. While there is not now any disposition to exercise the right which withdraws gold from the government, but on the contrary such widespread confidence that gold seeks the treasury demanding paper money in exchange, yet the very situation points to the present as the most fitting time to make adequate provision to insure the continuance of the gold standard and of public confidence in the ability and purpose of the government to meet all of its obligations in the money which the civilized world recognizes as the best.

THE GOLD STANDARD.

The financial transactions of the government are conducted upon a gold basis. We receive gold when we sell United States bonds and use gold for their payment. We are maintaining the parity of all the money issued or coined by the authority of the government. We are doing these things with the means at hand. Happily at the present time we are not compelled to resort to loans to supply gold. It has been done in the past, however, and may have to be done in the future. It behooves us, therefore, to provide at once the best means to meet the emergency when it arises and the best means are those which are the most certain and economical. Those now authorized have the virtue neither of directness or economy.

We have already eliminated one of the causes of our financial plight, and embarrassment during the years 1893, 1894, 1895 and 1896. Our receipts now equal our expenditures; deficient revenues no longer create alarm. Let us remove the only remaining cause by conferring the full and necessary power on the Secretary of the Treasury and impose upon him, the duty to uphold the present gold standard and preserve the coins of the two metals on a parity with each other which is the repeatedly declared policy of the United Staes.

In this connection I repeat my former recommendations that a portion of the gold holdings shall be placed in a trust fund from which greenbacks shall be redeemed upon presentation, but when once redeemed shall not thereafter be paid out except for gold.

MERCHANT MARINE.

The value of an American merchant marine to the extension of our commercial trade and the strengthening of our power upon the sea invites the immediate action of Congress. Our national development will be one sided and unsatisfactory so long as the remarkable growth of our inland industries remains unaccompanied by progress on the seas. There is no lack of constitutional authority for legislation which shall give to the country maritime strength commensurate with its industrial achievements and with its rank among the nations of the earth.

AS TO TRUSTS.

Combinations of capital organized into trusts to control the condition of trade among our citizens, to stifle competition, limit the production and determine the prices of products used and consumed by the people are justly provoking public discussion and should early claim the attention of Congress.

The Industrial Commission created by the act of Congress of June 18, 1898, has been engaged on the extended hearings upon the disputed questions involved in the subject of combinations in restraint of trade and competition. They have not yet completed their investigation of this subject, and the conclusions and recommendations at which they may arrive are undetermined.

The subject is one giving rise to many diverse views as to the nature or parity, cause and extent of the injuries to the public which may result from large combinations concentrating more or less numerous enterprises and establishments which previously to the formation of the combination were carried on separately.

MUST BE A REMEDY.

It is universally conceded that combinations which engross or control the market of any particular kind of merchandise or commodity necessary to the general community by suppressing natural and ordinary competition, whereby prices are unduly enhanced to the general consumer are obnoxious not only to the common law, but also to the public welfare. There must be a remedy for the evils involved in such organizations. If the present law can be extended more certainly to control or check these monopolies or trusts it should be done without delay. Whatever power the Congresses possess over this most important subject should be promptly ascertained and asserted.

Prosecution of the United States of offenses under the act of 1890 has been frequently resorted to in the Federal Courts, and notable efforts in the restraint of Inter-State commerce, such as the Trans-Mississippi Freight Association and the Joint Traffic Association have been successfully opposed and suppressed.

STATE LEGISLATURE.

The State Legislature, to which President Cleveland looked for relief from the evils of trust, has failed to accomplish fully that object. This is probably due to a great extent to the fact that different States take different views as to the proper way to discriminate between evil and injurious combinations and those associations which are beneficial and necessary to the business prosperity of the country. The great diversity of treatment in different States arising from this cause and the intimate relation of all parts of the country to each other without regarding State lines in the conduct of business have made the enforcement of State laws difficult.

FOREIGN RELATIONS.

A review of our relations with foreign states is presented with such recommendations as are deemed appropriate.

The long pending boundary dispute between the Argentine Republic and Chili was settled in March last by the award of an arbitral commission, on which the United States Minister at Buenos Ayres served as umpire.

Progress has been made toward the conclusion of a convention of extradition with the Argentine Republic. Having been advised and consented to by the United States and ratified by Argentine, it only awaits the adjustment of some slight changes in the ext before exchange.

TREATY WITH BRAZIL.

A convention of extradition with Brazil signed May 14, 1897, has been ratified by the Brazilian legislature.

COLOMBIA TO PAY CLAIM.

The claim growing out of the seizure of the American newspaper owner of the Panama Star and Herald by the authorities of Colombia has been settled after a controversy of several years by an agreement assessing at $30,000 the indemnity to be paid by the Colombian government in three installments of $10,000 each.

The good will of Colombia toward our country has been testified anew by the cordial extension of facilities to the Nicaragua Canal Commission in their approaching investigation of the Panama Canal and other projected routes across the Isthmus of Darien.

DENMARK'S RESTRICTIONS.

Discussion of the questions raised by the action of Denmark in imposing restrictions on the importation of American meats has continued without substantial result in our favor.

SANTO DOMINGO REVOLT.

The neighboring Island of Santo Domingo has lately been the scene of a revolution following a period of tranquility. It began with the killing of President Heureaux in July last and culminated in the relinquishment by the succeeding Vice-President of the reins of government to the insurgents. The first act of the provisional government was the calling of a provisional and constituent election. Juan Isidro Jiminez having been elected President was inaugurated on the 14th of November. Relations have been entered into with the newly established government.

TROUBLE WITH NICARAGUA.

An insurrection movement, under General Reys, broke out at Bluefields in February last, and for a time exercised actual control in the Mosquito territory. The Detroit was promptly sent thither for the protection of American interests. After a few weeks the Reys' Government renounced the conflict, giving place to the restored supremacy of Nicaragua. During the interregnum certain political duties accruing under Nicaraguan law were collected from American merchants by the authorities for the time being in effective control.

Upon the Titular Government regaining power, a second payment of these duties was demanded. Controversy arose touching the validity of the original payment of the debt to the defacto regent of the territory. An arrangement was effected in April last by the United States Minister, and the foreign Secretary of Nicaragua, whereby the amounts of the duplicate payments were deposited with the British Consul pending an adjustment of the matter by direct agreement between the Governments of the United States and Nicaragua. The controversy is still unsettled.

CANAL COMMISSION.

The Nicaragua Canal Commission which had been engaged upon the work of examination and survey for a route across Nicaragua, having completed its labors and made its report, was dissolved on May 31, and on June 10 a new commission known as the Isthmian Canal Commission was organized under the terms of the act approved March 3, 1899, for the purpose of examining the American Isthmus with a view to determining the most practicable and feasible route for a ship canal across that isthmus with its probable cost and other essential details.

URGES THE CANAL.

The great importance of this work cannot be too often or too strongly pressed upon the attention of the Congress. In my message of a year ago, I expressed my views of the necessity of a canal which would link the two great oceans, to which I again invite your consideration. The reasons then presented for early action are even stronger now.

FAURE'S DEATH.

The death of President Faure in February last called forth those sincere sympathies which befit the relations of two republics so closely allied by unbroken historic ties as are the United States and France.

THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

Preparations for representations of the industries, arts and products of the United States at the World's Exposition to be held in Paris next year continue on an elaborate and comprehensive scale, thanks to the generous appropriation provided by Congress and to the friendly interest the French government has shown in furthering a typical exhibit of American progress.

There has been allotted to the United States a considerable space, and, while placing our country in the first rank among exhibitors, does not suffice to meet the increasingly urgent demands of our manufacturers. The efforts of the Commissioner-General are ably directed toward a strictly representative display of all that most characteristically marks American achievement in the inventive arts and most adequately shows the excellence of our natural productions.

RELATIONS IN GERMANY.

Our relations with Germany continue to be most cordial. The increasing intimacy of direct association has been marked during the year by the granting permission in April for the landing on our shores of a cable from Borkum Emden, on the North Sea, by way of Azores, and also by the conclusion on September 2 of a parcels post convention with the German Empire.

Subsequent to the exchange of our peace treaty with Spain, Germany acquired the Caroline Islands by purchase, paying therefor $5,600,000. Assurances have been received from the German Government that the rights of American missionaries and traders there will be considerately observed.

THE AFRICAN WAR.

Apart from these questions growing out of our relationship with our northern neighbor, the most friendly disposition and ready agreement have marked the discussion of numerous matters arising in the vast territories of the United States with Great Britain. This government has maintained an attitude of neutrality in the unfortunate contest between Great Britain and the Boer States of Africa. We have remained faithful to the precept of avoiding entangling alliances as to affairs not of our direct concern. Had circumstances suggested that the parties to the quarrel would have welcomed any kind of expression of hope from the American people that war might be averted, good offices would have been gladly tendered. The United States' representative at Pretoria was early instructed to see that all neutral American interests be respected by the combatants. This has been an easy task in view of the positive declarations of both British and Boer authorities that personal and property rights of our citizens should be observed.

CUBAN AFFAIRS.

My annual message of last year was necessarily devoted in great part to a consideration of the Spanish war and of the results it wrought and the condition it imposed for the future. I am gratified to announce that the treaty of peace has restored friendly relations between the two powers. Effect has been given to its important provisions. The evacuation of Porto Rico having been already accomplished on October 18, 1898, nothing remained necessary here to continue the provisional military control of the island, until the Congress should enact a suitable government for the ceded territory. Of the character and scope of the measure and to that end I shall treat in another part of this message.

The withdrawal of the authority of Spain from the Island of Cuba was effected by the first of January so that the full re-establishment of peace found the relinquished territory held by us in trust for the inhabitants maintaining under the direction of the Executive such government and control therein as should maintain the public order, restore the productive conditions of peace so long disturbed by the instability and disorder which prevailed for the greater part of the preceding three decades, and build up that tranquil development of the domestic state whereby alone can be realized the high purpose as proclaimed in the joint resolution adopted by the Congress on the 19th of April, 1898, in which the United States disclaimed any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction, or control over Cuba, except for the pacification thereof, and asserted its determination when that was accomplished to leave the government and control of the island to the people. The pledge contained in this resolution is of the highest honorable obligation and must be sacredly kept.

OUR WORK IN CUBA.

I believe that substantial progress has been made in this direction. All the administrative measures adopted in Cuba have aimed to fit it for a regenerated existence by enforcing the supremacy of law and justice, by placing wherever practicable the machinery of administration in the hands of the inhabitants; by instituting needed sanitary reforms, by spreading education; by fostering industry and trade; by inculcating public morality, and, in short, by taking every rational step to aid the Cuban people to attain to the plane of self-consciousness and self-reliant unity, which fits an enlightened community for self government within its own sphere while enabling it to fulfill all outward obligations.

This nation has assumed before the world a grave responsibility for the future good government of Cuba. We have accepted a trust, the fulfillment of which calls for earnest effort and integrity of purpose and the exercise of the highest wisdom. The new Cuba yet to arise from the ashes of the past must needs be bound to us by ties of intimacy and strength if its enduring welfare is to be assured. Whether those ties shall be organic or conventional, the destinies of Cuba are in some rightful form and manner irrevocably linked with our own, but how long and how far is for the future to determine in the ripeness of events.

Whatever be the outcome, we must see to it that free Cuba be a real territory, not a name; a perfect entity, not a hasty experiment and liable to failure. Our mission to accomplish which we took up the wages of battle is not to be fulfilled by turning adrift the people to face the vicissitudes which too often attend weaker States whose natural wealth and abundant resources are offset by the incongruities of their political organization and the recurring occasions for internal rivalries to sap their strength and dissipate their energies. The greatest blessing which can come to Cuba is the restoration of her agricultural and industrial prosperity, which will give employment to idle men and re-establish the pursuits of peace. This is her chief and immediate need.

CENSUS OF THE ISLAND.

On the 10th of August last an order was made for the taking of census in the island to be completed on the 30th of November. By the treaty of peace the Spanish people on the island have until April 11, 1900, to elect whether they will remain citizens of Spain or become citizens of Cuba. Until then it cannot be definitely ascertained who shall be entitled to participate in the formation of the Government of Cuba By that time the results of the census will have been tabulated, and we shall proceed to provide for elections which will commit the municipal governments of the island to the officers elected by the people. The experience thus acquired shall prove of great value in the formation of a representative convention of the people to draft a constitution and establish a general system of independent government for the island. In the mean time and so long as we exercise control over the island, the products of Cuba should have a market in the United States on as good terms and as favorable rates of duty as given to the West Indian Islands under the treaties of reciprocity, which shall be made. For the relief of the distressed in the island of Cuba, the War Department has issued supplies to destitute persons through the officers of the army, which have amounted to 5,430,000 rations at a cost of $1,417,551.87.

RELATIONS WITH SPAIN.

Following the exchange of the ratifications of the treaty of peace, the two Governments accredited Ministers to each other, Spain sending to Washington the Duke of Arcos, an eminent diplomatist, previously stationed in Mexico, while the United States transferred to Madrid Hon. Bellamy Storer, its Minister at Brussels. This was followed by the respective appointment of Consuls, thereby fully resuming the relations interrupted by the war. In addition to its Consular representation in the United States, the Spanish Government has appointed Consuls for Cuba, who have been provisionally recognized during the military administration of the affairs of that island. Intercourse between the courts of Cuba and Porto Rico and of Spain has been established as provided by the treaty of peace.

I would recommend appropriate legislation in order to carry into execution Article VII. of the treaty of peace with Spain, by which the United States assured the payment of certain claims for indemnity of its citizens against Spain.

CLAIMS AGAINST TURKEY.

The United States Minister to Turkey continues under instructions to press for a money payment in satisfaction of the just claims for injuries suffered by American citizens in the disorders of several years ago, and for wrongs done to them by the Ottoman authorities. Some of these claims are of many years standing. This Government is hopeful of a general agreement in this regard.

ARMY ORGANIZATION.

Since my last annual message, and in obedience to the acts of Congress of April 22 and 26, 1898, the remaining volunteer force enlisted for the Spanish war, consisting of 34,834 regulars and 110,202 volunteers, with over 5,000 volunteer officers, have been discharged from the military service. Of the volunteers, 667 officers and 14,831 men were serving in the Philippines, and 1,630 of the regulars who were entitled to be mustered out after the ratification of the treaty of peace. They voluntarily remained at the front until their places could be filled by new troops. They were returned home if the order in which they went to Manila, and are now all of them out of the service and in the ranks of the citizenship.

MEDALS RECOMMENDED.

I recommend that Congress provide a special medal of honor for the volunteers, regulars, sailors and marines on duty in the Philippines, who voluntarily remained in the service after their terms of enlistment had expired.

FORCE INCREASED.

By the act of March 2, 1899, Congress gave authority to increase the regular men to a maximum not to exceed 65,000 enlisted men, and to enlist a force of 35,000 volunteers to be recruited from the country at large. By virtue of this order the regular army has been increased to the number of 61,999 enlisted men and 2,248 officers, and new volunteer regiments have been organized, aggregating 33,050 enlisted men and 1,521 officers. Two of these volunteer regiments are made up of colored men, with colored line officers. The new troops to take the place of those returning from the Philippines have been transported to Manila to the number of 581 officers and 26,322 enlisted men of the regular army, and 594 officers and 15,388 enlisted men of the new volunteer force, while 504 officers and 14,119 men of the volunteer force are on the ocean en route to Manila.

FORCE IN MANILA.

The force now in Manila consists of 905 officers and 30,578 regulars and 594 officers and 15,388 of the volunteers, making an aggregate of 1,499 officers and 45,966 men. When the troops now under orders shall reach Manila the force in the archipelago will comprise 2,501 officers and 63,483 men.

The muster out of the great volunteer army organized for the Spanish war and creation of a new army, the transportation from Manila to San Francisco of those entitled to discharge and the transportation of the new troops to take their places have been a work of great magnitude, well and ably done, for which too much credit cannot be given the War Department.

IN CUBA AND PORTO RICO.

During the past year we have reduced our force in Cuba and Porto Rico. In Cuba we now have 334 officers and 10,796 enlisted men; in Porto Rico, 87 officers and 2,855 enlisted men and a battalion of 400 men composed of native Porto Ricans, while stationed throughout the United States are 910 officers and 17,317 men, and in Hawaii 12 officers and 453 enlisted men.

GOOD WORDS FOR MEN.

The operations of the army are fully presented in the report of the Secretary of War. I cannot withhold from officers and men the highest commendation for their soldierly conduct in trying situations, their willing sacrifices for their country and their integrity and ability with which they have performed unusual and difficult duties in our island possessions.

TWELFTH CENSUS.

In accordance with the act of Congress approved March 3, 1899, the preliminary work in connection with the twelfth census is now fully under way. The officers required for the proper administration of the duties imposed have been selected. The provision for securing a proper enumeration of the population, as well as to secure evidence of the industrial growth of the nation, is broader and more comprehensive than any similar legislation in the past. The director advises that every needful effort is being made to push this great work to completion in the time limited by the statute. It is believed the twelfth census will emphasize our remarkable advance in all that pertains to national progress.

AGRICULTURE.

The Department of Agriculture is constantly consulting the needs of producers in all the States and Territories. It is introducing seeds and plants of great value and promoting fuller diversification of crops. Grains, grasses, fruits and vegetables are imported from all parts of the United States. Under this encouragement the sugar beet factory multiplies in the North and far West; semi-tropical plants are sent to the South, and congenial climates are sought for the choice productions of the far East. The hybridizing of fruit trees and grains is conducted in the search for varieties adapted to the exact conditions. The introduction of tea gardens in the Southern States promises to provide employment for idle hands, as well as to supply the home market with tea.

The subject of irrigation where it is of vital importance to the people is being carefully studied. Steps are being taken to reclaim injured and abandoned lands, and information for the people along these lines is being printed and distributed. Markets are being sought and opened up for surplus farm and factory products in Europe and in Asia. The outlook for the education of the young farmer through agricultural colleges and mechanical stations, with opportunity given to specialize in the Department of Agriculture, is very promising.

THE PHILIPPINES.

The treaty of peace was ratified by the Senate on the 6th of February, 1899, and by the government of Spain on the 19th of March following. The ratifications were exchanged on the 18th of April and the treaty publicly proclaimed. On the 2d of March the Congress voted the sum contemplated by the treaty, and the amount was paid over to the Spanish government on the 1st day of May. In this manner the Philippines came to the United States. The islands were ceded by the government of Spain, which had been in undisputed possession of them for centuries. They were accepted, not merely by our authorized agents in Paris under thed irection of the Executive, but by the constitutional and well considered action of the representatives of the people in both houses of Congress.

I had every reason to believe, and I still believe, that this transfer of sovereignty was in accordance with the wishes and the aspirations of the great mass of the Filipino people.

From the earliest moment no opportunity was lost of assuring the people of the islands of our ardent desire for their welfare and of the intention of this government to do everything possible to advance their interests.

In my order of the 19th of May, 1898, the commander of the expedition dispatched to the Philippines was instructed to declare that we came not to make war upon the people of that country, nor upon any party or faction among them, but to protect them in their homes, in their employments and in their personal and religious rights. That there should be no doubt as to the paramount authority there, on the 17th of August I directed that there must be no joint occupation with the insurgents that the United States must preserve the peace and protect persons and property in the territory occupied by their military and naval forces; that the insurgents and all others must recognize the military occupation and authority of the United States.

EARLY ACTION TAKEN.

As early as December 24, before the session and in anticipation of that event, the commander in Manila was urged to restore peace and tranquility and to undertake the establishment of a beneficent government, which should afford the fullest security for life and property.

On the 21st of December, after the treaty was signed, the commander of the forces of occupation was instructed "to announce and proclaim in the most public manner that we came not as invaders and conquerors, but as friends, to protect the natives in their homes, in their employments and in their personal and religious rights."

WANTED NO CONFLICT.

On the same day, while ordering General Otis to see that the peace should be preserved in Iloilo, he was admonished that "it is most important that there should be no conflict with the insurgents." On the 1st day of January, 1899, urgent orders were reiterated that the kindly intentions of this Government should be, in every possible way, communicated to the insurgents.

THE COMMISSION.

On the 21st of January I announced my intention of dispatching to Manila a commission composed of three gentlemen of the highest character and distinction, thoroughly acquainted with the Orient, who, in association, with Admiral Dewey and Major-General Otis, were instructed to "facilitate the most humane and defective extension of authority throughout the islands, and to secure, with the least possibly delay, the benefits of a wise and generous protection of life and property to the inhabitants."

These gentlemen were Dr. Jacob G Schurman, President of Cornell University; Hon. Charles Denby, for many years Minister to China, and Prof. Dean Worcester, of the University of Michigan, who had made a most careful study of life in the Philippines.

While the treaty of peace was under consideration in the Senate these commissioners set out on their mission of good will and liberation. Their character was sufficient guarantee for the purpose for which they went, even if they had not borne the positive instructions of this Government, which made their object pre-eminently one of peace and friendship.

NO PROMISE TO REBELS.

But before their arrival at Manila the sinister ambition of a few Filipinos caused great embarrassment for the United States and most grievous in its consequences to themselves. It is enough to say that that the claim of the rebel leader that he was promised independence by any officer of the United States in return for his assistance has no foundation in fact, and is categorically denied by the very witnesses who were called to prove it. The most the insurgent leader hoped for when he came to Manila was the liberation of the islands from the Spanish control, which they had been laboring for years without success to throw off.

The prompt accomplishment of this work by the American army and navy gave him other ideas and ambitions, and insiduous suggestions from various quarters perverted the purposes and intentions with which took up arms.

No sooner had our army captured Manila than the Filipino forces began to assume an attitude of suspicion and hostility, which the utmost efforts of our officers and troops were unable to disarm or modify. Their kindness and forbearance were taken as a proof of cowardice.

ATTACK OF FILIPINOS.

The aggressions of the Filipinos continually increased until finally, just before the time set by the Senate of the United States for a vote upon the treaty, an attack, evidently prepared in advance, was made all along the American lines, which resulted in a terribly destructive and sanguinary repulse of the insurgents.

UNHAPPY CONDITION.

This was the unhappy condition of affairs which confronted our commissioners on their arrival in Manila. They had come with the hope and intention of co-operation with Admiral Dewey and Major-General Otis in establishing peace and order in the archipelago, and the largest measure of self-government compatible with the true welfare of the people. What they actually found can be best set forth in their own words:

"Deplorable as war is, the one in which we are now engaged was unavoidable by us. We were attacked by a bold adventurous and enthusiastic army. No alternative was left to us except ignominous retreat.

"It is not to be conceived that any American would have sanctioned the surrender of Manila to the insurgents. Our obligations to other nations and to the friendly Filipinos and to ourselves and our flag demanded that force should be met by force. Whatever the future of the islands may be, there is no course open to us now except the prosecution of the war until the insurgents are reduced to submission.

"The commission is of the opinion that there has been no time since the destruction of the Spanish squadron by Admiral Dewey when it was possible to withdraw our forces from the islands, either with honor to ourselves or with safety to the inhabitants.

COURSE PURSUED.

The course thus clearly indicated has been unflinchingly pursued. The rebellion must be put down as civil government cannot be thoroughly established until order is restored. With a devotion and galantry of the most brilliant history, the army ably and loyally assisted by the navy, has carried on this unwelcome, but most righteous campaign with richly deserved success. The noble self-sacrifice with which our soldiers and sailors whose terms of service had expired, refusing to avail themselves of their right to return home as long as they were needed at the front, forms one of the brightest pages in our annals.

Although their operations have been somewhat interrupted and checked by a rainy season of unusual violence and duration they have gained ground steadily in every direction and now look forward confidently to speedy completion of their task.

WORK OF RECONSTRUCTION.

The unfavorable circumstances connected with an active campaign have not been permitted to interfere with the equally important work of reconstruction. Again I invite your attention to the report of the commissioners for the interesting and encouraging details of the work already accomplished in the establishment of peace and order and the inauguration of self-governing municipal life in many portions of the archipelago.

A GOOD BEGINNING.

A notable beginning has been made in the establishment of a government in the Island of Negros, which is deserving of special consideration. This was the first island to accept American sovereignty. Its people unreservedly proclaimed allegiance to the United States and adopted a constitution looking to the establishment of a popular government. It was impossible to guarantee to the people of Negros that the constitution so adopted should be the ultimate form of government. Such a question under the treaty with Spain and in accordance with our own constitution and laws came exclusively within the jurisdiction of Congress.

The sseat of government was fixed at Bacolod; the military governor exercises the supreme executive power. He is to see that the laws are executed, appoint all vacancies in office not otherwise provided for, and may, with the approval of the military governor of the Philippines, retain any officer. The civil governor advises the military governor on all public and civil questions and presides over the Advisory Council. He, in general, performs the duties which are performed by Secretaries of State in our own system of government.

The Advisory Council consits of eight members elected by the people within territorial limits which are defined in the order of the Commanding General.

The time and places of holding elections are to be fixed by the Military Governor of the Island of Negros. The qualificationss of voters are as follows:

WHO MAY VOTE.

First—A voter must be a male citizen of the Island of Negros.

Second—Of the age of 21 years.

Third—He shall be able to speak, read and write the English, Spanish or Visayan language, or he must own real property worth $500 or pay a rental on real property of the value of $1,000.

Fourth—He must have resided in the island not less than one year preceding, and in the district in which he offers to register as a voter not less than three months immediately preceding the time he offers to register.

Fifth—He must register at a time fixed by law before voting.

Sixth—Prior to such registration, he shall have paid all taxes due by him to the government provided that no insane person shall be allowed to register or vote.

RIGHT OF THE GOVERNOR.

The Military Governor has the right to veto all bills or resolutions adopted by the Advisory Council, and his vote is final if not disapproved by the Military Governor of the Philippines. The Advisory Council discharges all the ordinary duties of a legislature. The usual duties pertaining to said offices are to be performed by the Secretary of the Treasury, Interior, Agriculture, Public Instruction, the Attorney-General and the Auditor.

The judicial power is vested in three judges, who are to be appointed by the Military Governor of the Island. Inferior courts are to be established.

FREE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Free public schools are to be established throughout the populous districts of the island in which the English language shall be taught and this object will receive the careful consideration of the Advisory Council.

The burden of government must be distributed equally and equitably among the people. The military authorities will collect and receive the customs revenue, and will control postal matters and Philippine inland trade and commerce. The military government, subject to approval of the military governor of the Philippines, determines all questions not specifically provided for, and which do not come under the jurisdiction of the Advisory Council.

ACCEPTED BY SULUS.

The authorities of the Sulu Islands have accepted the succession of the United States to the rights of Spain, and our flag floats over that territory. On the 10th of August, 1899, Brig.-Gen. J. C. Bates, United States Volunteers, negotiated an agreement with the Sultan and his principal chiefs, which I transmit herewith.

By Article 1 the sovereignty of the United States over the whole archipelago of Jolo and its dependencies is declared and acknowledged.

The United States flag will be used in the archipelago and its dependencies on land and sea. Piracy is to be suppressed, and the Sultan agrees to cooperate heartily with the United States authorities to that end and to make every possible effort to arrest and to bring to justice all persons engaged in piracy.

All trade in domestic products of the archipelago of Jolo, when carried on with any part of the islands and under the American flag, shall be free, unlimited and undutiable. The United States will give full protection to the Sultan in case any foreign nation should attempt to impose upon him. The United States will not sell the Island of Jolo or any other Island of the Jolo archipelago to any foreign nation without the consent of the Sultan. Salaries for the Sultan and his associates in the administration of the islands have been agreed upon to the amount of $760 monthly.

THE SULU SLAVES.

Article 10 provides that any slave in the archipelago of Jolo shall have

THE CHRONICLE.

W. G. S. F., Editor and Publisher.

THE LINE OF BATTLE.

Two primaries were held last Saturday, in Limestone and Marshall counties, respectively. Morgan carried Limestone, Johnston carried Marshall. Limestone is a Democratic county, and Marshall is a Populist county. In the latter Morgan carried the Democratic precincts, and Johnston carried the Populist precincts. In the former Johnston got his vote in the few Populist strongholds.

We draw conclusions from these premises, and we predict from them the line of battle to be fought in the coming campaign. The conclusions we draw are that the old-time, rock-ribbed, straight Democrats are for Morgan, and the recent converts to Democracy, the weak-kneed Democrats, and renegade Populists are for Johnston. Morgan has announced that he only seeks in Democratic primaries the votes of Democrats; Johnston will seek to effect a combination of the three classes mentioned above, and rely on them to nominate and elect for him representatives and senators of their class.

In some of the Populist counties he will succeeed in this combination; in others he will fail. In some the Populists will sacrifice their party organization to Johnston's ambition, in others they will not be led into a betrayal of their principles for any man's preferment. This county will be in the latter class.

There may be a few straight Democratic counties which will be carried by Johnston, but these will be offset by the Populist counties which will not be led into a hybrid combine. Hence he will find himself in the minority in the caucus. The question will be then, Will he abide the result like a man, or will he go out of the caucus and ask the support of a mongrel party, and if so will he get it? We believe it will come to this, and we would like to hear his organs answer now the question, Will he abide the will of the Democratic party? He has not done so on some occasions recently. Will he do so in the decision of his own case?

Our Bankhead did not get the Democratic nomination for Speaker of the National House.

The President's message will be found on the outside of this paper. Those who have the time may read it.

We have two candidates for high position in this state who seem to be running on Mr. Bryan's coat tail, and they are personally antagonistic. Somehow we prefer a man to run on his own merit.

The Montevallo land deal has fallen through, Mr. DeBardeleben failing to close his option. The Sloss company might now come to the rescue and buy the lands at the price paid for the University lands.

The Court Journal has discovered that Senator Morgan's friends are spending money sending out the Age-Herald. We doubt this, but if true it is much more honorable than to get men out of his way with spot cash.

We have some very energetic candidates for the Senate. Johnston is going to dig the Nicaragua canal the next day after his advent in that body, while Roquemore is going to revolutionize the condition of the cotton growers just as soon as his name goes on the roll. We are afraid these two interests will suffer if they wait on these two great men to get there.

The Advocate financial editor will be a very busy man henceforth. He has a big job on hand. He has undertaken to withdraw the attention of the people from his inability to keep down county expenses and the tax rate, and at the same time to lead the Populists into the Democratic party to vote for Johnston for Senator. But the people are on to his curves, and they will bat him out of the box in about the second inning.

A meeting of the colored club women of the Southern States is to be held in Montgomery this month. When the negro women of the South get into the club movement it will be a long farewell to the good house servant of the old days. This indispensible is very scrace now, and when they get their clubs started our mothers and wives and daughters may as well abandon theirs for the kitchen and wash tub.

The offer of Joseph F. Johnston for the place of John T. Morgan might be likened to the flicker of a tallow candle against the light of a star; the hovering of a carrion crow about the path of an eagle; the rushing of a swollen mud stream against the majestic roll of the ocean. In truth it is the attempt of a puny politician to supplant a great statesman. It is a battle of trickery against brains. The people of Alabama are not fools that they would place a statue of soft clay upon a pedestal of pure marble.

Says the Court Journal:

Nearly every Republican paper in the United States is talking about the shame of trying to beat Morgan. They want his help to continue foreign wars, big armies and high taxes.

Every Populist paper in Alabama is trying to help elect Johnston. They want his help to continue them in office. The great difference between the Republican papers referred to and the Populist organs is that the former recognize superior ability as between Democrats, while the latter neither can do so nor care to.

THE TAX RATE.

The Advocate still insists that the present tax rate is chargeable to the Democrats. We have published the facts once or twice, but The Advocate's memory is bad, and we remind it again.

The first Populist Commissioner's court was held in 1888. They found $7,000 in the treasury and the tax rate 2½ mills.

In 1889 they made the rate 3 mills and had a balance of $6,000.

In 1891, 4 mills and $5,000.

In 1893 the Democrats were in power, and the tax rate was 4 mills and the balance was $12,000.

In 1894 they put the rate down to 3 mills and had $16,000.

In 1895, 3 mills and $9,000. This year the donation was made to the Montevallo school, and the next year the rate was back to 4 mills, and the balance was $2,000.

The Populists came in again in 1897 and found the rate 4 mills and balance $2,000. Before taxes began to come in last month, the tax rate was 6 mills, there was not a cent in the treasury and the county owed $2,000 in New York, $1,500 to J. E. Morris and its warrants were being hawked around the streets here at a discount.

These figures come from the records and can be seen of any who desire. Up to last year the Populist Commissioner's had a Democratic Judge to guide them, and when he went out of office there were $4,000 in the treasury, enough to pay all the county owed. For one year the court has had the guidance of the great friend of the people, the great Populist leader, who writes the financial articles in the Advocate while he puts up an illegal tax rate which the corporations refuses to pay, but which the common masses have to pay.

The Advocate may keep on denying our figures, but its denials don't lessen the taxes, nor reduce the indebtedness of the county, nor make the railroads pay the excessive taxes, nor relieve the people who are too poor to employ a lawyer to fight it.

FAITH BY WORKS.

Most of the Johnston organs are now harping on the "unfortunate time when R. F. Kolb was so unjustly deprived of his political rights by a faction of the Democratic party," and are looking to their candidate to right Kolb's wrongs by bringing the Populists back into the party. We are not one of those who have any apology to make for the manner in which Kolb was defeated believing as we do that the majority of the Democrats were opposed to him, but if he was unjustly treated no man in Alabama had more to do with it than Joseph F. Johnston. His was the strongest hand played in the game of politics that froze Kolb out, and his action did much to make him Governor afterwards. It is through nonsense of wrong inflicted nor desire to make amends that he is now seeking to lead these enemies of Democracy inside the fortification to strangle the loyal defenders of the party's honor; the men who would betray their own party to Johnston's ambition are men who would leave us again the moment their purpose was accomplished. Men who come into a party through motives of personal politics will go out again for the same reason. If there are Populists in Alabama who want to become Democrats let them do so in the calm acknowledgment of the justice and righteousness of Democratic principles; let them prove their good intentions before they seek to dictate the party's policies or its candidates.

The financial editor of The Advocate is trying to explain the tax rate; the middle-of-the-road editor is trying to keep the party intact; the fusion editor is trying to pat Johnston on the back; the Republican editor is sulking and threatening the vengeance of the negro voters. The Advocate's corps of editors reminds us of the Irish sailor plowing the spiked team: When he ran into a nest of yellow-jackets, he thus describes the position of his team: "The larboard ox is on the starboard side, the starboard ox is on the larboard side, Jennie's furninst the riggins', and the hull thing's goin' to hell stern formost."

Now that the Montevallo school lands are back in the hands of the trustees, why not put them in the hands of a commissioner who is not a politician, let him lease the coal lands on a royalty, sell off the timber to the best advantage, put the farming lands into farms and sell them for homes. The same business methods employed by the land syndicates would surely result in the same profits.

One of the worst features of the levying of an unconstitutional tax rate in this county is shown in the refusal of the large corporations to pay it. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company recently sent a check for its taxes, less the excess; it is known that the Southern will do the same thing, and probably other corporations will follow this same course. These concerns are provided with attorneys, and can afford to test the levy, while small tax-payers will go on and pay the excess, on account of their inability to fight it. Consequently while the small property holders are paying an unjust and illegal tax, the corporations are asserting their rights. Thus are the officials who have been loudest in proclaiming their friendship for the masses putting upon them a burden which they are unable to throw off. This is certainly wrong. If the railroads are not to pay this excess then every cent above the legal rate should be returned to the common people.

Congress met on Monday, with the usual formalities. Mormon Roberts was objected to by both Republicans and Democrats, and he will probably be fired out with his three wives.

The Court Journal seems to be in the same condition of many others we know who do not know the difference between imperialism and expansion. It is not a question of expanding; it is whether we shall expand on imperialistic lines or whether we shall extend the benefits of republican government while we extend our commerce. Senator Morgan represents the latter idea, and it is a policy which has been advocated by Democrats from the foundation of the party, which was coexistent with the government itself.

Centre Institute.

We are having some rainy weather now, but we should not complain, however, as we have had beautiful weather all the fall.

Rev. R. A. Kidd preached a very interesting sermon at Liberty Sunday to a large and appreciative audience.

Prof. J. M. Mundine and mother, of Vandiver, attended preaching at Liberty Sunday.

The singing at W. J. Sewell's Saturday night was quite a success. There was a large crowd present, and some fine music was rendered.

The musical people here have secured the services of Prof. J. M. Bowman, of Harrisonburg, Va., to teach a normal music school here, beginning January 8, 1900, and continuing for a term of thirty days. Professor Bowman is one of America's most gifted instructors, and is an author and director of ability. A large attendance is expected. The secretaries, Messrs. John M. Dye, W. A. and G. Henry Weldon, have enrolled the names of quite a number of pupils from adjoining States.

Quite a number of people are passing through here moving to Birmingham.

Phillip Erlick, of your town, accompanied by Miss Alma Jackson, was up Sunday.

Prof. S. P. Williamson has a flourishing school at Center Institute.

W. A. Weldon has been very sick for some time, but is improving.

L. W. Chesser has also been quite sick.

Walter Douglass, of Pelham, was in our midst Sunday.

D. H. Wilder and family, of Vincent, are visiting relatives here.

The Chronicle is always a welcome visitor here.

Hurrah for Hon. John T. Morgan, the grand old man of America! We want him reelected, as we need him in the Senate. We are for him.

John M. Dye paid a visit to the Sterrett community in the interest of the normal music school on Thursday last.

J. R. Adams paid Vandiver a business visit recently. X X

Harpersville.

E. B. Teague, jr., of Redlawn, was in town Sunday.

Ed Bradley, of Montevallo Junction, is spending a few days with his father, who is sick.

A hundred or more bales of cotton were sold here one day last week to a Birmingham firm for 7¼ cents.

Thanksgiving was observed at the Baptist church, services conducted by Doctor Teague.

W. A. Gorman came over from Pelham and spent Saturday and Sunday here.

E. Burchfield, of East Lake, was in town Saturday.

Hogs continue to die; one of our farmers lost 40 out of 37.

Dentist Stone, of Cropwell, was in the city last week.

Clem Butler transacted business in Birmingham Friday and Saturday.

The people of St. Clair County are having some little trouble with their officers. It will be remembered that this is one of the strongest Pop counties in the State. Well, their tax collector has fallen behind $2,700 and their sheriff has left his family and skipped out for parts unknown, taking a Birmingham woman with him.

A new postoffice has been established in this beat at W. W. Wallace's, with Sam Wallace as postmaster. Sam now has the advantage over the other boys, for he can write and receive letters from his girl and no one will know it.

Mathis, the Tennessee horse drover, was on our streets a day or two last week.

Rev. Mr. Bentley preached two interesting sermons at the Baptist church Saturday and Sunday last.

Last Monday was hog-killing day judging from the number killed.

G. W. Wallis, sr., and Henry Cosper, two clever gentleman of Creswell, attended preaching here Sunday.

Next Monday is the day set apart to decide whether or not Beat 10 shall have a stock law. As for my part I don't care much either way, but I believe that all interested ought to have a fair and just trial, and then we hope that this thing will be settled always and forever. If such a law is passed it will be very hard on the majority, while of course it will benefit a few.

Doctor Nelson has the biggest hog of anybody in the beat and drives the best fifteen-cent pony of anybody in Harpersville. Jake.

Petition for Stock Law.

Notice is hereby given that a petition was filed in this office on the 21st day of November, 1899, containing a majority of the freeholders of Beat 10, Shelby County, Ala., praying that all livestock be prohibited from running at large in said beat; and the 11th day of December, 1899, has been appointed a day to hear and determine the validity of said petition, at which time any parties desiring can appear and contest the same. Witness my hand this 22nd day of November, 1899.

The weather for the past week has been quite favorable for parties who have hogs to kill, and no small number of Berkshires and razor-backs have been converted into sausage and grease. Columbiana has no meat market, but her people have not lacked for fresh meats, parties from the country having pork and beef for sale coming to the city daily.

John W. Thomas, nightwatchman in Tinney's coaling, four miles south of this place, was found near Simmons Switch, on Southern Railway, in an unconscious condition with his skull broken. A person standing on our streets last Saturday night and not up-to-date with the almanac, would have thought Christmas had arrived, if a general racket is any evidence. The young men and boys remained up till a late hours that night and seemed to have a good time with fireworks. A city ordinance prohibits the use of fireworks of any character on the streets except on special occasions, but the boys were doubtless ignorant of the fact.

A goose supper was the feature of Thanksgiving in the city. Messrs. Leeper, Lefkovits, Fox and Erlick were the hosts, and the guests were Maj. W. R. Oliver, of Calera; W. S. Cary, of Montevallo, and Messrs. Beavers, Hall, Thetford, Jackson and Gist, of this city. Four fine fat geese, stuffed with oysters, with olives, pickles and bread on the side, was the menu, washed down with water only. Messrs. Cary and Lefkovits took the prize for their successful efforts to do justice to the occasion.

A large cannon firecracker exploded in the hand of George Vest last Saturday night while he was attempting to light the same from a cigarette. His right hand was bruised considerably, bursting the flesh on one side near the thumb and tearing a portion of one finger away. The wound gave such pain that medical assistance was necessary, and on Sunday morning the finger was amputated. Several bystanders were also burned by the explosion of the firecracker.

The following item of interest was received last week from our Shelby correspondent too late for publication: "Mr. William Francis and Miss Sudie Pearle Seale were married at the residence of the bride's parents on the evening of November 22, Rev. A. T. Clarke officiating. A large and happy company of relatives and friends gathered at the residence of Judge Seale to witness the ceremony and offer congratulations. Mr. Francis is an engineer, who has for sometime held a profitable position with the Shelby Iron Company."

Rev. T. K. Roberts and Miss Sue Stone were married at Easonville on yesterday. They came to this city yesterday and will reside here. Miss Stone is well known to our people, she being one of the assistants in the public school here last year. She had charge of the intermediate department and made an excellent teacher. Mr. Roberts is the eldest son of Rev. T. P. Roberts, who is to be pastor of the Methodist church here next year, and is well known throughout the county and State as a young minister of no ordinary ability. He was preparing for a life work as missionary in the foreign fields, but his health failed and he has been practically an invalid for more than a year. Both have a warm place in the hearts of all our people, and the best wishes for a happy life is extended to them.

Mr. Frank Spears and Miss Jessie Carter will be married at Shelby next Thursday. Society has been expecting this for some time. Mr. Spears is engaged in business in South Alabama, but was a former citizen of Shelby, and is a young man of sterling worth. Miss Carter is the daughter of the late Arch Carter, and is a most estimable young lady.

The following resolutions were passed by the Juvenile Society of which little Ethel DuBose was a loved member. As it has pleased our Heavenly Father to call our loved one from our circle—how beautiful she looked sleeping the eternal sleep among the flowers; it almost seemed that the angels would have borne her body too to Jesus, it was so purely fair and beautiful. Would we call her back, who even so young has received a glorious invitation to the mansions of God? How sweet it will be to have little Ethel waiting at the beautiful gate to beckon a glad welcome.

Resolved, That while we mourn our loss we bow in meek submission to our Heavenly Father's will, knowing that "He doeth all things well."

The following amounts have been donated to THE CHRONICLE fund, of the fencing in, and erecting a monument to the memory of the Confederate dead buried near Shelby Springs:

THE CHRONICLE,	$ 1 00
C. C. Martin's school,	2 50
John W. Pitts,	2 00
S. J. Evans,	10 00
Sam. H. Gist,	1 00
John Johnston,	1 00
W. B. Browne,	1 00
John P. Pearson,	1 00
Total to date,	$19 50

It will be seen from the above that THE CHRONICLE has started a subscription this week for the purpose mentioned. The committee inform us that it will take $400 or $500 to complete this commendable work. This list is published as a starter, and will be kept standing, and any additional donations that may be handed in from week to week will be added to the list, and placed in bank subject to call of the committee who have the work in charge. If every one would contribute to this noble cause it would soon be finished, and stand as a monument of respect to these Southern soldiers who are burried away from home and kindred.

The following from the Age-Herald of Saturday contains an account of the trial of a prominent Shelby County firm which recently appeared before the Federal court in Birmingham: "Commissioner Cornish was also called on to pass judgment on the case of J. F. Pope & Co., of Vincent, charged with the sale of alcohol without a license. F. H. Fullenwilder claims to have bought the alcohol. The drug clerk, William Kidd, testified that no alcohol was sold in the store. One day a man came in and he (Kidd) added some alcohol to barks and ingredients already in the bottle, the purpose being to make purgative medicine, and this he believed was simply compounding medicine. The government claims to have incriminating evidence against Pope, and he was held for the grand jury." The amount of bond required was $100 for each member of the firm, and it was quickly given. The case is something similar to one from this city sometime ago and shows that parties can be made to suffer when no evil is intended.

We desire to thank our kind friends for their many kind acts and favors bestowed on us during our dear husband and father's continued illness and our recent bereavement. Words cannot express our gratitude to all who responded so promptly. Their memory is sacred to us forever, never to be forgotten. May our blessed Savior reward them, is our earnest prayer.

MRS. KATE HUGHES AND FAMILY.

IS BETWEEN HEAT AND COLD.

Perry, Me., to be Marked With an Odd Monument.

A singular mark of honor, and yet one to which it is naturally entitled, has just been conferred by the United States government upon North Perry, a little village situated in Washington county, about twenty miles from Calais, Me. That hitherto insignificant hamlet is located midway between the equator and the North polo, and this memorable fact is to be noted on a shaft which will be erected within the next few days at one of the most central points in the village.

There is one church in North Perry, and the shaft will be placed on one side of the little path leading from the street to the church door. On the front of the pillar will be but the words: "This stone marks latitude 45 degrees north, halfway from the equator to the North polo.

Naturally this unexpected incident has set the people of North Perry in a flutter of excitement. There are only about 500 persons in the place, and while the men earn their living by acting as guides to hunting parties and by working in the lumber camps, the women and children earn a little money in the spring and fall by picking berries and sending them to the canning factories. Not often do they take a holiday, but they are determined to have one on the day when the shaft is placed in position.

The stone, which has just been completed at a granite quarry near there, was ordered by the government, and the spot which it will occupy has been marked by the geographical surveyors of the United States government as being precisely midway between the equator and the North pole.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee, who is at the head of the woman army nurses, and is an assistant to Surgeon-General Sternberg, has the rank of a first lieutenant and is entitled to wear shoulder straps indicative of her rank. Dr. McGee has the distinction of being the only woman officer in the United States army service.

One of the most prominent lawyers of Oklahoma City is Laura Lykins, a half blood Shawnee woman, who was graduated from the legal department of the Carlisle Indian School in 1898.

The Princeton college flag was at the masthead of the Perry relief ship, along with the stars and stripes, and was carried farther North than any American flag since 1871.

Nathaniel Hawthorne appreciated his publisher, James T. Fields. "Somehow or other," he wrote once to him, "you smote the rock of public sympathy in my belief and a stream gushed forth in sufficient quantities to quench my thirst, though not to drown me."

Chief Justice James A Peters, of the supreme court of Maine, is about to resign his office because of increasing years. A member of the state bar, congratulating him upon his pre-eminent service, says: "It is superb, especially for great Americans, to be living in our age. It is a satisfaction and a glory for them to be a part of it."

The Government Printing Office.

The new government printing office will cost about $2,000,000, and it is said that even after its completion it will not be large enough to meet the demands upon it. The new building will be eight stories in height, and its floor space will be about nine acres. The floors will sustain a load of about 85,000,000 pounds. Access to the various floors will be obtained by twelve electric elevators. The building will be lighted with 7,000 incandescent lights. A refrigerating plant will furnish cold filtered water on every floor for drinking purposes. A large crematory will destroy all the refuse material, and this will aid in heating water, etc.

Escape of the Newly Wedded.

A newly married couple in New Brunswick, N. J., circumvented their mischievous friends by starting on their wedding journey by way of the roof. The friends, well supplied with rice and old slippers, stood at the foot of the stairs. The pair ascended to the roof, walked to the adjoining house, then down and through the rear door to a back street, where they entered a waiting carriage and were driven to the railway station.

Business in South Africa, including Cape Town, is absolutely stagnant. Food stuffs have doubled in price, and thousands are without work or money to buy the necessities of life.

Odd Superstition of Icelanders.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

(Concluded.)

the right to purchase freedom by paying to the master the usual market value.

The agreement by General Bates was made subject to confirmation by the President, and future modifications by the consent of the parties in interest. I have confirmed said agreement subject to the action of the Congress, and with the reservation which I have directed shall be communicated to the Sultan of Jolo, that this agreement is not to be deemed in any way to use or give the consent of the United States to the existence of slavery in the Sulu archipelago.

I communicate these facts to the Congress for its information and action. Everything indicates that with the speedy suppression of the Tagalo rebellion life in the archipelago will soon resume its ordinary course under the protection of our sovereignty and the people of those favored islands will enjoy a prosperity and a freedom which they have never before known.

MANY SCHOOLS ALREADY.

Already hundreds of schools are open and filled with children. Religious freedom is sacredly assured and enjoyed. The courts are dispensing justice. Business is beginning to circulate in its accustomed channels. Manila, whose inhabitants were fleeing to the country a few months ago, is now a populous and thriving mart of commerce. The earnest and unremitting endeavors of the commission and the Admiral and Major General commanding the department of the Pacific to assure the people of the beneficient intentions of this Government had their legitimate effect in convincing the great majority of them that peace and safety and prosperity and stable government can only be found in a loyal acceptance of the authority of the United States.

FUTURE GOVERNMENT.

The future government of the Philippines rests with the Congress of the United States. Fewer graver responsibilities have ever been confided to us. If we accept them in a spirit worthy of our race and our traditions, a great opportunity comes with them. The islands lie under the shelter of our flag. They are ours by every title of law and equity. They can not be abandoned. If we desert them, we leave them at once to anarchy and finally to barbarism. We fling them, a golden apple of discord, among the rival powers, no one of which could permit another to seize them unquestioned. Their rich plains and valleys would be the scene of endless strife and bloodshed. The advent of Dewey's fleet in Manila Bay, instead of being, as we hope, the dawn of a new day of freedom and progress, will have been the beginning of an era of misery and violence worse than any which has darkened their unhappy past.

WOULD BE BAD FAITH.

The suggestion has been made that we could renounce our authority over the islands and giving them independence could retain a protectorate over them. This proposition will not be found, I am sure, worthy of your serious attention. Such an arrangement would involve at the outset a cruel breach of faith. The peaceable and loyal majority will ask for nothing better than to accept our authority at the mercy of the minority armed insurgents. It would make us responsible for the acts of the insurgent leaders and give us no power to control them. It would charge us with the task of protecting them against each other and defending them against any foreign power with which they chose to quarrel. In short, it would take from the Congress of the United States the power of declaring war and vest that tremendous prerogative in the Tagal leader of the hour.

DUTY OF CONGRESS.

It does not seem desirable that I should recommend at this time a specific form of government for these islands. When peace shall be restored, it will be the duty of Congress to construct a plan of government which shall establish and maintain freedom and order and peace in the Philippines. The insurrection is still existing and when it terminates further information will be required as to the actual condition of affairs beore inaugurating a permanent scheme of civil government. The full report of the Commission, now in preparation, will contain information and suggestions which will be of value to Congress and which I will transmit as soon as it is completed.

As long as the insurrection continues, the military must necessarily be supreme. But there is no reason why steps should not be taken from time to time to inaugurate governments essentially popular in their form as fast as territory is held or controlled by our troops. To this end, I am considering the advisability of the return of the Commission or such of the members thereof as can be secured to aid the existing authorities and facilitate this work throughout the islands.

I have believed that reconstruction should not begin by the establishment of one central government for the islands with its seat at Manila, but rather that the work should be commenced by building up from the bottom first and establishing municipal governments and then provincial governments, a central government at last to follow.

Until Congress shall have made known the formal expression of its will I shall use the authority vested in me by the constitution and statutes to uphold the sovereignty of the United States in those distant islands as in all other places wher our flag floats. I shall put at the disposal of the army and navy all the means which the liberality of Congress and the people have provided to cause this unprovoked and wasteful insurrection to cease. If any order of mine were required to insure the merciful conduct of military and naval operations they would not be lacking, but every step of the progress of our troops has been marked by a humanity which has surprised even the misguided insurgents. The truest kindness to them will be a swift and effective defeat of their present leader. The hour of victory will be the hour of clemency and reconstruction.

TO BUILD UP WASTE PLACES.

No effort will be spared to build up the waste places deserted by war and by long years of misgovernment. We shall not wait for the end of strife to begin the beneficent work. We shall continue as we have begun to open the schools and the churches, to set the courts in operation, to foster industry and trade and agriculture and in every way in our power to make these people whom providence has brought within our judisdiction feel that it is their liberty and not our power, their welfare and not our gain, we are seeking to enhance.

FLAG ALWAYS A BLESSING.

Our flag has never waved over any community but in blessing. I believe the Filipinos will soon recognize the fact that it has not lost its gift of benediction in this world-wide journey to their shores.

PORTO RICO.

For present purposes I recommend that Congress pass a law for the organization of a temporary government, which shall provide for the appointment by the President, subject to confirmation by the Senate, of a Governor and such other officers as the general administration of the Island may require, and for legislative purposes on subjects of a local nature, not partaking of a Federal character, a Legislative Council, composed partly of Porto Ricans and partly of citizens of the United States, shall be nominated and appointed by the President, subject to confirmation by the Senate, their acts to be subject to the approval of the Congress or the President prior to going into effect.

GREAT OPPORTUNITIES.

Presented to this Congress are great opportunities. With them come great responsibilities. The power confided to us increases the weight of our obligations, and we must be profoundly sensitive of them as we contemplate the new and grave problems which confront us. Aiming only at the public good, we cannot err. A right interpretation of the people's will and of duty cannot fail to insure wise measures for the welfare of the island which have come under the authority of the United States and to insure to the common interest and lasting honor of our country. Never has this nation had more abundant cause than during the past year for thankfulnes to God for manifold blessing and mercies, for which we make reverent acknowledgment.

(Signed) William McKinley.

COTTON GIN CONSOLIDATION.

Headquarters of the New Company Will Be in Birmingham.

The cotton gin manufacturers of the country have combined and organized a great company to be known as the Northington-Munger-Pratt Gin company, with headquarters in Birmingham.

The finishing touches of the organization are practically completed, and the public official announcement of the great newcompany is to made in a few days. Those who know anything of the organization are certain that W. T. Northington, one of the most successful gin men in the south, will be the president of the new company.

While the chief parties to the organization refuse to talk, it is known that existing companies, with an output of more than 90 per cent. of the gins manufactured in this country, are in the deal. The Northington-Munger-Pratt company and the Smith Sons Gin and Machinery company of Birmingham are in it. So are the Munger Gin company of Dallas, Tex., the Daniel Pratt Gin company of Prattville, the Winship Machine company of Atlanta, the Eagle Gin company and other well known companies.

Birmingham is not only to be the general headquarters of the great concern, but it is likewise to be the central manufactory.

Deed to Universlty Lands Filed.

The deed conveying 3,440 acres of the lands of the University of Alabama to the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company, which conveyance has been the subject of a state sensation because of the alleged impropriety of the sale, was filed for record in the probate office of Jefferson county Saturday. The document is signed by Gov. Joseph F. Johnston, president of the board of trustees of the University of Alabama, and countersigned by the secretary of the board, Robinson Brown. The deed contains a full description of the land conveyed and also a copy of the resolution adopted by the board of trustees authorizing the sale.

A general description of the land sold is contained in the resolution. The deed goes into a lengthy description covering several pages of typewritten manuscript. The total consideration for the property is $56,500. It was paid in cash and the deed was executed November 1, 1899.

Three Seriously Wounded.

Three people were seriously hurt at New Decatur by the accidental discharge of guns the past two days.

Fred Homes, a young man, was shot in the shoulder while hunting, and may not recover.

While hunting in the river bottom, J. W. Morris, a shoe manufacturer, accidentally shot himself and his son, Dan, aged 12. By some unknown cause one barrel of the gun was discharged and the load entered the boy's leg, wounding him slightly. In running to the boy's aid the other barrel was discharged, the shot entering the father's leg, wounding him seriously.

Capitalists Interested in Huntsville.

N. F. Thompson, of Huntsville, industrial agent, has received information that several of the leading manufacturing concerns in Chicago have decided to seek locations elsewhere on account of labor troubles. Three of the largest of the concerns have opened correspondence with Mr. Thompson with a view of locating in that section.

New Railroad Probable.

It is understood at New Decatur that eastern capitalists are now interested in the Decatur and Aberdeen railroad, and that in all probability the road will be built in the near future. This road is to run from Decatur to Aberdeen, Miss., and if built will open up a fine mineral section of both iron and coal.

New Haven, Conn., can fly no flag on "the green," the city board of finance pleading that there is no money which it can use to pay for the erection of a flagstaff.

A CITY OF MONKEYS.

One of the Strangest Sights in the Whole of India.

Mrs. Clara Erskine Clement describes graphically a visit to the ancient city of Amber, in India, and which is inhabited only by a few priests and thousands of monkeys. The hill on which the old city stands is surrounded by other high hills, crowned with towers and ramparts and covered with trees. The great castle fortress stands out boldly. The old zenana, or woman's apartments—an extensive block of buildings, surrounded by a court—is the only place which is inhabited. This is a well populated and lively quarter, since a tribe of langour or hoonoomaun monkeys have taken possession, and dwell here in comfort and freedom. The Hindus religiously refrain from hurting or killing any animal, and the monkeys, having no fear, are monarchs of all they choose to take.

The hoonoomaun, or langour, is the sacred monkey, and the largest found in India. Its height is from two and a half to four feet; its body is singularly slender and supple; its face is black and smooth, except for long white whiskers; the hair on the body is gray on the back and white under the stomach; its tail is long and bare, with a single tuft of hair on the end. The Hindus have a legend which explains its very black face. It says that ages ago Hoonoomaun, the king of the monkeys, went to assist Rama in the conquest of Ceylon. The demon-king had carried off Lita, wife of Rama, and he was determined to rescue her. As they came near to the island, Hoonoomaun easily leaped over the straits, so skillful a jumper was he, and, finding Lita, he was comforting her with the news that her husband was approaching, when Ravana, the demon-king, appeared and made Hoonoomaun prisoner, after setting fire to the monkey's long tail, he gave him his freedom that he might return to Rama. Hoonoomaun succeeded in blowing out the fire at the end of his tail, but in so doing he blackened his face and singed his hair in a most unbecoming fashion. The loss of his beauty so saddened the poor beast that Rama made all the monkeys of his kind kalamoukh, or black-faced, which they remain to this day.—St Nicholas Magazine.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Their Superstitions.

The famous Dr. Samuel Johnson would never enter a room left foot foremost, and brave Marshal Saxe was in terror at the sight of a cat. Peter the Great was in a tremor of fear if he had to cross a bridge, and Byron turned pale if he spilled salt at the table.

Mohammed directed his followers to exclaim the equivalent of our "God bless you!" when anyone sneezed, and the Romans and Greeks had a similar phrase. George Augusta Sala, the noted journalist, always carried with him a lucky card, the ace of spades.

Samuel Pepys, the man who wrote the diary, bought a hares' foot, which he cherished as warding off bad luck and illness. We buy rabbits' feet today for the same cheerful purpose. How many people avoid going under a ladder or breaking a funeral procession? And how many will change a garment if they put it on wrong side out in dressing?

Mrs. W. K. Clifford, the English novelist, does a great deal of her writing at night, but once confessed to Professor Huxley that she very foolishly gets scared when everyone has gone to bed and has left her alone. The silence of the night makes her nervous and she can get little done. "I always hear burglars moving about," she said.

"So do I," said the great man, instantly. "When I am at work nights I can see them watching me through the crack of the door." Geniuses have vivid imaginations.

What Is Lyddite?

Lyddite shells, which the British are using against the Boers, and which make such frightful havoc where they explode, are used solely in the British service. Lyddite, a secret compound something like the French melinite, is a high explosive six times more powerful than gunpowder, and the shells separate into thousands of fragments, making it a frightful instrument of war.

Compressed Coffee Tab'oids.

A process has been invented and patented in Brazil for preparing coffee in tabloids by a system of compression. It is argued that not only will there be less expense in exporting coffee in this form, but that the customer will be more certain of thus receiving for his use the pure, unadulterated article.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

A few years ago a sea wall was built at Barrow, England, to keep the sea from the workings of a mine, and it is now proposed to make an embankment 6,750 yards long, to inclose about 170 acres of land, under which the mine has been extended, the existence of ore having been demonstrated under that area. It is estimated that the work will cost nearly $3,000,000, but the ore is of the finest quality.

An electric rack railway has been built at Laon, France, to connect the railway station with an elevated place 672 feet above the station, where most of the inhabitants live. The overhead trolley system is used in combination with a rack-rail track. Ordinary street cars are used seating forty passengers. The total cost of the line, which is a mile and a quarter long, was nearly $90,000.

The French government is considering the advisability of discontinuing the use of the guillotine and contemplates the adoption in its stead of electrical execution. The head of the criminal is enclosed in a hamlet somewhat similar to that used by a diver. When the executioner turns on the current two needles leap from their sockets, penetrate the temples and enter the brain. A powerful alternating current ruptures and destroys the brain cells so quickly that it is believed that death will be instantaneous. This seems like a clumsy method of execution, says the Scientific American, but there is no question that it will be efficacious.

Armored trains are being used to transport troops and passengers through the districts which are menaced in the Transvaal, Such trains are nearly always improvised, and are nothing more than a train of ordinary freight cars whose resistance to attack has been increased by plating the inside with sheets of metal. Holes are pierced in the cars through which rifles and small cannon can be used on the attacking party. Some times a freight car mounting a piece of artillery forms a part of a train. These trains are improvised as needed, and are fitted up with the nearest materials available, such as sheets of steel, sand bags or lumber. Such trains were used with great satisfaction in the Egyptian war.

Something New in Spain.

Until a year ago such a thing as an electric car was unknown in Spain. The cars in a few principal towns that could boast of having tramways of any kind were drawn through the streets at a jog trot pace by horses, or more frequently mules. Within the last few months, however, foreign enterprise has been the means of inaugurating electric traction in the streets of Madrid, Barcelona, Valencia, Bilbao and San Sebastian, and the lead thus taken by the principal tramway companies in the chief cities of Spain is likely to be quickly followed by others.

Bees Stole Back Pilfered Honey.

A curious incident of the bee world is reported from Hampshire, England. A cottager took two large bars of honey and a square section from one of his hives. This honey he put into a large pan and covered it with a cloth, placing it in an up-stairs room of his cottage. During the day the bees got scent of the honey through the open window, and the whole hive entered the room, crept under the cloth cover and took away all the honey in an incredibly short time and stored it in their hive again. The quantity was about ten pounds in weight.
